Kellogg Peace Fruits
Wonderful Virginia
The Happiest Human
No Machine Made Life

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1929, King Features Synd., Inc.

MIDDLEBURG, Va., Nov. 29—China says Russians on her Manchurian possessions, seizure of the railroads, killing Chinese, setting fire to their homes, etc., is a defiance of the Kellogg peace pact.

Britain and America will talk that over and see what can be done about it.

Henderson, foreign minister in Britain's Labor cabinet, says, Japan will take part in the discussion. Russia asks no one's advice, and the only thing that could be done about it would be to fight Russia.

It would be interesting if the first fruits of the Kellogg peace pact should be the start of another war. If that war came, Japan, highly intelligent, would send a few "observers" as in the big war, and do nothing else. Britain would be too busy with other things, and too "fed up" for any more fighting. Uncle Sam would be told:

"After all, Kellogg is your man. It is your peace pact. Have the common decency to attend to this matter—"

This is written at Middleburg, Virginia, where you find the finest hunting country with many packs of hounds, the best horses and the best girls' school in the land.

Several hundred turned out for the Thanksgiving fox hunts, galloping over stone walls and fences.

Gen. William C. Mitchell was among them. He ought to be helping this government to build up the world's greatest air fleet, for he was, and is, our best flying officer. His trouble was that he told the truth, something that men, higher in office, do not like, when it criticizes them.

The happiest fox hunter in Virginia yesterday was not one of the men in red coats and top hats, or any woman or girl, groomed within an inch of her life. It was a 15-year-old colored boy, riding a three-year-old colt, that had never hunted before, and slamming that young animal over every fence, as he came to it. Sometimes the horse and boy went down. Sometimes a rail broke, or stones rolled off.

Always the young rider went on smiling beatifically. He was fox hunting. Gen. Mitchell told him, "Boy, that's going to be one of the best jumpers in the world." Then that happiest boy in Virginia was the happiest boy in the world. A great deal happier than Rockefeller, King George and Henry Foru, all rolled into one. There is no substitute for youth, none for a good horse.

E. E. Free, able engineer, says 1950 will see electric houses, lighted with artificial sunlight, weather arranged as prescribed by the doctor, like a baby's modified milk, no windows, sound proof and electrically ventilated. The sound proof suggestion is welcome, and the rest NO.

Men are, physically speaking, animals. They want the sun shining irregularly, the air blowing through. They want to come in, and go out as they did in the cave days, and do not want the inside made like the outside.

Science tells us one day we shall eat all the food we need condensed into a few small pills. We say, "no, give us good artistic cooking, let us cultivate the globe, and enjoy all its products." Men, when emancipated from industrial slavery, by machinery and intelligence, will demand a real life, real freedom. Not a machine made imitation of life. We may change to food pills and homes without windows in 1,000,000 years, but let us hope not.

There are only a few thousand airplanes in America. Yesterday two of them struck and damaged houses, with serious danger to many lives, in addition to killing one pilot. One house was set on fire. What will happen when millions of planes are roaring above? Now is the time to regulate flying, the rights and limitations of those that use the air paths.

Business men that know what it means to take an inventory of a good sized store, will shudder when they hear that Dr. Shapley of Harvard has a plan for taking an inventory of the universe, or "an index" as he calls it. Man is very far down in that inventory about as important as a shoe string in a wholesale dry goods store.

In the cosmos, everything to be listed in its place, from electrons to "super-galaxies," the difference between a super galaxy and an electron, of which millions might revolve, unperceived, around their nucleus, in the corner of your eye, is quite a difference.

Consider that the molecules in a pint of water, placed side by side, touching, would go around the earth two hundred million times, that our sun is a million

NOT A WORD FROM BYRD IN 12 HOURS

Long Silence Laid to Static in Antarctic; Due at Base Tonight

New York, Nov. 29 (INS)—Nearly 12 hours of silence today had followed the last message from Commander Richard E. Byrd during his flight to the South Pole.

The last message received from him was at 12:30 a. m. (N. Y. time), which said that he was at the crevasses with his plane motors working well.

At the office of the New York Times, associated with other newspapers in receiving [illegible] on his flight, it was [illegible] that no further word had been received.

The long silence has given rise to no fear at the office of the New York Times. It was explained there that communication was probably interrupted by static conditions brought on by approaching daylight.

It was stated that there is little likelihood of re-establishing communication with the explorer until darkness settles down tonight. By

4 PROBES IN BIG FIRE AT NANTASKET

State Plans to Rebuild Ruined Bathhouse; Flames There Cause a New Scare

With firemen and police exhausted, a new scare was given property owners at Nantasket today when the $1,000,000 fire that swept the beach before being brought under control rekindled.

The renewal of the blaze was in the State bathhouse, on which streams of water had been directed all night.

When the fresh flames shot up into the air new lines were brought to the bathhouse and the blaze was extinguished.

MONEY IS AVAILABLE

His first official act today was to call in Davis B. Keniston, chairman of the Metropolitan District Commission, and Charles P. Howard, chairman of the Commission of Administration and Finance. After the conference he announced that work would begin at once on a new bath house, estimated to cost $75,000. It is understood money is available.

Four investigations, including one by the state, were under way today. The three other probes were by the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Co. and by the Hull police and fire departments.

At the start of the steamboat company's probe President and General Manager Fred L. Lane declared that his company's loss would reach $2,000,000, but fire officials said they believed this too large.

While the blaze was still in full

'BANKER' HAS CLOSE CALL FROM BEING CAPTURED

Alleged Subordinates in Lottery and Tickets Rounded Up in Harrison Ave.

Opening a drive to clean the city of gambling pools, police today raided two establishments in Harrison ave., South End, arrested six men and seized 200 lottery tickets.

The first three men were taken in a cleansing establishment near Broadway. They were Hyman Cibulski and William Diteiberg of Commonwealth ave., Allston, and Anthony Ross of Oneida st., South End.

In a barber shop only a few doors away from the cleansing establishment, the raiders arrested Joseph S. Kurtzer of Shawmut ave., Frederick Harris of Harrison ave. and Morris Norse of Rochester st., South End.

All six were taken to police headquarters and booked on a charge of setting up and promoting a lottery.

"BANKER" SPEEDS AWAY.

Taking part in the raid were Lieut. Daniel J. Hines, Sergts. William H. McKenzie and William Cripps and Patrolmen John H. Colron, Henry J. McCoy, Daniel J. Welby, John J. Sullivan, Joseph L. McGovern and Frank M. Smith—all members of the headquarters liquor and vice squad.

As the raid was in progress an automobile, declared by police to have been driven by the "banker" of the pool, drew up near one of the establishments, but speeded away on seeing the raiders.

Several of the officers leaped into one of their cars and chased the "banker" along Harrison ave., but lost him when a truck came between the two machines.

According to police, the six men arrested in the raids are "writers" or salesmen.

ON TIP FROM WOMAN.

The writers sell the pool tickets to the players, the player paying from one cent to $5 for his number, daily, according to his own choice. He picks his own number and if it wins it pays him 600 to 1.

In the last few weeks this type of pool has been gaining in popularity throughout Greater Boston, and police declare that many of the "writers" or salesmen have their stations in speakeasies.

The raids today were launched on information furnished police by the wife of a player. She complained that her husband had lost so much money attempting to beat the pool that she is almost always penniless and her home life has become exceedingly uncomfortable.

War-Time Freighter Disabled at Sea

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 29 (AP)—The Norwegian freighter Grey County, buffeted by storms since leaving Antwerp for St. John, N. B., was disabled with a broken rudder 140 miles east of Cape Race, Newfoundland, according to a message received here, asking for assistance.

The Grey County, registered at Bergen, Norway, was built at Hull, England, in 1918 and was formerly known as the War Lark.

160 Million Dollar Tax Cut Is Assured

Washington, Nov. 29 (AP)—Chairman Hawley of the House ways and means committee predicted today the House would adopt a resolution to authorize the $160,000,000 tax reduction on 1929 incomes before the end of the first week of the regular session.

The resolution, Hawley said, would be introduced Monday and he would call a meeting Tuesday of the ways and means committee. Hearings, he added, probably would be short in view of the approval of the reduction by the administration and leaders of both parties in both houses.

In the event the House would agree to consided the resolution Wednesday, under unanimous consent, without waiting for the committee report, it probably would be approved that day, he said. Otherwise it would be brought up Thursday for action.

FEARS FOR FIFTY IN BLIZZARD

Isle a la Crosse, Sask., Nov. 29 (AP)—With a 30-mile-an-hour gale from the Arctic tundra whipping the balling snow into a blizzard, anxiety was felt for the welfare of the 50 fishermen who left here three days ago in two groups for northern fishing lakes.

The fishermen, heading for the Narrows, according to dog mushers, had practically exhausted the small supply of food they had purchased here. The men had hoped to make the 50-mile trip to the Narrows in two days, and being short of funds had not taken a larger supply of food.

The thin ice, covered with a blanket of snow, had become slushy owing to the mild temperature.

fury, State Fire Marshal George Neal detailed Inspector Edward L. Murtagh of his staff to begin a rigid probe of the fire and its cause.

The victory of the firemen over the worst blaze to visit a seashore resort in New England in many years, was the signal to lift the unwelcomed isolation of hundreds of [illegible] in Hull and Pemberton over night, literally caught in a trap while visiting friends or relatives on the holiday.

Out of the fire today came many tales of heroism. Rescues from flames and from watery deaths were recorded.

STEAMERS DESTROYED

A complete checkup today showed the total destruction of the following Nantasket steamers: Mary Chilton, Nantasket, Rose Standish, Betty Alden, Old Colony; the steamboat pier and [illegible] steamboat offices and [illegible] house, and three private cottages.

In addition, two large dories, owned by Charles Welch of Bay St., Nantasket, were believed burned. They were tied up near Nantasket pier. A valuable speed-boat, owned by Frank Reynolds, postmaster, was missing and probably burned.

Two houses, on Atlantic rd., fully a mile from the pier, were reduced to ashes. They were owned by Dennis F. Crowley of Quincy. The damage was estimated at $20,000.

Another house on Valley Hill rd. near the foot of Atlantic Hill, went up in smoke before firemen could get a line on it.

A score of other dwellings, all unoccupied, on the Atlantic Hill section, were ignited by flying embers but saved by volunteer firemen before the flames made headway.

Fireman Frank W. Thompson of the Hingham fire department was twice a hero. Once he entered the flaming State bath house and rescued Sergt. Thomas Kelleher of the Metropolitan park police and Fireman William Hatch, also of Hingham, who had fallen through the roof in the midst of the blazing building.

Thompson first dragged Kelleher to safety. The sergeant's left arm was broken.

RETURNS TO BUILDING

Going back into the inferno, Thompson found Hatch prostrated on the floor, his collarbone broken and his senses numbed by inhaling smoke. Thompson pulled him into the open.

Both victims were rushed to the Sturgis Hospital. A few hours later, in the face of doctors' orders, Kelleher returned to his post, weak but game. Hatch's name was placed on the danger list.

Unknown heroes figured in a rescue when three Hull firemen were hurled into the waters of the harbor, as their dory, from which they were trying to attach a line to the blazing Old Colony, capsized. They were Alfred West, John Brewster and David Templeton.

The three men clung to their overturned boat for several minutes until other firemen threw them a rope.

PLAN RECONSTRUCTION

The burning of the Nantasket boats will not end the harbor sails, according to General Manager Lane.

"The loss of these steamers and the adjoining property, of course, is a blow, but we hope to be able to commence work immediately on constructing vessels to take the place of those destroyed by fire," he said.

"We hope to be able to be ready to take care of the regular service this summer."

A special meeting of the board of directors will be held immediately, probably today, Lane said, to plan for the future.

A coating of ice that formed on streets and other approaches to the flaming pier hampered firemen considerably and several minor injuries, from falls, were reported.

The fire started, police believe, in the ticket booth on the pier, possibly from a lighted cigarette stub. The flames ignited coal sheds on one side and the steamer Old Colony on the other.

Capt. John MacFarland, of the Nantasket, discovered the fire, but before he could get apparatus to the scene, the entire pier, the Old Colony and the coal pocket were blazing.

Capt. Joseph T. Galiano of the Old Colony, in a desperate attempt to save other property, set his ship adrift. The current carried it out of danger but, with a freakish twist of the wind, it was turned about and carried back to where the Mayflower, Betty Alden, Mary Chilton, Nantasket and Rose Standish were tied up.

Within a few minutes the Mayflower was burning and one after another the other steamers took flame.

The Crowley cottages went up in smoke. The Lynnfield House was in flames and was saved with a loss of $2000. A cottage owned by Mrs. Hazel Winship of Malden was burned with a loss of $5000. Less damage was done to the Ethel Villa.

FR. TORNDORF IS FOUND DEAD

He appeared at a dinner with other priests and college officials as usual last night, but this morning when he failed to appear, associates went to his room to find him dead in bed. He had apparently succumbed to a heart attack during the night. He was born in Boston.

Fr. Tondorf was one of the foremost seismologists of the world. One of his most notable pieces of work was placing of the Japanese earthquake of 1923 many hours before the word at large heard about this major catastrophe.

At that time he located by means of his delicate instruments almost exactly the center of the gigantic earth disturbance. In many other instances he also calculated the area in which earth movements had occurred long before they were reported by telegraph and cable.

Father Tondorf was born in Boston July 17, 1870. He was graduated from Woodstock, Md., College in 1895 and received his Ph. D. from Georgetown University in 1914. He was ordained a priest 25 years ago.

From his graduation until his death he was connected with the seismographical laboratory at Georgetown. The Royal Astronomical Society of London, Eng., elected him a fellow of the society in 1927.

He leaves three sisters, Mrs. Joseph Galvin, Mrs. Charles King and Miss Louise Tondorf, all of Greater Boston.

The funeral will be held Monday at Georgetown

No relief was in sight for several days. Colder weather was predicted for tonight throughout the country.

In Detroit, Gabriel De Chone, 58, was found frozen to death in his garage today following the coldest Thanksgiving day that city has experienced in 56 years.

The coldest weather of the season was experienced in New England today. Colder weather for the district tonight is predicted by the forecaster.

Today was the coldest day of the season in Boston, the official temperature dropping to 24 at 7 a. m. as a result of the cold wave which swept down from Canada and which is expected to remain several days.

Temperatures in other parts of New England were lower than this city, however. At Greenville, Me., 4 below was recorded. It was 1 above at Northfield, Vt., and 12 above at Burlington.

The official forecast for Boston and vicinity: Fair and colder tonight; Saturday, fair and continued cold; moderate northwest winds. The minimum temperature tonight will be near 18 above.

A blizzard raged at Marquette, Mich. It was believed B. R. Hayden, a deer hunter, was lost.

According to dispatches from the Middle West a blizzard swept Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri and the Dakotas last night. Four inches of snow fell.

At Malone, N. Y., two inches of snow fell, while the mercury dropped to four above. At Owl's Head, 10 miles from there, the temperature dropped to five below zero early today.

The Federal Weather Bureau announced that freezing temperatures will prevail tonight as far south as southern California and northern Florida.

IF BYRD FAILS HE CAN WALK BACK TO BASE

Dr. Scarr, Meteorologist, Believes He Will Complete Polar Flight

New York, Nov. 29 (INS)—Commander Richard E. Byrd, streaking in a plane toward the South Pole, will get back safely.

So believes Dr. James H. Scarr, famous meteorologist, and friend of the flying explorer. When Byrd started on his transatlantic air crossing in 1927, it was Scarr who advised him when to start.

"Commander Byrd is a very careful and experienced man for the big job he has undertaken," said Dr. Scarr today.

"I believe he will cross the South Pole and make the 1600-mile round trip back to his base successfully. Even if he is forced down he undoubtedly will have enough supplies to enable him to foot it back. But I expect him to fly back.

"It is the time for a change of seasons in the Antarctic when the fog hanging over the region should be clearing up. The commander had probably been waiting for a strong southwest wind. If it keeps up the South Polar fliers should not have any trouble and even if it doesn't I believe Commander Byrd will make his way."

FAR-REACHING EFFECT

Aside from the contribution to scientific knowledge which Byrd's epic-marking flight is expected to accomplish, Dr. Scarr declared that the sortie over the South Pole would have a far-reaching stimulating effect on mankind.

"The very fact that man is doing the seemingly impossible raises the morals of the race," said Dr. Scarr. "Such an attempt keeps us on our toes and keeps us keenly alive. It raises the level of our ideas and ideals."

Besides adding to scientific and geographic knowledge, Dr. Scarr suggests that Byrd's exploration might even contribute to the commerce of the world by possible disclosing a passage for future airplane navigation.

AN AID TO SCIENCE

"In any event we should have a more complete picture of the atmosphere circulation and add to the science of Meteorology. The geologic data gathered should also add to the past history of the development of the earth."

Dr Scarr said that the meteorological observances of the expeditions would perhaps increase the accuracy of present weather forecasts and possible contribute "a refining" influence on current methods. However, he discounted the suggestion that stations located in the Antarctic could forecast weather long in advance for the rest of the world.

Byrd on 2nd Day of Flight to South Pole

that time Commander Byrd will probably be winging his way back to his base.

Byrd on Second Day of Flight to South Pole

New York, Nov. 29 (AP)—The New York Times, the St. Louis Post Dispatch and the newspapers affiliated with them in publishing reports from Commander Richard E. Byrd's Antarctic expedition, today announced that Commander Byrd started from his base, Little America, in the Antarctic, at 9:29 o'clock yesterday afternoon 10:29 p. m. New York time) on a 1600-mile flight to the South Pole and back.

Commander Byrd, who is flying with Bernta Balchen as pilot, with Harold June as radio operator and Capt. Ashley C. McKinley as photographer in the big tri-motored airplane he took to the Antarctic, expects to be in direct communication throughout the flight with the New York Times radio station in New York, as well as with his base, and will report his progress as he goes. If all is well with him, he should return to his base before 2 4hours have elapsed.

OVER GREAT PLATEAU

Commander Byrd, flying to the South Pole, must traverse on of the greatest and highest large plateaus on the surface of the earth, a far different situation beneath him than when he flew to the North Pole. The South Pole itself is some 10,000 feet in height, and the average height of the continent has been calculated at 6000 feet, twice the average height of Asia.

Of the 5,000,000 square miles of Antarctic perhaps less than 100 square miles is not covered by the sheet of eternal ice, which in places is regarded as over 2000 feet thick. Exceptionally low temperatures prevail, a mark of 77 degrees below zero Fahrenheit having been recorded once near the sea coast. Between Little America and the South Pole is located at least one mountain range which rises high above the covered plateau.

MAKES DISCOVERIES.

On Byrd's North Pole flight the trip was over water clogged and chocked with ice. The "country" beneath the plane was never far above sea level, a matter which enabled the pilot to check his course and locate himself. It is much more difficult flying over the Antarctic plateau.

Commander Byrd's expedition has been in the Antarctic since December last year. One fruit already of their Antarctic expedition has been confirmation of the existence of Scott island and discovery of various uncharted mountain groups on the Antarctic continent.

TO NORTH POLE IN 15 HOURS.

Commander Byrd is the first to attempt the flight above the South Pole, although both he and Capt. Sir George Hubert Wilkins previously last year used airplanes in flights over Antartica. The South Pole was reached first by Roald Aundsen, Norwegian, December 14, 1911, and a few days later by Capt. Robert F. Scott, British, both using overland methods of travel.

The flight to the South Pole recalls the flight in May, 1925, in the tri-motored Fokker airplane, the Miss Josephine Ford, from King's Bay, Spitzbergen, across the North Pole and return, in 15 hours 30 minutes, the round trip was 1600 miles. A trip in Arctic springtime about the same distance as the flight on which he is engaged today over icy wastes and mountains.

He was the first to fly to the North Pole and the only one to fly across it in a heavier than air machine.

"Dad Will Win!" "Dick" Byrd, Jr., Exclaims

While Commander Richard E. Bird was flying today over the Antarctic plateau to plant the Stars and Stripes at the South Pole, his wife and four children in Boston confidently awaited the news of his success.

Mrs. Byrd, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Joseph H. Ames, took the children for a walk in the Public Garden, and later at her Brimmer st. home expressed confidence that her husband would achieve his objective.

"My dad will win," exclaimed Richard E. Byrd, Jr., 10-year-old son of the gallant commander, who has followed every move of his father in Little America with unbounded pride and youthful confidence.

Comdr. Byrd's other three children are Evelyn, 7½; Katherine Ames, 6, and Baby Helen, 3 years. Since his departure Mrs. Byrd and children have made their home with Mrs. Byrd's mother.

His absence has not caused any great change in the daily lives of the family. They are all happy and well and receive all the wireless messages broadcast to civilization from the explorer's base.

Lieut. June's Wife Sure of His Success

Stamford, Ct., Nov. 29 (AP)—The wife and daughter of Lieut. Harold June, radioman with Commander Byrd on his flight from Little America to the South Pole, received her first word of the flight from a press dispatch this forenoon. She took the news cheerfully and expressed confidence that he would return safely.

His daughter received a message from June this morning, sent from Little America on November 26. The message was sent through the American Radio League.

Mrs. June said her last message from her husband was received about three weeks ago.

SOVIET PEACE MOVE SPURRED BY U. S. ACTION

Joint Note With France, However, Not Delivered to Belligerents

Mukden, Nov. 29 (AP)—Despite denials and counter-denials of the negotiations reported to have been initiated by the Russian Government in Moscow and the Manchurian authorities at Mukden, it is generally believed here that settlement of the Chinese-Russian controversy over the Chinese eastern railway, is near.

Paris, Nov. 29 (AP)—It was learned today that the United States and France had reached an agreement to act with the other big powers in calming the conflict between Russia and China in Manchuria by dispatching a note to Moscow, but the note was never sent.

The note, calling attention to the provisions of the Kellogg-Briand peace pact, which was signed by both Russia and China, was held up because of reports that Moscow and Mukden authorities had opened direct negotiations and that there were good prospects they would settle their work isconflict.

International circles in Paris were inclined to believe that the Russians had learned of the projected note from the powers and had hastened to encourage direct negotiations.

U. S. Woman Missionary Is Freed by Bandits

Hankow, Nov. 29 (AP)—Mrs. Oscar Hellestad, American missionary who was kidnaped by bandits yesterday at her home in Sinyeh, Southwest Honan Province, has been released and returned to the Lutheran mission at Sinyeh.

Mrs. Hellestad, who is from Lebanon, S. D., said banditry was prevalent throughout the countryside.

The Rev. Ulrich Kreutzen of the Franciscan mission at Wuchang, who was captured by bandits several weeks ago, again has written to his mission, saying his captors were demanding 6000 Mexican dollars ransom for his release.

Mrs. Hellestad is a former student of St. Olaf College and Northfield, Minn. Her husband, also a graduate of St. Olaf and the Lutheran Seminary at Minneapolis, is treasurer of the Lutheran United Mission in China.

Russian Planes Again Bomb Chinese Towns

Harbin, Manchuria, Nov. 29 (AP)—Soviet airplanes today were reported to have resumed bombardment of the town of Buchatu on the Chinese Eastern railway, 250 miles from the border. The bombs damaged the railway station and threw the inhabitants of the town into a panic. Many of them fled.

Reports that an agreement to negotiate the controversy has been reached between Moscow and Mukden are being followed closely here, particularly by thousands of White Russians, who have lived in terror for months, fearing occupation of Harbin by the Red army.

Peace Move Continues; "More War" in Prospect

Mukden, Nov. 29 (AP)—The Russian wireless station at Nabarovsk broadcast a statement saying conversations between Moscow and Mukden looking toward settlement ofq the Chinese Eastern railway controversy still were proceeding, but that there will be "more war."

The radio announcer, commenting upon the Manchurian situation, said:

"The Chinese-Manchurian army has suffered heavy losses, but Russia has not faith in Chang Hseuh-Liang's word, as his forces are still fighting. Therefore Russia must prepare for more war."

Chang Hsueh-Liang is governor of Manchuria.

NO. 299 TO GO TO BOSTON

don't know where Mayor Nichols got that number. He didn't apply for it because he doesn't own a car. It belongs to the city of Boston. If he buys a car we'll give him a number."

"But he can't have 299?" he was asked.

"No, he's too late."

HOOVER'S PROSPERITY PROGRAM WILL GIVE WORK TO MILLIONS

6 BILLIONS TO BE SPENT IN 1930

Nation-Wide Response to Plea of President Benefits All Industries

Washington, Nov. 29—Public and private construction and betterment programs which will cost six billion dollars or more and give employment to millions of men have grown out of President Hoover's plans for business stabilization, reports from all parts of the country to the White House indicated today.

The sum represents the definite plans for expenditure of the federal, State and municipal governments, railroads and public utilities. No estimates have yet been received from private industries. The known program, however, is regarded as assurance of renewed orders for steel, lumber and other materials, and a general strengthening of allied industries.

Outstanding projects approximated this vast sum as wires and mails poured in reports of a quick spread of the business progress movements to all parts of the country and to smaller business units.

WORK FOR MILLIONS

The $6,000,000,000 total embraces only some of the biggest programs of construction, expansion and maintenance, of such character that they have already been framed and reported directly to the White House.

It represents the known, not the complete, projects of federal, state and local governments, railroads, electric, gas and traction utilities and telephone interests. No detailed reports have been made by other major industries, although announcements by individual companies have made it plain they will account for a huge outlay.

Administration officials regarded the known program, as its stands, as assuring continued work for millions of men and a steady stream of orders for steel, lumber and other materials, manufactured equipment and supplies, that will go far toward keeping industry on an even keel.

Meanwhile a message on its way to the President carried tidings of a $100,000,000 improvement and expansion program for the industrial empire of Northern Ohio. This program grew out of a meeting of 200 civic and business leaders at Cleveland and a check of industries in many cities and counties of the [illegible]

MANY BUSINESS GAINS

[illegible] lence that business was little affected by the stock market crash up to the end of last month and in at least some instances was recording new gains, was given in trade surveys made public by the Federal Reserve Board.

Big gains in chain store sales, compared with last year, were shown in the board's indexes.

To co-ordinate all business action taken and projected and promote increasing ability, Hoover has started machinery to create a national council for the stabilization and progress of industry and commerce.

Plans for this moving forward today under sponsorship of the United States Chamber of Commerce. President Hoover will address a meeting of scores of business leaders here next Thursday to discuss formation of the council.

Jesse Pomeroy 70 Years Old Today

Bridgewater, Nov. 29—Today was Jesse Pomeroy's 70th birthday and his 54th behind prison walls.

The aged lifer, transferred last August from the State prison at Charlestown to the State farm, is still in the infirmary, where he will probably remain until death claims him.

He spent the day at cards and checkers with other prisoners. There was no birthday cake nor any official recognition of the event. Officials of the institution said he seems satisfied with his lot and reconciled to spending his remaining days in prison.

Funeral of Malden Woman Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Bridget D. O'Brien of Whitman st., Malden, widow of John J. O'Brien, will be held tomorrow, with a solemn high mass of requiem celebrated at 9 a. m. in the church of the Immaculate Conception, Malden.

Mrs. O'Brien died Wednesday at her home after an illness of six months. She was born in County Clare, Ireland, but had lived for 30 years in Malden. Surviving are seven sons and daughters, including Thomas O'Brien of the Boston American, three grandchildren, two sisters and one brother.

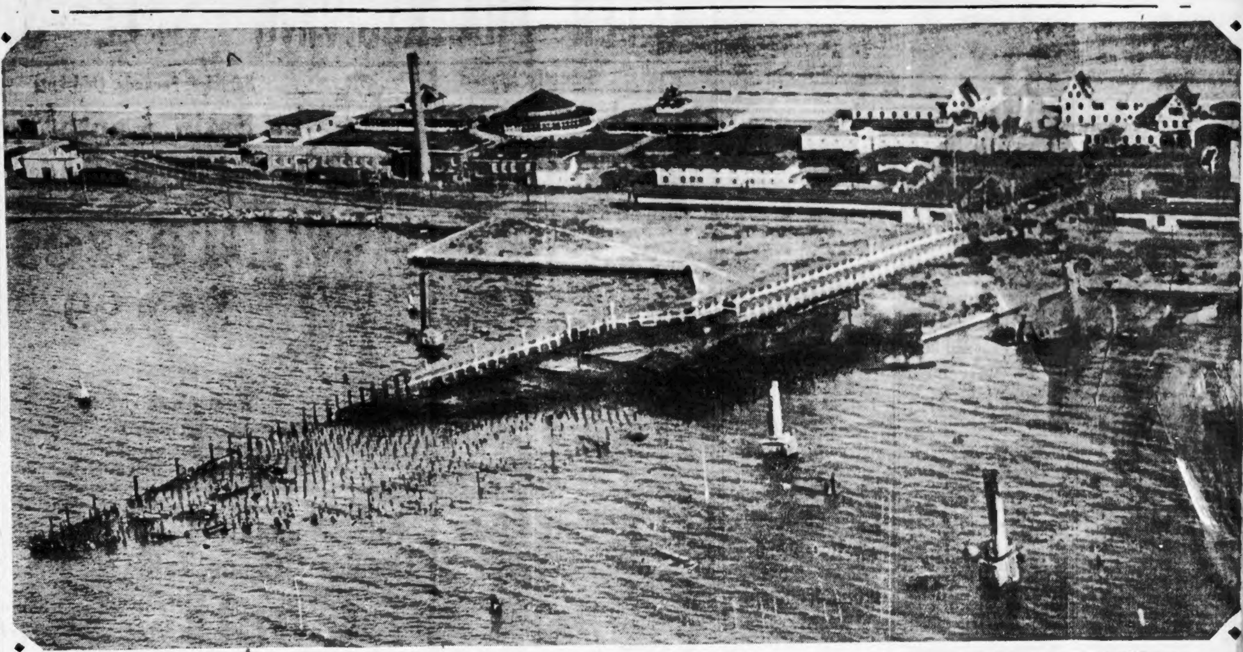
Charles Newman, Song Writer, to Wed

Chicago, Nov. 29—"Sweethearts on Parade."

Charles Newman, he who wrote the lyric for this popular song, may soon be using it for his wedding march.

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Max Greenwald that their daughter, Miss Lessie Jane, and Newman were engaged and that the wedding would take place early in 1930.

Flames Danced and Left This Where Millions of Merry Feet Have Tripped on Gay Holidays



The blackened skeleton of the Nantasket pier reaching like a finger of many little bones out into the water, the smokestacks of four gay excursion boats sticking like periscopes on war days' submarines up out of the salt sea, and the dank odor of burnt wood after it has been wet—these echo the story today of Nantasket's disastrous fire. This excellent photo was made from an airplane by a Boston Evening American staff photographer by courtesy of Walter S. Rogers and Associates in a Davis V3 monoplane piloted by Gus Ham, chief pilot of the East Boston airport.

LEARY DIRECTS INQUIRIES

Worcester, Nov. 29—Dr. Timothy Leary, Suffolk County medical examiner, today assumed charge of the investigation into the mysterious deaths of Detective Superintendent James J. Casey and Mrs. Dora L. Bingham.

One of the foremost pathologists in the country, Dr. Leary was called into the case to isolate, if possible, the poison that caused the double tragedy in the Spencer love nest cottage on the shore of Brooks pond nearly a week ago.

Dist. Atty. Charles B. Rugg, State Detectives Stokes and Ferrari and Worcester detectives Harding and Pineo, who found the bodies, accompanied Dr. Leary on still another visit to Casey's camp, in an upstairs bedroom of which the bodies were found. They spent three hours there.

Once again every detail was gone over, after which Dr. Leary returned to City Hospital, where he began an examination of the organs of the victims.

A searching autopsy and chemical examination had already failed to bring to light any trace of poison, and the possibility of carbon monoxide gas, once eliminated, was again being investigated. Against this theory is the statement of the two detectives who found the bodies that there was no trace of coal gas or carbon monoxide when they broke into the camp.

One angle receiving more attention than ever before is the absence of Casey's service revolver, found neither at the camp nor at his home. The disappearance of the weapon is one of the most perplexing details of a case that is baffling state and local police and the district attorney's office.

The key to the camp which had been turned over to Mrs. Mary Casey, widow of the detective, is again in the possession of the authorities, there to remain until an official verdict as to the cause of death is forthcoming.

There was a possibility that Dr Leary, failing to find poison, would order the bodies of both victims, buried Wednesday, exhumed for further examination. Under the authority invested in him by the district attorney he has the power to do so.

Detective McCarthy Goes Under Knife

Worcester, Nov. 29—State Detective Edward J. McCarthy, who was directing the investigation of the deaths of Detective Supt. James J. Casey and Mrs. Dora L. Bingham, was today rushed to City Hospital where he was operated upon for acute appendicitis. His condition is serious.

McCarthy withdrew from the investigation of the mysterious tragedy last Wednesday, with an illness diagnosed as intestinal grip. It was McCarthy who "broke in" Casey on the Worcester police force 23 years ago.

Hail Freed Woman in 'Miracle Cures'

Paris, Nov. 29 (INS)—Germaine of Rouen is faring better than Joan of Arc, who was burned at the stake in that town.

After a year in prison "for illegal practice of medicine," Germaine is beginning to acquire a reputation as a healer and a "miracle woman."

A tall, placid, soft-voiced woman, she created a sensation in Paris immediately upon being liberated from prison by making a "cripple" throw away her crutches.

Standing before a crowd of sceptical doctors and lawyers, she placed her hands on the body of a woman who professed chronic lameness through rheumatism.

"Try to move your legs," commanded Germaine. The suppliant obeyed, and an expression of astonishment lightened her face.

"I feel no more pain," she exclaimed. "I can walk!"

This demonstration was greeted with cheers and jeers. Doctors were divided over the genuineness of Germaine, but the lawyers decided that the "healer" was more efficient than many physicians.

Germaine declines to seek an explanation to support her claim that she is gifted with phenomenal healing powers. She is married and with her husband plans to meet ailing people in defiance of the protests of the medical profession, alleging that scores of "cures" effected before she was imprisoned testify as to her sincerity and her worth.

GIRL FLIERS SET RECORD; LAND

Los Angeles, Nov. 29 (AP)—The second attempt of Bobbie Trout of Los Angeles and Elinor Smith of New York to establish a new record for endurance flight here failed today when lack of fuel forced them to land their plane at 3:45 a. m. They had been in the air 42 hours and 5 minutes.

It was their second attempt within a week to better the record of 420 hours, 21 minutes 58 seconds held by Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brine of St. Louis.

The 42 hours and 5 minutes is a record for women, however, as they are the first women fliers to make a refueling endurance flight.

In a note dropped before they landed the fliers told of their failing gas supply, and added:

"Will be forced to land between 3:30 and 4 a. m. We are two of the saddest girls this side of the Atlantic."

Kellogg Has Big Hopes for Peace

Southampton, Eng., Nov. 29 (AP)—Prior to sailing on the Leviathan today for New York, Frank B. Kellogg, former Secretary of State, said: "I have great hopes of world peace and for the five-power naval conference to be held in London.

"Such things, however, cannot be accomplished in a hurry; they must evolve gradually."

5 KILLED AND 16 HURT ON CELTIC

Cobh, Irish Free State, Nov. 29—(AP)—Five workmen were reported killed and 16 seriously injured today, in an accident aboard the hulk of the liner Celtic, which is being dismantled. She grounded in Cobh Harbor.

Details of the accident were not immediately available, but it was reported to have been caused by compressed air apparatus.

Sue Carol Secret Bride

After denying for weeks a Hollywood rumor that they were married, Sue Carrol and Nick Stuart, film players, announce their marriage in Ventura, Cal., last July. Miss Carroll and her first husband, Allen H. Kiefer of Chicago, were divorced in January. She is the daughter of Mrs. Samuel M. Lederer of Chicago.

NateRaymondAdmits Rothstein Quarrel

New York, Nov 29 (AP)—The defense of George A. McManus made its first offensive move today in his trial for the murder of Arnold Rothstein, when James D. C. Murray presented a motion to strike out as irrelevant all testimony adduced regarding the big stud poker game where the State alleges arose the motive for the killing. The motion was denied.

"The State in its opening," Murray said, "declared it would prove a motive from these witnesses. No motive has been proven and I ask that the testimony given be stricken out as irrelevant."

Judge Charles C. Nott, Jr., said it was a matter for the jury to decide as to the relevancy of the testimony and whether it showed a motive, and overruled the motion.

WON $219,000 IN "I. O. U.S"

Murray's motion was made as "Nigger Nate" Raymond, little olive-skinned, smartly-dressed gambler from the Pacific coast, finished his testimony as the first witness of the day.

Raymond, who described himself as a "speculator" on sporting events, testified he won $219,000 from Rothstein at the poker game, but had never been able to collect it.

He asked Rothstein for a note the night of the game, he said, to take the place of the I. O. U.'s he had won, but when the other gamblers laughed, he said he realized that he had "made a faux pas" and withdrew the request. He made the admission with a crooked little smile at McManus, who sat at the defense table deeply interested.

Raymond was a suspect in the killing for some time. Mr. Murray brought out, as he had had several heated arguments with Rothstein during the two months between the game and Rothstein's shooting over the money the latter owed him.

He also lived in the Park Central, where the state alleges Rothstein was killed, but spent all the fatal evening of November 4, 1928, with his wife who was ill. He said he never saw McManus in the hotel.

QUARREL WITH ROTHSTEIN

"You didn't kill Rothstein, did you?" Murray asked.

"No," said Raymond.

"But police accused you of it, didn't they?"

"Well, no. They thought I was implicated, though."

Murray then brought out that Raymond and Rothstein had had an altercation in a taxicab some time before the shooting.

Raymond said police had asked him about it.

He didn't remember whether they had exchanged blows.

Raymond was followed on the stand by Benjamin Hickey, a civil engineer, employed by the district attorney, who identified large scale diagrams he had made of the Park Central and the street outside, where the alleged "death" pistol was picked up.

After Hickey had identified the charts they were passed to the jurymen, who eagerly scanned them. It was the first time they had had occasion to do anything but sit and they seemed to welcome it.

The diagrams were for the purpose of showing graphically the alleged scene of the murder, room 349, its position in relation to the rooms of other witnesses yet to be called and the route the state contends the wounded Rothstein took to the street down the servants' stairway.

Raymond's testimony was the feature of today's session.

He said that he knew Hyman (Gillie) Biller, indicted with McManus, and two unidentified for the murder, a McManus cashier and a pay-off man.

He said he knew the participants in the game, five of whom have already testified and others who haven't.

These include Meyer and Sam Boston, known as the "Solomon brothers," Martin (Red) Bowe, "Titanic" Thomas of Milwaukee, Joe Bernstein, James Meehan, the host, and McManus.

Raymond said he entered the game on Sunday morning at about 4 o'clock, some six hours after it had started, and played through until it ended at 10 o'clock that night.

NAMES NEW WITNESS

Raymond brought a new and unidentified player into the game, a "Charley," who won $15,000 from Rothstein.

He said he "bought" Meyer Boston's lucky seat, in explaining how he knew that Boston had won.

"How much did you win or lose?" Pecora asked.

"I lost in cash and won in paper," he said.

"How much?"

"Nineteen thousand in cash and $219,000 in I. O. U.'s."

He never collected the I. O. U.'s.

Raymond said he made his biggest bets with Rothstein.

"How high did you bet with Rothstein on any one play?"

"Forty thousand," said Raymond unblinkingly.

On that deal, against his objections, Rothstein "cut" the cards.

"Did you win or lose?" Pecora asked.

"I won."

NO INQUIRY IN STUDENT DEATH

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 29 (AP)—Finding in the death by poison of Marshall Driggs Taylor of Jacksonville, Fla., Yale sophomore, found dead in bed Wednesday morning, probably will not be made by Deputy Coroner James J. Corrigan, it was stated at his office today.

Corrigan was engaged in an inquest into a homicide in which a negro was killed and another seriously wounded in a brawl.

The coroner's office said today that probably the Taylor death inquiry was ended and the medical examiner's report would not be made public textually, as this is not done unless as a part of the coroner's formal finding.

Seeks Commutation for Convicted Slayer

Bridgeport, Ct., Nov. 29 (AP)—Governor John H. Trumbull was petitioned today by Attorney Leo Davis, counsel for John (Spirit) Feltovic, to call a special session of the board of pardons to review the case against Feltovic, with the hope that his sentence of death may be commuted to life imprisonment.

Feltovic is under sentence to be hanged December 10 for the murder of Lester Jacobs, chain store manager, of this city.

Posses Hunt Two Escaped Convicts

Joliet, Ill., Nov. 29 (INS)—Posses scoured the frozen country-side today for two Chicago convicts who escaped from the State penitentiary here.

Prison officials who had observed an airplane circling the walls believe the men were given clothing dropped from the plane.

The men, Ralph Furber, 32, and James C. Hill, 29, had been sentenced for confidence game and robbery respectively.

WOMEN TO GET HIGH POSTS IN CONGRESS

Washington, Nov. 29 (INS)—Feminine power and influence in the federal government will reach a new high state with the selection of women in the House of Representatives for important committee posts next week, leaders disclosed today.

Among the powerful committees on which the "feminine bloc" are expected to sit after a complete rearrangement of posts in the first few days of the new session are foreign affairs, banking and currency, naval and military affairs.

The Republican women members are expected to fare far better than their Democratic colleagues, because the rearrangement is expected to increase the majority party's preponderance on virtually all committees.

Three women, Mrs. Kahn (R) California; Mrs. Rogers (R) Massachusetts, and Mrs. Norton (D) New Jersey, all have committee posts, but may receive additional assignments.

Mrs. Kahn is on the military affairs and census committees; Mrs. Rogers serves on World War veterans, Indian affairs and civil service committees, and Mrs. Norton on World War veterans, invalid pensions and public lands committees.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick (R.), Illinois, has been suggested for various committee posts, including agriculture and naval affairs.

Mrs. Ruth Pratt (R.), New York, is understood to be slated for the banking and currency committee. She is a multi-millionaire.

Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen (D.), Florida, is slated to take a place on the foreign affairs committee.

Mrs. Pearl Oldfield (D.), Arkansas, seeks assignment on the public buildings and grounds and World War veterans' committees.

Couple to Wed in Fox Hunt Costumes

Bridgeport, Nov. 29—Donald G. Perkins, in black velvet cap, red coat and gold breeches will be married Dec. 7 to Mrs. Margaret W. Bulkley, who will wear a top hat, black coat and black breeches. The honeymoon will start with a fox hunt in which guests will join.

Fight to Live Won

Valierie Ramiere, New York stage beauty, is convalescing from a dread disease laid to excessive dancing and sunburn. News of her improved condition was received jubilantly on Broadway. Miss Ramiere was a chum of the late Myrna Darby, whose tragic death was laid to the same disease. (International Newsreel photo.)

Doctor Accuses Man in Tar, Feathers Plot

Penticton, B. C., Nov. 29 (INS)—Accused of tarring and feathering Dr. V. E. Latimer, Charles E. Oliver, son of a former premier of British Columbia, was at liberty here today under bond.

Oliver was arrested upon the complaint of the doctor, who came into the police station dripping with tar and told officers that he had been kidnaped by three men, driven several miles from here and then coated with the tar and feathers. He said he recognized the voice of Oliver and accused him of being one of his assailants.

SEES BOOM FOR EXPORT OF AIR EQUIPMENT

Washington, Nov. 29 (INS)—America will improve its position as a world leader in the production and export of transportation equipment, through remarkable progress in manufacture and foreign sales of aeronautical equipment, Commerce Department officials said today.

Exports of airplanes during the first nine months of the year were more than double all of last year, having amounted to 275 machines valued at $4,397,000. Last year, according to Leighton W. Rogers, chief of the aeronautics trade division, less than 4 per cent of the airplane production was exported. This year he predicted the ratio of exports to production would be 8 per cent.

The unprecedented increase in exports of aeronautical products may be attributed to extension of United States airlines into Latin America and the West Indies," Rogers said.

AIR 'LIFELINE' GUIDES FLIER OVER OCEAN

Paris, Nov. 29 (INS)—A "wireless lifeline" that Nungesser and Coli were told to wait for before they started their ill-fated attempt to fly the ocean will be thrown across the sea to safeguard future transatlantic fliers.

The "lifeline" was only partly woven when the ill-starred airmen asked for it in May, 1927. The inventor, William Loth, told them it would be three years before he could aid them. He has now announced to the French Academy of Sciences that his service to ocean hoppers will be rea[illegible] the next transatlantic season.

Loth utilizes Hertzian waves as light beams are now employed to guide ships, the intersecting point of diagonally opposed streams of light indicating the path to follow.

Two broadcasting stations in Spain and England will send out intersecting Hertzian waves along the aerial route that planes can safely pursue.

The intersectional point is receivable on an ordinary wireless set and the varying volume of the signal indicates how far off the path the plane has strayed.

Loth says his system has been tried out on a distance of 400 nautical miles. He also plans to give aviators weather reports while they are in flight and guide them around storm areas.

Football Wins Yale Man Mexico Degree

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 29 (AP)—For his "services in character building and his tremendous personal popularity," Reginald Root, a Yale graduate of 1926 and former Eli football player, has been voted an honorary degree by the University of Mexico, according to the Yale News today.

Root is believed to be the first American upon whom Mexico university has conferred such an honor. It is said that honorary degrees are rarely conferred in any circumstances by that institution. Root has been in Mexico introducing American football in the colleges.

Takes Half-Million Insurance at 69

New York, Nov. 29 (INS)—Frank Melville, Jr., president of the Melville Shoe Corporation, who lacks one year of having lived his allotted three score and ten, is such a good risk that he is taking out $500,000 worth of insurance.

Melville, 6 feet 1 inch in height, weighing 180 pounds and minus any signs of waistline, ascribes his remarkable condition to cowpunching in Wyoming in his younger days.

Dies of Indigestion on Thanksgiving Day

Bridgeport, Ct., Nov. 29 (AP)—The Rev. Charles Mercer Hall, 65, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church and son-in-law of the late Judge Alton B. Parker, Democratic candidate for President in 1904, is dead here after an attack of acute indigestion on Thanksgiving Day.

He is survived by his wife, Berthan Parker Hall, and two children, Alton Parker Hall of Fairfield and Mrs. Theodore Oxholm of Staten Island, N. Y.

Mrs. Anne B. White Dead in Syracuse, 63

Clifton Springs, N. Y., Nov. 29 Mrs. Anne Bruce White of Syracuse, widow of Frederick D. White, died at the Clifton Springs Sanitarium today, after a three-months' illness. She was 63.

Her husband was a son of the late Andrew D. White, who was ambassador to Germany and Russia and a former president of Cornell University.

New Group of Sun Spots Observed by Astronomer

Buenos Aires, Nov. 29 (AP)—The Argentine astronomer, Martin Gil, has announced that he has observed an extraordinary group of spots on the sun from the western border to about 20 degrees beyond the central meridian. This is more than one-half of the solar disk, an area that he estimates at about 417,000 miles.

The largest spot is circular in form and has a diameter of 27,8[illegible] miles. Senor Gil began to notice the spots five or six days ago.

CURTIUS FLAYS VOTE ON DEBT

Berlin, Nov. 29 (INS)—Continuation of the foreign policies of the late Gustav Stresemann, former foreign minister of Germany, was pledged by his successor, Dr. Julius Curtius in his first speech before the Reichstag today.

The new foreign minister bitterly denounced the referendum against the Young plan for reparations payments to be held next month as "dishonest and suicidal." He challenged Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, leader of the Nationalist party and sponsor of the referendum, on certain angles of the plebiscite.

73 Volunteer to Give Blood to Woman

Newark, N. J., Nov. 29 (AP)—Mrs. Calemia Delpomo lay on a cot in Newark Memorial Hospital near death today despite the proffer of blood by 73 volunteers.

A strange anemic condition which agglutinized the woman's blood, caused doctors to issue an appeal for a pint of the fluid, from Radio Station WOR. Seventy-three persons of the thousands listening in sacrificed their Thanksgiving dinner to come to the hospital and wait for hours while physicians tested their blood. Not one was found whose blood mingled properly with that of the patient's.

HIT BY CRASH IN STOCKS, KILLS WIFE AND SELF

Chicago, Nov. 29 (AP)—Records indicating heavy losses on the stock market today offered a possible motive for the double tragedy in which James B. Pauley, wealthy coal mine operator, shot and killed his wife and himself in their hotel suite here.

The double shooting occurred as the middle-aged couple were dressing preparatory to leaving for the home of friends where they were to be guests at Thanksgiving dinner.

Pauley, who was chairman of the Miami Coal Company, is believed to have yielded to a sudden impulse when he shot his wife, according to Coroner Herman M. Bundesen. Gripped in Mrs. Pauley's hand when her body was found was a magazine opened at a crossword puzzle which she had been working. There was a bullet wound in her right temple.

Clad in a dressing gown, the body of Pauley was found on the bathroom floor. Beside him was a .32 calibre revolved with two empty chambers. It was evident, according to police, that Pauley had shot his wife and then walked into the bathroom and killed himself before a mirror.

An impatient chauffeur waiting to drive them to their friends' home for dinner was responsible for the investigation that revealed the tragedy.

Pauley's recent ill health, together with numerous documents found in the apartment showing heavy stock transactions, are believed by police to furnish a motive for the tragedy.

Mrs. Pauley before her marriage to the coal magnate was Elinor Ludlow, a famed Ohio beauty. The late Governor Asa Bushnell of Ohio was her uncle. Before her marriage to Pauley she had been reported engaged to Capt. Richmond Pearson Hobson, hero of the Merrimac in the Spanish-American war.

MGR. McGRATH 60 YEARS IN SOMERVILLE

Today marks the 60th anniversary of the coming to Somerville of the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Christopher T. McGrath, first and only pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Union sq., and the oldest priest in the Archdiocese of Boston.

Monsignor McGrath, who is 87, was ordained to the priesthood 64 years ago next month. He was a close friend of the late Rev. Patrick J. Power, at whose grave in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden, many cures were recently reported.

More than 250 members of St. Joseph's Alumnae gathered in St. Joseph's Church to show their appreciation to their pastor, attending solemn benediction. After this service, Miss Priscilla C. Smith presented Monsignor McGrath with a purse of gold containing several hundred dollars and a beautiful bouquet of 60 red roses, one for each year of his service.

Monsignor McGrath enjoys remarkable health for a man of his years. When he assumed charge of the pastorate 60 years ago, St. Joseph's parish was the only one in Somerville, and a short time later he erected the first Catholic church in the city, the present St. Joseph's Church in Union sq.

Monsignor McGrath was born in East Boston in January, 1843, and received his elementary school education there. He attended college at Kingston, Ontario, and took a theological course in St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore, where he was ordained to the priesthood on December 23, 1865. He was first appointed an assistant at the Church of the Most Holy Redeemer in East Boston. He served there one year, when he was assigned to the Church of the Immaculate Conception in Lawrence, where he remained for four years until November 29, 1869, when he was assigned to establish a Catholic parish in Somerville.

Before Monsignor McGrath came to Somerville, its Catholic residents were without a pastor or church. Somerville Catholics first assembled for worship in their own community on December 23, 1869, in Hawkins Hall, which occupied the whole second floor of the old Masonic block.

There was organized St. Joseph's Society, which was the beginning of St. Joseph's parish. In the early seventies, Monsignor McGrath hired the Foster school hall on Sycamore st., and celebrated mass there for the residents of Winter Hill and South Medford.

In October, 1877, he purchased the land for St. Ann's Church, and 11 years later made a similar purchase on Spring Hill, on which now stands the beautiful Church of St. Catherine of Genoa. In recognition of his invaluable work, he was designated an irremovable parish priest, and was further honored by the late Pope Benedict by having the title of Monsignor conferred on him, more than a dozen years ago.

Pope Receives Hindenburg Gift

Vatican City, Nov 29. Pope Pius received a gift from President von Hindenburg of Germany, consisting of a reproduction of the celebrated red table service made for Frederick the Great at Berlin in 1768.

The present, which was brought by the German ambassador, was accompanied by a letter from President von Hindenburg, congratulating Pope Pius on the 50th anniversary of entering the priesthood.

Caveman Meets Old Friends in Wilds

By BURT M. McCONNELL

On the Bear Trap Lake (Que.), Indian Trail, Nov. 18, by Courier to Normandin—For the first time since I came into the Quebec wilderness, almost two months ago, to make my living with the bow and arrow, I regretted day before yesterday that I did not have a rifle, as I stood on the bank of the big river and watched a wounded bull moose battle his way through the ice to the opposite shore.

In order to forge ahead he was obliged to rear on his hind legs and smash the inch-thick ice with his forefeet. Crashing blows they were, but each effort took a severe toll of his waning strength.

Apparently it was well-nigh gone, for the current carried him several feet between plunges. He was about 40 yards out when I arrived at the shore of the big river—just out of my cross-bow's range—and making a game and desperate struggle to reach the other side, about 30 feet farther on. Just as I got my camera unlimbered and ready for a shot, he gained his feet.

Utterly exhausted, he stood there, paying no attention whatever to me, breathing heavily. It was then that I wished for a rifle—to end his pain.

DISAPPEARS IN WOODS

Having taken one picture, I set the camera down and fumbled around in the carrying case for the telephoto lens—for he was almost out of range of Schneider F 3 lens. But, having recuperated to a certain extent the moose (a bull about three years old,) became suspicious of my actions, wheeled and staggered ashore.

The long-range lens was left in the case and I rose to my feet to get another with the Schneider. In less than ten seconds he had disappeared into the woods, the most forlorn animal figure I have ever seen.

Reluctantly, I turned homeward. From his recent show of energy, the moose might go on for days. My food supply was almost exhausted, and my spirits were low because of the moose's suffering. Two miles up the river I camped in a clump of spruce and built myself a good fire.

OLD CAMP BUSTLING

Soon after daybreak I was on my way and within half an hour came to what was called in a previous dispatch "the Indian camping site." But what a change in two weeks. Whereas all had been silence before, now I was greeted by the deep baying of two or three dogs. Fortunately for me, they were tied to their kennels. A large tent stood where nothing had been before, and on a new rack lay a suggestive pile, covered over with the grayish-black hide of a freshly killed moose. These were the hunters!

Almost at the first note of the dogs, the flaps of the tent were unfurled, and into the crisp morning air stepped an Indian. Tingling with excitement at this chance encounter, and mentally comparing this Indian with the Uncas and Chingachgook of my boyhood, I walked, with thumping heart but outward serenity, toward the tent.

"Bon jou'" I called out, at a distance of 40 paces. (Quebec Indians all speak French.)

"Bon jou'," replied the stocky figure. There was something familiar about that figure.

Just then another figure, taller and younger than the first, popped out of the tent. He was an absolute stranger, but I was certain that I had seen the first one somewhere. Normandin? St. Thomas Dydime? Lake James—that was it! I had photographed him and his family on the way up-river in September, and had given him half a dollar for posing. That was a good investment! Still approaching the tent, I racked my brain for his name. Barney; no. Bar-Barnabee; that was it.

"Hello, Barnabee," I greeted him.

"Bon jou'," was his reply. "Le photographeur," he said, in an aside to the other. We shook hands. "Francois," he nodded, as if I ought to know who Francois was. Francois and I shook hands.

DANGER LIES IN REDUCING DIETS

Unless They Have Bulk, Constipation is Inevitable

Today thousands of young women and girls are wondering why they are so miserable as they diet to reduce.

The trouble is that many of the new diets lack roughage which is necessary to clean the intestinal system. The symptoms are headaches, "gone" feelings and bad complexions. If allowed to continue constipation with its evils occurs.

By including Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in a reducing diet, you keep fit as you take off weight because you prevent constipation.

ALL-BRAN does not add fat to the body. It just sweeps the intestines clean of poisonous wastes. No pills nor drugs can play the part of ALL-BRAN in a reducing diet. Their dose has to be constantly increased and harmful results often follow.

You will like the appetizing, nut-sweet flavor of ALL-BRAN. Eat it in soups. On salads. Soaked in orange, prune or fruit juice. As a cereal with milk or cream. Delicious with honey added. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily — in chronic cases with every meal.

DOCTOR TERMS LOVE JUST A DISEASE

Munich (AP)—To millions of men and women the world over love may still be life's great romance, but to Dr. Waldemar Schweissheimer it is nothing more than a disease to be compared with measles. This physician has just published a volume—"Love Only a Disease"—in which he subjects love to purely clinical laboratory analysis.

He draws a parallel between love and measles and contends that in the person "afflicted" with love there is a disposition for the "disease." He explains that, just like a cold, it is not caught by every person who shakes hands with another, so the love-germs are not inoculated in everyone indiscriminately.

He then argues that, as in all infections, the "love-disease" has its incubation period between its inception and crisis. This, he writes, is similar to the incubation period in diphtheria. The infection does not make one violently ill immediately after the germs have lodged themselves in the human system. Love at first sight, the physician holds, is as exceptional as the sudden breaking out of scarlet fever.

Once the "love-disease" has broken out, Dr. Schwessheimer says, its symptoms are indubitable. The eye is blurred, the face becomes pale, the heart palpitates, sleep is irregular and the sufferer loses weight. Those unhappy in love may fade away like flowers deprived of sunshine and water. On the other hand, as faded flowers are brouht back to life by sunsine and water, such lovelorn who see their love reciprocated will recover.

Nobile Plans New Flight to Arctic

Berlin, Nov. 29 (INS)—Umberto Nobile, leader of the ill-fated Italia expedition to the North Pole, has not given up his dreams of conquering the Arctic.

"I hope to raise enough money from the books I have written to finance a new Arctic expedition," he said today.

The Italian dirigible Commander whose craft was broken in two by fierce Arctic storms and was consequently stranded for weeks with those of his crew that survived before airplanes finally located and

The celebration took place in the Dallin residence on Oakland ave., Arlington Heights. Dallin was 68 years old, November 22, and Mrs Dallin's 68th birthday is today.

LOSS OF FLINT BANK BY THEFT $2,000,000

Flint, Mich., Nov. 29 (INS)—Union Industrial Bank stockholders meet here today to determine who will pay the $3,592,000 loss involved in embezzlements from the bank.

The total loss is the $3,592,000 figure but, after subtraction of the amount covered by surety company bonds, the net loss to the stockholders is believed to be about $2,000,000.

Charles S. Mott, acting president of the bank, insured its soundness with a loan of $3,500,000 after the loss was discovered. Mott will address the stockholders and directors at their meeting.

Six persons arrested Wednesday increased to 18 the number of bank officials and employes accused in connection with the bank's losses.

Among the latest arrested was Grant J. Brown executive officer of the bank for 20 years, who resigned the presidency when the bank examiners uncovered the colossal shortage.

Unlike the others who are charged with embezzlement, Brown is charged with making false entries in his report to bank examiners as of Dec. 31, 1928.

According to Prosecutor Charles D. Beagle, Brown reported his personal debt to the bank at that time was $55,000, whereas he owed $100,000. Beagle has said more warrants are to be issued.

Vatican Makes Full Death 'Plot' Probe

Vatican City, Nov. 29 (AP)—A semi-official communique issued this afternoon said that the Vatican authorities are determined that the fullest possible light shall be shed on all phases of the attempted assassination on Monsignor Smit, former apostolic vicar of Norway, by Marguerite Gudum.

Denying statements that the case would not be pressed because the woman was of infirm mind, the statement said: "The examination is proceeding and will continue for several days more."

7 Miners Killed by Blast Cave-in

Swansea, Wales, Nov. 29 (AP)—Seven men were killed in an explosion at Wernbwl, a small mine mid way between the villages of Penclawdd and Three Crosses, near here, last night. Most of the 40 miners in the pit were able to rush for safety. The seven, however were entombed by heavy slides from the roof.

Cambridge Man Loses $275 by Old Swindle

Peter Tarzian of Harwick st., Cambridge, reported to the police today that he had been robbed of $275 in one of the oldest swindles known.

A stranger, pretending he wanted a guide about the city, induced Tarzian to put up the money as a guarantee of good faith.

While Tarzian was in the house informing his wife he would not be home for a few hours the stranger departed.

Safe Robber, 15, Flees Police Cell

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 29—Forcing open the doors of his cell and walking quickly through a crowd of policemen in police headquarters, James Trinkly, 15-year-old safe robber, made a successful escape.

He tore off a side bar of his steel cot and employed it as a lever in prying open the doors of his cell in the detention home, where he had been confined since his recent arrest on a charge of being implicated in a series of safe robberies in this city.

ATTACK RADIO BOARD IN COURT AND CONGRESS

Washington, Nov. 29—With the General Electric Co. attacking in the Supreme Court the Federal Radio Commission's power to revoke or modify licenses, congressional foes of the commission today were preparing a legislative attack on the very life of the body, placing it in double jeopardy.

The commision's life expires on December 31 under the radio act of 1927 and its powers revert to the Commerce Department. If its opponents succeed in filibustering a bill to prolong it the body will die a natural death. If the high court upholds the lower court opinions it will retain only the scant power to issue licenses without regulatory authority.

In the Supreme Court General Electric Co. Station WGY is attacking the commission's power to revoke or modify licenses, and if the favorable opinions of the lower courts are upheld the commisison will be virtually shorn of power. It will have left only the function of formal issuance of licenses without any exercise of discretion.

Meanwhile, foes in Congress of the present system of radio control through the commission are preparing to fight legislation to extend the life of the commission.

The fight in Congress looms interesting. Rep. White (R.) of Maine has announced that he will propose a bill to extend the commission's life for one year, and Senator James Couzens (R.) of Michigan will sponsor a similar bill in the Senate.

Will Melt Snow, But Damage Tires

Editor Boston American:

The daily press gave some prominence lately to the use of special chemical, mixed with water, used to melt snow in Boston streets.

I think I know what this chemical is and while it gets rid of snow at less expense to the City of Boston, it may play havoc with the automobile tires' and hoofs of horses that come in contact with it.

It is very serviceable in breaking up ice gorges in rivers, but to apply it to streets in getting rid of snow is in my mind questionable. It may damage leather as well as rubber shoes.

Doctor Hits Old Tradition on Colds

Editor Boston American:

A doctor, lately discoursing on colds in a series of health talks in this city, among other matters, rapped some of old traditions about colds.

This one specially was open to rebuke: "Feed a cold and starve a fever."

Among other matters in dealing with colds, he said, a cold is a fever, the inflammation being localized in the respiratory mucous membranes and overloading the stomach is directly harmful

"Don't eat meats, gravy, fried food or richly spiced food." he said. "These are to be avoided. Eat plenty of fruit."

This is a new idea about colds, and I thought your readers would be interested in knowing this, so I pass it along.

Say Wheat Straw Lumber "the Thing"

Editor Boston American:

That proposition of makin' lumber out of compressed whe straw is no dream. I heard of it and went down one mile north of Regina, Tenn., where you will see the machinery for making this lumber.

I saw boards 14 feet long, five feet wide and two inches thick. The wheat straw is put under a pressure of 100 pounds to the square inch. Then it is laced with wire.

There you have your building material of the future. It is fireproof and sound-proof. Nothing seems impossible these days.

I do not think any of this kind of lumber, has reached New England as yet. If any of your readers know of this, I hope that they will use this column in making it known.

Country Minister Raps Low Salaries

Editor Boston American:

A Boston minister, in retiring from the pastorate, said in his farewell sermon that ministers of this generation should inspire

I am a minister in a small country town in New England My salary is not equal to my expenses. My family must stint itself all the time. For months I never see any salary. My expenses keep going higher and higher.

My condition is such that I cannot get up any inspiration. I wish that some of these city ministers would live in a small country town for a few years and try to get inspiration from what one receives for his services

You know, I think some people who go to church place a minister in the class with orchids. This plant or flower lives on air.

Minister Lists Views on Liquor

Editor Boston American:

Rev. John R. Oliver of Baltimore, Md., Episcopal minister and author, has circulated his views against prohibition under six heads to the ministers of his denomination.

They are as follows:

1—Alochol is a medicine and should be available for all.

2—Wine has inspired much of our finest literary productions.

3—Prohibition has increased rather than diminished crime.

4—Prohibition has been degrading to our educational institutions.

5—The Saviour sanctioned the use of wine by His miracles and the Lord's Supper.

6—Prohibition is disgusting to me personally.

Brains as Well as Heart Helps Marriage

Editor Boston American:

I would like to find out what constitutes a happy marriage. I have heard so much talk about this subject that I would like to hear from the married couples.

A married man said to me recently: "Marriage is like a plant, it must grow or die. One's love either grows or it fades.

"Love must be fed You have to look after a plant or feed a canary bird. So with marriage, the love in it must be looked after.

"Don't get married unless you put a good stock of gray matter into it as well as your heart.

Grand Jury Urges Sullivan Law Repeal

New York, Nov. 29 (INS)—The November grand jury in a presentment handed up to Judge Nova in County Court, Brooklyn, today, urges repeal or at least modification of the Sullivan law which prohibits the carrying of arms by citizens without a special permit.

The presentment declared that the Sullivan law conflicts with the constitution of the United States, which permits every citizen to bear arms. It also characterized the law as a "breeder of crime against law-abiding citizens."

Wealthy Couple Found Dead in Hotel

Chicago, Nov. 29 James C Pauley, 56, reputed millionaire coal operator, and his wife Mrs. Elinor Ludlow Pauley, 50, were found shot to death in a room in the Ambassador Hotel here

Police said indications were Pauley had killed his wife and then ended his own life. They were told Pauley was a heavy loser in recent stock market declines, and in addition had been despondent because of ill health.

Lobbyists at Washington are said to be losing all patience with radical United States Senators who stick their noses into Government affairs.

News Item—

"William Burgess, vice president of the U. S. Potters' Association denied he was a lobbyist, but explained that the potters paid him $7500 per year to represent them in Washington, that the National Electrical Manufacturers' Association paid him $2500 for the same purpose and the National Association of Wool Manufacturers $1800. He also did business on a contingent basis for the greeting card industry."

What this country seems to need is a good working definition of lobbyist.

Continuous Performance of Society Exposé! Readers' Endurance Records Broken!

Critical Note—"Colonel" Dick Maple of Indiana writes with charm and valor concerning Washington society, but we regret to report that he suddenly abandons the fate of Clara Middle (whose disappearance worried him in last week's excerpts) and begins to fret about—but let him tell us in his own delightful way—

Ruth Willmore was blessed with everything that goes to make a lovable woman, as she possessed a sunny disposition, was fair of face and form, dreamy eyes and an intellect that was the pride of both relatives and friends.

Many who will read this will call to memory the fate of this poor, miserable creature; however, this is the first time the true history of her awful fate was ever written.

As you know, she was—

COALITION PITS WHOLE FORCE AGAINST VARE

Washington, Nov. 29—A life-long Democrat will represent the solidly Republican state of Pennsylvania in the Senate for the first time in modern history if a Democratic-Insurgent coalition succeeds in its present plan to unseat Senator-elect William S. Vare (R) in favor of William B. Wilson, Democrat, and a member of the wartime cabinet of Woodrow Wilson.

Leaders of the coalition announced today they would try to seat Wilson on the ground that Vare's election was void because of fraud, irregularities and corruption.

There appeared little likelihood of the coalition winning, however, because Vare polled an official majority of 200,000 votes, which will have to be thrown out by the Senate before Wilson would be entitled to the seat.

The whole contest, which opens in the Senate next Tuesday, revolves around the question of election frauds in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, the two machine-controlled cities which gave tremendous majorities to Vare in 1926. The clash over the seat has no direct connection with the effort to bar Vare because of expenditures in the preceding primary.

Consequently, even should the contest be decided in Vare's favor he probably would be ejected because of the primary contest.

The fight for Wilson will be handled by Senator Norris (R) Nebraska, insurgent leader, and Senator Caraway (D) Arkansas.

Bandits Tie Up 8, Rob Safe of $18,000

Chicago, Nov. 29 (AP)—Seven masked men entered the office of the Case & Martin Pie Co. Thanksgiving Day, broke open the safe and escaped with $18,000.

The bandits rounded up eight employes of the plant, tied them hand and foot and placed sacks over their heads.

690 Pounds of Opium, U. S. Bound, Seized

Marseilles, Nov. 29 (INS)—Believed by authorities to have been destined for the United States, a shipment of 690 pounds of opium, valued at $30,000, was seized by customs officials aboard the French liner Theophile Gauthier here today.

"Child Marriage Strike" in Bombay

Bombay, India, Nov. 29 (AP)—The city was without meat or cabs [illegible] of a religious strike called by a section of the Moslem population in protest against the child marriage restraint act.

The act was recently passed by the Indian Legislative Assembly.

Among the holiday weddings which united popular Greater Boston couples was that at Sacred Heart Church, Watertown, in which Miss Anna Riley became the bride of Neil Sullivan. Both bride and groom reside in Cambridge, where they are widely known.

Drive Puts End to "Quack" Remedies

Washington, Nov. 29 (INS) The crusade against "quack" remedies for influenza during the 1928 epidemic was listed by the U. S. food, drug and insecticide administration as its greatest campaign against falsely labeled medicine.

With the co-operation of the Federal Trade Commission, empowered to curb deceptive advertising, the drug board reported in its report today for the last fiscal year it had cleared the market of most of the alleged "immediate cures."

Attach Headstone Slain Man Ordered

Springfield, Nov. 29—A writ of attachment has been placed on a headstone in Indian Orchard cemetery. The stone was ordered by Alexander Flebotte for a relative. Flebotte, who paid $25, half of the purchase price, was murdered on the night of September 17. His widow saw the stone and declared it did not conform to the order made by her husband. She refused to complete the payments.

Legal action followed and Deputy Sheriff Simon P. Griffin served notice of attachment.

Turkey Brings Missing Boy Home

A turkey roasting in the oven of his mother's kitchen range is believed to have been responsible for the return home of 14-year-old Roland Remmilard of Tremont st., Cambridge, who has been missing since last Tuesday.

Just as the family was about to give up hope and sit down to their dinner with a vacant chair, in walked the prodigal very penitent but silent. He was welcomed but when asked where he had been, he refused to tell.

Cambridge Mother Held as Shoplifter

Mrs. Nancy De Liegro, 47, mother of four children, of Flint st., Somerville, is booked to appear in East Cambridge Court today to face a charge of shoplifting, as the result of her arrest by police of the Central sq., Cambridge, station.

149,995 ACRES RECLAIMED IN PAST YEAR

Washington, Nov. 29 (AP)—Engineers of the reclamation service, by putting water where there was no water before, turned 149,995 acres of gray desert into blossoming farm land during 1929.

This addition to the irrigated land of the country brought the total to 2,677,100 acres, bearing crops valued at $143,573,070, an increase in value of $10,365,860 over the last fiscal year.

Engineering policies of the reclamation service, Commissioner Mead said today in his annual report, had demonstrated their soundness, but economic phases of reclamation, in the commissioner's opinion, are still drifting. With this in mind, he has called for an economic survey of the entire field and expects it to be completed during the fiscal year of 1930.

The future of reclamation, he added, would depend largely on the results of this investigation. It is believed that data to be gathered will be useful in determining what can and should be done to improve conditions on projects already running, and in aiding Congress to enact desirable legislation.

Harrison Bailed in Gastonia Killing

Charlotte, N. C., Nov. 29 (AP)—Joseph Harrison, Passaic, N. J., National Textile Workers' Union organizer, under sentence of 17 to 20 years in prison, was released from the county jail today on $5000 cash bond pending appeal.

With five other union leaders and members he was convicted in October of the murder of O. F. Aderholt, chief of police of Gastonia, during a strike disturbance.

Vare to Appear in Own Defense

Philadelphia, Nov. 29 (AP)—Senator-elect William S. Vare said today he would be in Washington next week ready to appear before the Senate in his own defense when the Norris resolution to bar him as a member of that body because of alleged excessive campaign expenditures comes up. He will leave here Sunday, and will make his headquarters in the office assigned to him in the Senate office building.

Girl Is Poisoned by Wrong Bottle

New London, Ct., Nov. 29 (AP)—Victim of a mistake, Helen Elizabeth Reardon, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Harry Reardon, Cohanize, Waterford, and popular member of the senior class at Williams Memorial Institute, is dead at the Lawrence and Memorial Associated Hospitals, from poisoning.

Miss Reardon complained of a headache and was advised to take a remedy. Going into the darkened bathroom, the girl reached into a medicine chest and took out a bottle. Instead of the expected sedative, it contained a deadly poison.

MOVIES SHELVE BOOKS AS JOY FOR CHILDREN

Chicago, Nov. 29 (AP)—Alice Miller Mitchell, acting for the Wetboldt Foundation, set out to determine whether books or the movies held the greater appeal as entertainment for children, and the result of her study has revealed a marked leaning toward the movies.

She said 90.6 per cent of the 10,052 children studied attended the movies. Only 1.17 per cent definitely said they did not go to picture shows, most of them remaining away because of religious beliefs.

The children were divided into three groups for purposes of the study—average school children, delinquents, and Boy and Girl Scouts. The delinquent child's attendance at the movies exceeded that of other groups.

Girl Scouts and high school girls were the only ones to express a preference for books. The greatest indifference to reading was found among delinquents.

ARGUMENTS IN AD CASE HEARD

Washington, Nov. 29 (AP)—The Federal Trade Commission today heard final arguments on charges of restraint of trade through unfair competition brought against national associations of advertising agencies and newspaper publishers in are maintenance of a fixed commission for agencies handling advertising accounts.

Eugene W. Burr, attorney handling the prosecution for the commission, argued that the American Association of Advertising Agencies, the American Newspaper Publishers Association, the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association, the American Press Association and the Six Point League of New York were seeking to compel advertisers to place their national advertising business through agencies approved by the American association.

Counsel for the four respondents were to present separate arguments at the conclusion of the commission's case. The American Press Association and the Six Point League are organizations of special advertising agencies which handle national advertising business for many of the country's daily newspapers.

PoetNotSoHandsome in True-to-Life Bust

New York, Nov. 29—A question as to accuracy of traditional likenesses of Percy Bysshe Shelley has presented itself here as a result of the purchase in England by the Rosenbach Co. of a bust of the poet by the wife of his friend, Leigh Hunt.

This is considered the only bust modeled after a personal study of Shelley during his life.

Corroboration is not to be found in this work of the sentimentalized portraiture of Shelley which became popular after his death. The face is much plainer than it appears in these popular pieces. The chin recedes, yet the resemblance of this bust to the poet is said sometimes to have startled Leigh Hunt.

The bust was intended to serve as the original for a marble portrait of Shelley to be placed on his tomb in Rome. This intention, however, was never realized and the work has come to America like many other Shelley mementoes.

Aside from its value in relation to Shelley the bust is of unusual association value, having been owned by Thomas Carlyle and Robert Browning. At an auction sale in London in 1913 it was catalogued and sold as a bust of William Shergold Browning, uncle of Robert Browning, but was identified subsequently as a portrait of Shelley.

Bus Driver Avoids Plunge Into River

Newburyport, Nov. 29—Henry S. Lever, of Dennis st., Roxbury, driver of a Queen bus line sedan, by a quick decision narrowly averted a plunge into the icy waters of the Merrimac river as he was suddenly confronted by the open draw of the Newburyport bridge. A tragedy threatening the life of himself and three passengers was averted as he turned his steering wheel sharply and the large car crashed into one of the steel uprights on the side of the bridge.

LABOR AND BAR URGE COURTHOUSE

HOLD TERMS BEST CITY CAN GET

Valuable Records in Jeopardy, Says Rackemann; Labor Says Work Is Needed

Deplorable conditions existing at the Pemberton sq. courthouse warrant the city's acceptance of the act which will initiate the proposed $5,000,000 addition, Charles S. Rackemann, chairman of the committee named by the Boston Bar Association to follow the matter, declared today.

While Rackemann agreed that the act was not a fair one to the city of Boston, he said that valuable records were jeopardized in the present building and believed that the city could get no better terms from the Legislature.

An appeal for immediate acceptance of the act will be made to the City Council Monday by the Building Trades Council, as a relief measure for the 8000 unemployed members in the building trades unions of Boston.

The labor organization will also base its appeal on the request of President Hoover that all public construction work possible be projected to assure a continuation of business prosperity.

E. A. Johnson, secretary of the trades council, has been delegated to draw up the communication.

In discussing the project, Attorney Rakemann said:

"I have been over the entire ground with all the officials at the courthouse, including the judges, register of probate and register of deeds and they all urge the necessity of immediate action. There is no doubt about it, conditions at the courthouse are awful and it is high time something was done to remedy them.

"If a fire should attack the building the loss would be appalling, as the building is not safe for the thousands of valuable records on file there, particularly records relative to land now on file in the registry of deeds.

CITY OVER-ASSESSED

"I believe the Boston City Council should accept the legislative act providing for the spending of $5,000,000 for a new courthouse or extension to the present building. My chief reason for that belief is that if the City Council does not accept the act by Dec. 31 the matter will have to go over to the next legislature. Under the terms of the act it must be accepted during the current year or it lapses.

"If the matter goes back to the legislature, our experience of the last two years shows that it will be another year before we can do anything.

"I feel that the present act is the best the Massachusetts Legislature will give the City of Boston although I am of the opinion that it is excessive for the city to pay 80 per cent of the cost of the building, as the act provides, while the State pays the remaining 20 per cent.

"The members of the Bar Association committee of which I am chairman think it is rather too much for the city to pay. We believe it would be fairer for the city to pay two-thirds of the cost and the [illegible]. We [illegible] State [illegible] than the Act [illegible] and [illegible] quarters [illegible] State [illegible].

"We [illegible] the Legislature would [illegible] could change the proportion of cost in the present act if it seems excessive and the Legislature sees fit to do so.

"The main thing, however, is to get something done."

FOR MODIFIED PLAN

The committee of which Atty. Rackemann [illegible] of a modification of plan No. 1 of the special legislative commission appointed by the 1928 Legislature, which consisted of Atty. Henry [illegible] Wyman, chairman; Atty. Joseph P. Lyons and Sheriff John A. Keliher.

Plan No. 1 provides for extension of the present courthouse in a northerly direction down the hill as far as Howard st. and the taking of [illegible] square feet of land for that purpose.

The Bar Association committee advocates the acceptance of this plan, but believes the proposed extension should go down to Court st., instead of stopping at Howard st.

Of this modification the Bar Association committee says: "This further extension toward the north would make possible a lower building than is shown on any one of the three plans of the special commission.

"Furthermore the use of interior light wells or open spaces can be eliminated and all the rooms in the building can receive light and air from the outside, thus making, in our opinion, a better utilization of the space occupied than is shown either under original Proposition No. 1 or original Proposition No. 2.

FAVORS LOW BUILDING

"We consider that the building laws should be observed and that the Legislature should not make an exception to them in this case for the reason, first, the laws have been passed after very careful [illegible] to protect the city from [illegible] buildings which are hazardous in their nature and tend to undue congestion, and second, because excessively tall buildings are [illegible] for all time."

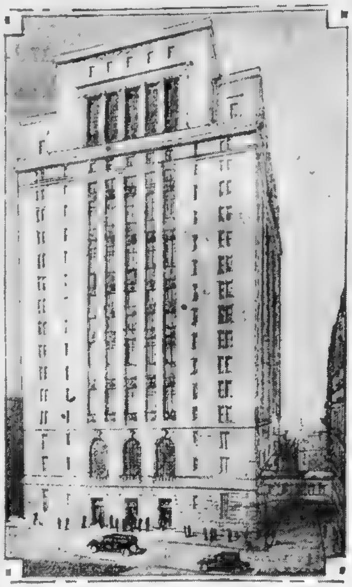
The two modifications of plan No. 1 advocated by the Bar Association committee are somewhat similar and a courthouse eight stories high within the 155-foot [illegible]. The committee [illegible] plans No. 2 and 3 which [illegible] for much higher buildings. Plan 3 would include a tower. Mayor Nichols [illegible] the tower plan.

City Councilor Robert G. Wilson who is also an attorney said: "The legislative act for the construction of an extension of the courthouse or building a new one should be accepted by the Boston City Council. I introduced the order for acceptance of the act on August 5 last, when it was defeated. If Mayor Nichols had given my order his support last August, when I introduced it, it would have been passed. In my opinion it couldn't have helped passing if he had supported the order then.

The mayor has jeopardized acceptance of the act by leaving it without action until the last few days of his administration. If he had desired the acceptance of the act in August he could have secured enough votes in the council to have passed it, but I doubt if he can now.

I believe the present act is as good as can be expected from the Legislature. The East Boston tunnel bill doesn't give Boston any more of a break than the courthouse act does."

Courthouse Extension



Architect's drawing of how the courthouse extension would appear if the plan to extend the quarters of the Suffolk County judiciary to Howard st. is adopted. The total cost, including purchase of land, of this structure would be $7,693,730, according to estimates given out by the mayor's office.

Football Bonfire Becomes Real Blaze

Marlboro, Nov. 29—High school students celebrated the Marlboro high school team's 26 to 13 victory over Hudson high with a long parade with a bonfire at Ward Park. The bonfire got beyond control of the pupils who were caring for it, and the fire department had to extinguish the blaze which spread to dry grass in the park.

POPE, KING AND QUEEN TO HAVE NO AUDITORS

Only Richly Tapestried Walls to Hear Words of Dec. 5 Conference

Vatican City, Nov. 29 (AP)—If the walls of the throne room of the Vatican had ears they would hear words spoken next Thursday of historic interest. The speakers will be Pope Pius XI, King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena of Italy.

There will be no listeners except the walls. The Pope and the King and the Queen will be alone. The doors of the throne room will be closed.

It will be the first visit any King of Italy has made to any Pope. It will be of great significance. But only the walls will hear what the three noted personages say.

To American tourists who "do" the Vatican the throne room is unknown. It is not on the list of hundreds of rooms and salons they are permitted to visit. It is not in the guidebooks.

On the right, as one enters it, is the papal throne, a raised armchair richly ornamented, standing beneath a square canopy of red velvet embroidered in gold.

SIMPLY FURNISHED

Around the room are a few gilded chairs and several tables against the wall with religious ornaments upon them.

The room is very simply furnished. It might almost be called bare except that what furnishings there are are very rich.

The ceiling and upper walls are decorated with elaborate murals. The floor is covered by a Spanish carpet especially manufactured. It was presented to Pope Leo XIII.

The approach to the throne room is through a series of beautiful rooms. The King and Queen will first enter the magnificent Sala Clementina, a huge room with beautiful murals. Here a squadron of Swiss Guards is always on sentry duty at the entrance to the papal apartments.

From the Sala Clementina the King and Queen will walk through the Sala Degli Arazzi, or Hall of the Tapestries. In this room hang three great Gobelin tapestries presented to the Pope by Louis XV, of France.

GUARDS TO WAIT.

Between the Sala Deg'l Arazzi and the throne room is a small room in which the Noble Guard, composed of members of the papal nobility, has its post. This room leads to the Pope's private chapel.

Behind the throne room is the Pope's private library. Here the Pope receives privately. This is his working room.

Above these rooms are the Pope's living quarters. Below them are the rooms of the cardinal secretary of state.

When the King and the Queen enter the throne room they will find two chairs placed for them beside the throne. The King will take the one to the right, the queen the one to the left.

When their conversation begins the doors of the room will be closed. The attendants of the Pope and the attendants of the King will gather outside in the antechamber. The walls will be the only listeners.

Lost in the dim legends of the Marlborough Downs the reason why this comfortable old inn bears its curious name long has been forgotten.

A favourite sweet of Old England, the dainty "Biscuit," now lends its savour to American Hospitality

Out of the "inn," sung by poets, storied by novelists, came the crisp delight of the English Quality Biscuit. Centuries before the advent of the modern bake-shop, the inns developed and served this confection. It is the whole tradition and art of baking these famous sweets that has been brought to America by Weston.

As a tasty morsel of pastry to accompany iced desserts or a cup of tea, the "biscuit" is incomparable. Fine, blended flours, selected eggs and milk, the nectars of choice fruits, flavours such as chocolate or maple, and generous fillings as enticing as wisps of rich fragrance . . . these are the pure ingredients of Weston's English Quality Biscuits, baked in English ovens that have evolved through generations with the fine old art of biscuit making.

Whether it is a bite in a roadside inn, bridge at the house of a London hostess, tea at Rumpelmeyer's or Claridge's, you usually will find the "biscuit" forming a tasty part of the occasion. And so widely has its fame spread that people in all parts of the world have gone to the expense of importing it. But for Americans this expensive importation no longer is necessary.

Weston Imports the Whole Craft of the English Bake-Shop

The Weston Biscuit Corporation has brought over to America the English ovens and the recipe secrets that have been handed down from father to son through the generations. This means that you now can get English Quality Biscuits . . . Weston's English Quality Biscuits . . . just as oven-fresh and delicious as the biscuits that are served in the inns and drawing-rooms of England.

A Selected Assortment for 45c

You may buy them at your dealer's in attractive packages that contain a Selected Assortment for 45c, or you may buy them in bulk, selecting your favourites from Weston's enticing varieties. And these fresh biscuits cost only about half as much as the same quality of "biscuit" that has made the long voyage across the Atlantic and the expensive entry through the Customs House. Weston Biscuit Corporation, Toronto, New York, Watertown. Telephone, Middlesex 7400.

Not only the hungry and thirsty of the immortal Pickwick Papers found adequate refreshment beneath the ancient thatched roof of "The Wagon & Horses" at Beckhampton in Wiltshire. . . . Generations of wayfarers along the Bristol road have tarried to partake of fare sweetened by the crisp and dainty "biscuit."

for instance, CANUCK . . . the shape is patterned after the Canadian maple leaf, hence the name. And the filling is a rich maple cream.

or CHOCOLATE DELIGHT . . . the biscuit is rich with eggs and clear amber honey. The filling is melted chocolate blended with fragrant cocoa.

It would cost as much to establish unionism in some parts of the South as it would to establish Darwinism there.

Over a bridge of boats, the dignitaries of Venice have made their annual solemn crossing of the canal to the church of Santa Maria Della Salute "Holy Mary of Health," to give thanks for stopping the plague in 1630, just 299 years ago. Santa Maria Della Salute was built in gratitude when the plague was miraculously stopped after the building of the church had been promised.

In the prosaic days, authorities would put signs reading "you can not get Asiatic cholera unless by swallowing it. No raw fruit or other food, no water or milk unboiled." The world is less romantic, less interesting than in 1630, but there are few plagues

WIFE KILLS SELF AS HUBBY DIES

Florence, Italy, Nov. 29 (AP)—Lemuel G. Marty, Jr., whose home was in Kansas City, Mo., died during the night from a skull fracture which he suffered when he fell down a flight of stairs in a hotel last night, and his wife, the former Dorothy M. Easton, a native of New York, died this afternoon from shock caused by the tragedy.

Mr. and Mrs. Marty celebrated Thanksgiving at a dinner here last night. Marty started for the ballroom, a floor below, and fell the length of the stairs, being picked up unconscious from the dance floor. He died soon after at Vespucci Hospital.

Mrs. Marty collapsed and was taken to her hotel in a serious condition. Later she grew worse and was also taken to Vespucci Hospital, where she died this afternoon.

Doctors at the hospital later said that Mrs. Marty had died from a strong dose of a sedative, which she had taken because of her grief over the death of her husband.

Transfers Chelsea Hospital Commander

Portsmouth, N H Nov 29 (AP)—Announcement was made at the Portsmouth Navy Yard today that Capt. Robert E. Hoyt, U. S. N., medical corps, now in command of the Chelsea Naval Hospital, has been ordered to command of the naval hospital here. He will assume his duties about Jan. 1

British Lord Weds Beauty in Secret

Edmonton, Canada, Nov. 29 (INS)—The secret marriage of Lord Cheylesmore, scion of an old British family, to Pearl Sundberg, beautiful blonde daughter of an Alberta farmer, was revealed here today.

Lord Cheylesmore, who was divorced 10 years ago from an English chorus girl, is now en route to Cuba for the racing season.

Many Women Taking Advantage of Present Situation in Fur Business

There are times when Furs, like stocks, due to unusual conditions, can be picked up at much below their real rock-bottom value. This is the situation NOW in the fur business. Merchants everywhere who anticipated a good business are confronted with the problem of getting the money out of their fur stocks to pay their current expenses. We are no exception. It is no longer a question of figuring profits. It's "stop-loss" selling NOW. Just as the soundest stocks were "thrown overboard at the market" in the stock market crash, so, we must unload ours, too.

These coats were carefully selected for style and value. If this had been an ordinary season we would have had no difficulty in selling them at regular prices. But we cannot keep them here now. We want you to come in and buy them—almost at your own figure. They are chiefly one or two of a kind, so that you will not see duplicates. Not all sizes in all furs and styles, perhaps, but so many coats that you will surely find what you want.

We urge you, for your own satisfaction, to COMPARE BEFORE YOU BUY—ANYWHERE!

SEEK RELEASE OF WOMAN IN LOVE PLOT

Chicago, Nov. 29 (INS)—The first move in a legal battle to keep Mrs. Genevieve O'Brien from the electric chair was scheduled today as defense attorneys sought the release of the woman who has been indicted as a conspirator in an alleged love plot which ended with the murder of her husband.

Attorneys for Samuel Howard Dorr, the widow's clandestine lover and landlord, have intimated they will try no such move on the part of their client, also under indictment for the fatal shooting of O'Brien.

When the coroner's jury returned indictments against the pair, it found Mrs. O'Brien had been implicated although she did not commit the actual slaying. Her attorneys are seeking her release on the plea she is being held as a material witness.

O'Brien was shot in his wife's bedroom when he surprised Dorr and his wife together early one morning. Dorr admitted firing the shots from his hiding place in the clothes closet, according to an alleged confession.

Jail Rioters Get 4 and 10 Years More

Auburn, N. Y., Nov. 29 (AP)—Two sentences of 10 years each and another of four years was imposed in court today upon three of the six convicts found guilty of rioting in the outbreak at state prison last July. The others await a new trial Monday to determine whether they are fourth offenders and thus liable to life terms.

Sentenced today were Hugh Bennett and Joseph Philips who were given 10 years each, and Chester Orvsing.

Half-Turkeys on Sale Next Thanksgiving

Washington, Nov. 29 (INS)—Before another Thanksgiving Day rolls around the poultry division of the Department of Agriculture will outline plans for the sale of half-turkeys, an economic step that should put turkey on perhaps twice as many tables and should stabilize the market for Thanksgiving turkeys.

Roy C. Potts, chief of the dairy and poultry division of the bureau of agricultural economics, said the average turkey consumption of one person at one meal is estimated at six ounces, and consequently a 10 pound bird seems more than is required by a family of the averages size.

Married 55 Years

Springfield, Nov. 29 (AP)—Fred W. Wells, who, with his wife, will celebrate the 55th anniversary of their wedding tomorrow, was for 46 years with the Boston & Maine railroad as a conductor until his retirement in 1924. Mr. and Mrs. Wells are both active.

Mexican Cabinet Naming Is Scouted

Mexico City, Nov. 29 (AP)—Dispatches from Nogales, Ariz., to the effect that the tentative cabinet of President-elect Pascual Ortiz Rubio is virtually completed, are regarded here in the best informed circles as entirely premature.

It is believed here the President-elect will make no effort even to select a tentative slate until his forthcoming visit to the United States is completed.

Deception Island, South Shetlands, Nov. 27 (via S. S. Melville and San Francisco Examiner KLP station)—Pilot Cheeseman, flying the monoplane San Francisco, had our first accident of the season.

Cheeseman was unhurt but the tailskid and underpart of the fuselage were torn off as he landed on a pile of rocks. The machine maintained its upright position.

Our landing field is unavoidably narrow and lined on either side with rocks, removed when we made the runway last year.

A cross wind sprang up during a lengthy trial flight, making extremely it difficult to land. A margin of three feet and the ship would have cleared the obstruction.

We at once set about making repairs and expect the plane will be ready for flight shortly.

Chicago Divorces Total 3158 for Year

Chicago, Nov. 29—One out of every four Chicago weddings winds up in the divorce courts, it is revealed in the annual report of Thomas O. Wallace, clerk of circuit court.

During the last year 3,158 divorces were granted and 95.4 per cent were uncontested. The report shows 66.6 per cent of the couples had no children; the average length of marriage was 8.9 years and the most popular grounds for action were desertion, cruelty and drunkenness.

Storms and Floods Raging in Portugal

Lisbon, Portugal, Nov. 29 (AP)—Storms and floods were raging with intense violence throughout Portugal today. A fishing boat at the entrance of the Tagus foundered and the crew of four drowned.

Floods, which swept Lisbon yesterday, caused great hardship in the poorer sections. More than one hundred families were trapped in their homes and were rescued with difficulty by firemen. Torrential rains fell for more than twenty-four hours, rushing into basements and cellars and in some cases undermining walls and chimneys.

Miss PAT by Elenore Meherin

Air Romance, Better Than "Chickie"

What Has Happened

MARY PATRICIA DAWN, beautiful, young brunette, meets the lad of her dreams in the person of Guy Elliott, aviator. Guy is developing a perfect airplane in the plant of old William Bryce. Happy days follow with Pat and Guy in love. Then comes Barbara Bryce, young widow of Bryce's son, with her seductive lure. Later Guy receives a visit from Barbara and her young son, upon whom old Bryce squanders a fortune. Tom Burns, a workman, rages about the unfairness of wealth. His invalid son is dying for want of necessities. When Bryce refuses a loan, Burns swears revenge. He robs the office safe and is captured after a gun fight. Preparations are being made for Pat to enter college. Hearing much gossip about the youth of today, Mrs. Dawn prays that Pat will remain the sweet girl she is. Pat's father dies and Mrs. Dawn gives her life savings to Bryce to invest, but Guy gets them back. Brice stops financing the plane factory.

Now Read On

CHAPTER 23

THE men were gathered outside the shops. They had ceased working and wore their street clothes. They had a somber, menacing aspect.

The moment Guy entered the foreman approached with a grim: "What's the low down, Elliott?" You tell us to keep on working. You're no sooner off the grounds that the sheriff arrives and locks up the place. Attaches the whole works in Bryce's name. Where do we get off?

In a cold shock, Guy stared at the shut doors. A man emerged from the group: "Sorry, Mr. Elliott. This is just a technical procedure Mr. Bryce has no wish to emembarrass you."

"No! None whatever!"

"But he has invested an enormous amount of money in this plant. As you have the controlling interest, he must, of course, protect himself

"And as you undertook to keep the men at work this extra day, despite the written and posted notice, you are of course, responsible."

The men listened. They hemmed Guy and the lawyer in a narrowing circle.

"You personally are liable for the wages"

"Are my liabilities any of your business, Mr. Fisher?"

"I'm merely protecting my client."

"If you're protecting Bryce," said Guy, pointing out a check book, "tell him he'll think twice before he shoots his next round—at ME' Because I'll fire back. And with dum-dums!"

The whole yard heard the threat. Guy went into his workroom.

He cleared out the drawers, tied up blue prints and designs. These were all HIS. Yes — three years of his life buried in them.

And these three years of passionate achievement were now stolen from him. He couldn't use them. Another man could calmly take possession of these three years of his life!

He became almost weak with fury. The black cold wall of his anger grew until he could no longer think beyond it.

One thing only was clear in his thought — William Bryce would NOT be allowed to get away with this outrage.

In this blazing resentment, he dashed off an answer to Carl Brunner. "Tied up with Bryce on the patents. He will release me. In ONE week I'll have exclusive control. Wire details later."

He had no idea how he was going to force Bryce. But somehow, lawfully or otherwise, he would make the man glad enough to release him! He went to the door and whistled. Jim didn't answer He couldn't endure to have the dog absent when he wanted him.

Again and again he whistled. Half an hour longer he waited. But the workroom became unendurable. It echoed with his hopes; with his fervors—even with the dreams that had often stolen into these working hours—the glimpses of Pat's glowing eyes, the touch of her sweet lips.

He reached for his hat and went out, slamming the door. It was 2 o'clock.

At 4 o'clock that same afternoon—that Monday in October—little Billie Bryce played in the park with his nurse.

The woman sat on a bench with other nurses watching the children as they went down the slide or as they dug in the sand-box.

"I'm a soldier," said the little fellow seriously "There's my trench over there behind the tree. When I say 'Fire' you have to charge.

Sophie nodded. She was a big, clumsy woman and glad enough when the young soldier finally announced· "Now. I've got to dig in, You don't charge till I tell you."

It was a clear, sunny day but cold. At 4:30 Sophie got up, put her sewing in a bag and called: "Come on now, soldier!"

The boy didn't answer.

Sophie called again. Then she went over to the trench. Billy wasn't there.

Hiding somewhere, of course. Always up to these tricks A bit wearily, Sophie looked in all the favorite retreats—under the slide behind the netting of the tennis

SHOE MANUFACTURERS VOTE TO KEEP UP WAGES

TAKE ACTION IN SUPPORT OF HOOVER

10,000 Workers Get "Prosperity" Assurance at Meeting in Boston

Acting in accord with President Hoover's "prosperity schedule," Boston she manufacturers today voted to maintain present wage levels in all their factories

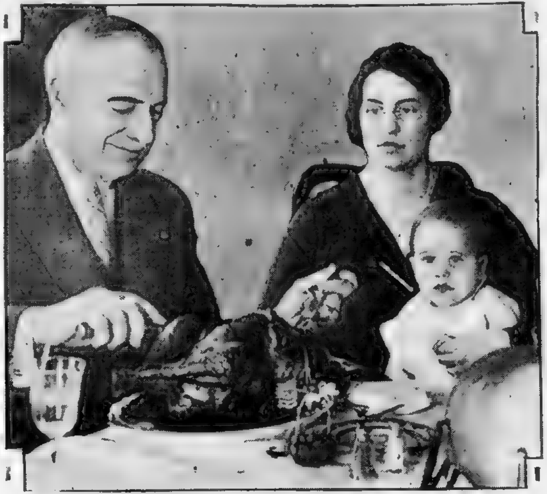
The vote was taken by the Boston Shoe Manufacturers' Association, whose membership employs baout 10,000 workers. The organization issued the following statement through Secretary William L. Hayes

"At a meeting of the Boston Shoe Manufacturers' Association, all shoe manufacturers in the city of Boston bein gpresent, it was voted that the level of wages now being paid will be maintained in factories idntified with this association, and that no reduction in wages in any department will be considered

The association decided this in view of the efforts now being made by President Hoover and Governor Allen to insure industrial and employment stability for the next year, and directed their secretary to communicate with both the President and the Governor to this effect

"The combined manufacturers in this association employ about 10,000 workers

How Governor Allen and the "Lifer" He Pardoned Enjoyed Turkey Day Feast



Frank G. Allen, Jr., was greatly interested in the turkey that graced the table in the home of the Bay State governor's father in Lynn, but the little fellow obligingly helped the photographer to get this excellent picture of him. The First Lady of the State is watching the governor officiate at the carving.

ALLENS DINE AT FAMILY HOME

Governor and Mrs. Allen spent Thanksgiving at the home of the Governor's father and sister on Bacheller st., Lynn.

It was the first time that the Thanksgiving reunion of the family was marked by the absence of the Governor's mother who died during the year.

Those who partook of the day's repast with the Governor were his father, Frank M. Allen; his sister, Miss Grace Allen; his wife and baby son; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Allen, the former a brother of the governor; Thomas Wallace, brother of the governor's wife, of Fitchburg; Mr. and Mrs. Francis Crane, son-in-law and daughter of the Governor of Needham.

B. C.-H. C. Smoker at City Club Tonight

The annual Boston College-Holy Cross smoker will be held tonight at the Boston City Club. Harold P. Sullivan, '30, president of the Fulton Debating Society, is chairman of the affair.

The guest speakers will include Rev Jones I Corrigan, S. J., Rev Patrick J. McHugh, S. J., former Governor Alvan T. Fuller, Mayor Childs of Newton, Charles A. Birmingham, president of the B. C. Alumni Assn., William A. Reilly, newly elected member of the school committee, and Joseph McKenney, coach of B. C. Fr. Corrigan will speak on "Athletics and Scholarships" in view of the recent Carnegie Foundation reports.

'Dr. Mackey' in Battle Was Not 'The' Dr. Mackey

A novel situation has arisen in the case of Carlo Gabardi, 21, of Gloucester st., Back Bay, arrested on an assault and battery charge, as the result of Dr. Charles E. Mackey of South Boston being eliminated from the affair and the inability now of the police to learn the identity of the man assaulted.

At the time of the fight, which took place on Warren st., Roxbury, following a dispute over the parking of an automobile, a man who posed as Dr. Charles E. Mackey of South Boston declared he was assaulted by Gabardi.

Dr. Mackey, however, declares he knows nothing of any quarrel.

Stone & Webster Workers to Dance

Plans for the third annual informal dancing party of the Stone & Webster organizations, which is to be held in the Chamber of Commerce ballroom on Saturday, Dec. 7, are well under way.

Walter B. Hedges was elected general chairman and will be assisted by Dorothy Harvey, ticket committee; Earl M. Sampson, hall and decorations; Oscar K. Anderson, refreshment committee; Howard E. Murphy, entertainment committee; W. Harrison Eigabrodt, music committee; Barbara F. Fleming, reception committee.

JUDGE SAFE AS LIMB HITS AUTO

Judge Arthur E. Beane of the Middlesex Probate Court and his wife narrowly escaped serious injury when a large tree limb fell on the top of their automobile as they were about to leave their home, in Chauncy st., Cambridge.

The top of the machine was considered damaged, but the car was not put out of commission. Judge Beane reported the accident to the Brattle sq. police and went on to his destination.

Everett Police Chief Seriously Ill

Chief William E. Hill of the Everett police was stricken while on duty at the police station and was removed to his home, where he is believed to be suffering from an [illegible] of influenza.

Word was also received that Edward J. Card, patrolman on the Everett force for more than 30 years, was in a critical condition in Whidden Memorial Hospital with rheumatic fever.

Man Dies of Heart Attack in Hotel

Fred Jameson, 55, of Townsend dropped dead before the eyes of his wife in the Hotel Clarendon Tremont st., South End.

He had been suffering from heart disease and came to Boston Monday to obtain medical attention. As he was moving about their room last night he collapsed and when a doctor arrived was pronounced dead.

Allen Asks All Help Golden Rule Sunday

An appeal to citizens in general to observe "Golden Rule Sunday" on December 8 was issued today by Governor Allen.

A frugal meal on that day, the governor declared, has been suggested as an "admirable and unselfish basis for a generous contribution" to the work of the Golden Rule Foundation, which has "for its mission the conservation of the Golden Rule throughout the world"

The governor, in addition asks that the day be observed with appropriate exercises in churches and Sunday Schools.

"The Golden Rule is not an abstract idea—its essence lies in its application to everyday life, and as a practical demonstration of this ideal, the directors of the Golden Rule Foundation propose this year to dispense the contributions made to this fun through the agency of China Child Welfare, Incorporated, for the aid of thousands of suffering children in China," the governor stated

There is nothing that demands the sympathy or touches the hearts of all of us as does the tragedy of starved, unhappy, physically impaired childhood, and as the response to this noble call in the past accomplished untold good for Near East sufferers, so I hope our citizens will again come to the front and give generously of their abundance to those who lack even the bare necessaries of life."

Mother Rescues Son as Their Home Burns

Mrs. Elizabeth Mitchell carried her five-year-old son, Frederick, to safety today when flames damaged their home in W. Adams st., Somerville. The fire, which started from hot ashes placed in a wooden receptacle, according to the firemen, caused a damage of $2000

2 Fined in Drive on Poppy Sellers

In a drive to prevent fakirs from wearing American Legion uniforms and selling poppies ostensibly for the aid of disabled veterans two men were arraigned in Municipal court today. Christopher Vance of Somerville was fined $25 and Fred Lonegan of Roxbury $10 for selling without a license.

Metropolitan District officers McGrail and Marley told Judge Duff the men were selling poppies on Embankment road and that men of this type sometimes made $50 to $60 a day, although the American Legion had complained they had no right to represent themselves as they do

RUM SLEUTHS GET BUSY

While Police Commissioner Clement of Malden was in the midst of his investigation of the police department of that city as a result of its apparent failure to discover liquor stills before federal agents revealed them, a raiding squad descended on a home in Edgeworth section and, it is alleged, seized 40 gallons of liquor, a large supply of cans and other accessories.

The raid was led by Lt. Frank Lenehan of the liquor squad. Salvatore Amoraso of Adams st., police say, occupied the house raided.

A short time prior to the raid Commissioner Clement had several patrolmen "on the carpet" in his probe. He said he would soon be ready to act on what his investigation revealed.

The probe resulted from the recent activity of federal officers in the Edgeworth section, where large liquor seizures were made.

Resume Probe of Everett Voting

Investigation into the alleged irregularities in the Everett voting list and in unpaid poll taxes will be resumed today by State Detectives Edward J. Sherlock and Edward P. O'Neill.

It was stated, however, that one of the detectives will be in Chelsea, looking up several names and that the other will work in Everett on the voting list.

DEMAND MILK BE MADE SAFE IN CITIES AND TOWNS OF OVER 5000

INSPECTION FOUND TO BE INADEQUATE

State Health Department to Ask the Legislature to Tighten Law

The state department of health for the fifth consecutive year today recommended to the incoming Legislature that all milk in cities and towns with a population of more than 5000 be required to be either pasteurized or from non-tuberculosis cows, after a reasonable period.

Dr. George H. Bigelow, head of the department, stated that a recent study indicates that 46 per cent of the towns between 5000 and 25,000 population have no milk inspector, even part time.

"In general," the commissioner said, "these are the communities where the largest proportion of the milk is sold raw. Yet for this, the most important single food, the one given to children, and the one most susceptible to contamination, there is no one actually responsible in these towns. Milk dealers should be the first to insist on such inspection for their own promotion."

He pointed out that Massachusetts is among the states showing the highest proportion of tuberculosis cattle.

"We spend millions in the diagnosis and treatment of tuberculosis," he added. "This continued infection of our people through milk must stop."

The state, he said, is paying for hospitalization of the tubercular some $300,000 a year, the cities and towns paying at the rate of $5 a week for each patient.

FLEES POLICE, IS HIT BY AUTO

Running across the Newburyport Turnpike to avoid police who had come to arrest him on a charge of drunkenness, George Houghton, of Franklin st., Peabody, was struck by an automobile, receiving injuries which may result in his death.

Another man with him narrowly escaped being struck by the same car, but was arrested on a drunkenness charge. He gave his name as Arthur Vaughn of Salem.

$120 VANISHES IN LOCKED SAFE

The mysterious disappearance of $120 from a locked safe in the South Shore Buick Co. establishment, Hancock and Adams sts., Quincy, was reported to police today.

According to officials of the company, the money was taken from a cash box in the safe, the key of which is held by a woman clerk

She said she failed to lock the cash box Wednesday night, but locked the safe. Today, when she and another clerk opened the safe, they found the cash box locked The money was missing.

Police Lieutenants George Fallon and Jeremiah Hinchon took charge of the investigation and an attempt will be made to obtain finger prints from the box

Small Catches Boost Boston Fish Prices

Heavy weather and small catches were reported today at the Fish Pier by skippers of vessels that reached port with small catches.

The difficulties encountered out on the fishing banks have made the catches small, with a resultant turn upward of prices

Five steam trawlers and 14 schooners made port today, but the highest catch was 65,500 pounds.

Wholesalers quoted the following prices: Large cod 8 to 8¼ cents market cod 6 to 6½, haddock 8 to 8½, pollock and cusk 4¼ to 5 cents and hake 6 cents

Deaf and Dumb, Loses "Alarm Clock" Dog

If you were deaf and dumb and had never been late for work because your dog awakened you when the alarm clock sounded, wouldn't you think it was a tough "break" to lose the animal?

That's how Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Connolly of 224 Upland rd., Cambridge, feel about the loss of their pet fox terrier, Minnie

"Both my husband I are deaf and dumb," wrote Mrs. Connolly, "and are at a deep loss since our little dog left us.

"My husband has never been late for work on account of not being able to hear the clock, the dog being as true as the time itself. She never failed to come to our bed and pull the bedclothes to awaken us when the alarm sounded.

"We are sure she would be returned if the person who has her knew how we need her. We are willing to pay a reward

"She answers to the name Minnie and is brown and white. Her left ear is brown. The right ear is white. Her body along the spine is white."

Man Held in Two Taxicab Robberies

TOO MANY AUTO CASES FILED WRONG

Judge Good Says Some Complaints Should Be in Civil Court

Too many automobiles accident cases are being tried in the criminal side of the Municipal court when they should be heard in the civil side, Judge Frank J. Good announced today

The declaration was made in handing down a decision finding Norman D. Hodgson of Shorecliff rd., Newton, not guilty of operating so as to endanger lives and safety of the public.

Hodgson was operating a car on the night of April 1 that was in collision with a machine driven by Miss Esther Murphy of Broadway Somerville, at Berkeley st. and Commonwealth ave

Miss Murphy and two other girls, who were riding with her, were injured

"The more I see of this type case in these courts," said Judge Good "the more my belief is confirmed that this kind of case belongs in the civil side of the court. There is a reasonable doubt in my mind of the defendant's guilt and I shall find him not guilty."

NEW HAVEN R. R. WINS TAX CASE

A decision by two arbitrators, under which the New Haven railroad would have to pay $14,148.02 to the Boston & Providence Railroad Co for a federal income tax assessed on the latter, was reversed today by the full bench of Supreme Court

The dispute came as the result of interlinking leases of the Boston & Providence and the Old Colony railroads.

Robert G Dodge and John S Palfrey were the arbitrators who ruled against the New Haven, but whose ruling was overturned

Disabled Trawler Pulled From Mud

The steam trawler Surf, whose engine became disabled in the outer harbor, and which then drifted helplessly ashore, was pulled off the mud flats near Fawn Bar, below Deer Island, by the Doane Tow Boat Company's tug William H. FREE SHOW FOR CHILDREN MONDAY

Boston American Arranges for Magician to Amuse Them at Arena

Through the courtesy of George V Brown, who was a "kid" himself once, the gigantic Boston Arena has been donated as the spot in which a mammoth pre-Christmas show will be given on Monday, December 2, by the Boston Evening American with Blackstone, "America's foremost magician," who headlines the Keith-Albee vaudeville bill, as the big attraction

Everybody loves a magician, and what kid doesn't hope to be called upon the stage at some time or other and be presented with a real live rabbit which has been produced mysteriously from out of the air by the man of magic.

Blackstone will not only produce many rabbits and give them to the youngsters at this special show, but he has consented to demonstrate his ever-puzzling packing case escape and will attempt to escape from a huge packing case made for him as a challenge by the Pope & Cottle Lumber Company of Boston

Blackstone receives many requests in the cities where he appears to entertain various children at schools, hospitals and institutions. In order not to disappoint anyone and also due to the fact that other bookings do not permit him to be in this city during Christmas week, Blackstone readily fell in with the suggestion made by the Boston Evening American to give a mammoth free entertainment to the kids, and a phone call to Mr Brown, one of the most genial sport managers in the game, accomplished the rest of the arrangements.

Perhaps someone with a car might know of one or two or more children who have no way of getting to the Arena to see this free show. If you are so inclined, look some deserving youngsters up and take them to the show. Blackstone has promised many new and novel surprises besides the packing case escape and the rabbits.

In addition to Blackstone, the Keith-Albee management has promised several more entertainers to add a touch of variety to the affair.

Every boy and girl under 16 is invited to this party of the AMERICAN'S, all that is necessary is to clip the coupon printed below and present it at the main enrtance of the Arena anytime after 4 30 on Monday.

Man Fined $50 for Burying Dynamite

Charged with storing dynamite without a permit, Michael Faino, 40, of Lynn, paid $50 fine and received three months' suspended sentence in Lynn district court today.

It was alleged John Martin, who purchased a house from Faino in Arbor st., Lynn, lost several fingers when dynamite percussion caps he founde in the cellar exploded. This incident led to discovery of 15 sticks of dynamite buried in the back yard, police say

Gales, Giant Waves Delay Two Liners

Heavy seas and wind of gale proportions held back two transatlantic liners heading for this port today, according to radio messages received from the ships.

The White Star liner Cedric, due to dock here Sunday, will not reach the outer harbor until late Sunday night, one report read. She will dock Monday morning at Commonwealth pier. The Hamburg American liner Cleveland is also delayed. A radio from the ship today said she would reach the lower harbor Monday night and dock at Commonwealth pier Tuesday morning, a day late.

HEAVY SMOKE KNOCKS OUT FIREMEN

Those Without Gas Masks Are Affected by Fumes in Devonshire St. Fire

Several firemen were recovering today from effects of smoke while fighting a stubborn two-alarm fire at 294 Devonshire st. The downtown business section was filled with smoke during the blaze for blocks around.

For more than an hour firemen had to battle inside the building in smoke which was pouring from the windows in clouds.

If the majority of the men had not been equipped with gas masks, fire officials stated, many would have been completely overcome.

In the basement the Bay State Florist Supply Company had stored a large number of plants and other greenery, which, when it got going furiously, gave firemen plenty of trouble

The James W. Brine Company at 92 Summer st., whose establishment backs up to the florist shop, was damaged heavily by smoke

What a difference Gas has made!

YOU women of today have but to think of the endless hours of loving drudgery which your mothers and grandmothers endured in sweltering kitchens in order to realize what a wonderful thing the gas industry has done for the freedom of women.

Compare the hours formerly spent over a hot stove—watching a meal through every stage of the cooking process—with the few minutes of attention now required when you have a gas range equipped with Heat Control.

Heat Control is a most remarkable device which enables you to put a meal into the oven, set a little indicator to the correct temperature, and then forget all about it until meal time.

Leave the kitchen for the cool out-of-doors, play with the children, entertain friends, do anything you wish except think about cooking dinner—gas will silently, accurately, surely do your "watching" for you.

Hours saved. Drudgery banished. Work turned into pleasant and useful recreation. That is what the gas industry has done for women, and that is why this great pioneer in simplified cooking maintains its leadership in the world's up-to-date kitchens.

You owe it to yourself to see the new ranges now being demonstrated by your gas company, and to learn more about how much one may mean to you and the welfare of your family.

POKER PLAYER FACES $1300 FORFEIT OR SEVEN YEARS IN JAIL

DEFENSE SAYS COURT CAN'T SENTENCE

Prisoner Is Guilty of Winning More Than $5 Under Colonial Law

Municipal court today found itself with a guilty defendant on its hands and his punishment in doubt.

The defendant had been charged with "winning more than $5 in a game called polka," which was somebody's error on the written complaint. [illegible] agreed in court to a different spelling of the national game of jacks-or-better.

Last May, Lewis Janty, the complainant, said, he was invited by Benjamin Novak to play poker in a Rutland sq. house. [illegible] the bank for more money when, he alleges, he discovered that the cards, which he had taken with him, were marked FORFEIT IS $1300.

It took several months to find Novak. He was charged with the excess winning and found guilty.

The only penalty, by a colonial law, is a forfeit of twice the sum won, in this case the forfeit totalling $1300.

Then up spoke an astute legal gentleman, Patrick H. Kelley, counsel for Novak, and advised Judge James Devlin as follows.

"Your Honor, I wish to be heard on a motion for jurisdiction. This court has no jurisdiction in this case. The man, under the law, must forfeit $1300. If he has not got the $1300 to forfeit, then he must serve the time in jail at the rate of 50 cents a day.

"That is 2600 days, or more than seven years. This defendant cannot be sentenced to seven years in jail in this court. The court can sentenced no man to more than two and a half years.

SAYS LAW OBSOLETE

"Incidentally, I have made a study of this law and find it is obsolete. Originally it read, 'more than 20 shillings.' Now in Colonial times, 20 shillings may have been a lot of money, but today it is, comparatively, nothing."

There was judicial furrows in Judge Devlin's brow, but he took the case under advisement as to sentence

TRIPPI IS BACK IN DEATH CELL

For the last time Charles Trippi, Jr., condemned murderer, walked in the open today.

The condemned man was removed at dawn from the Cherry Hill section of State prison to the death house and the cell he occupied before a respite was granted by Governor Allen. This respite ends at midnight tonight.

Deputy Warden Herman Godendorf and a guard moved Trippi before the other prisoners were up. Their route led over a course about 300 yards long and took them through the execution chamber and past the canvas-covered chair in which Trippi will die—probably early next week.

2 HURT AS AUTO HITS TREES

Driving an antiquated sedan without lamps, two men were injured, one seriously, early today when the machine crashed into two trees on the Boston Post rd., Waltham.

The men, found unconscious in the wrecked car, were taken to the Waltham Hospital, where the name of Joseph Kuezka, Lamartine st., Worcester, was placed on the danger list. John Ambrose of Harding st., Worcester, was said to be in a serious condition.

Police believe that Kuezka was driving, as he was found behind the steering wheel, despite the fact that Ambrose had the only license in the party. Proceeding toward Worcester without lights, the driver lost control and the car left the road, striking one tree, and then another.

Capt. Dalzell Dies in Savannah, Ga.

Captain Lincoln G. Dalzell, for 35 years connected with the Savannah Line, is dead at his home in Savannah, Ga., after a long illness with stomach trouble, according to word received here.

Charge Man Slashed Wife During Row

Mrs. Nina Nolan, 63, of Norwich st., South End, is at City Hospital suffering from lacerations of both hands and severing of two arteries on her left wrist.

Tunes With Dictation

Amos and Andy Aid Haines in His Work

Interior decorators have scratched weary heads for ages trying to find that little something to make the tired business man's office just a bit like home, but Alfred E. Haines beat them to it by 30 years—canary birds!

No, patient reader, we are not coo-coo, canary birds is our story and we'll stick to it.

Every day for 30 years in rain, or snow or sunshine, Mr Haines has entered his office to be greeted by the cheery whistle of a canary.

He has two of them at the present time in the office of his printing plant at 11 Otis st., right across from the editorial rooms of the Boston Evening American. Their names are Amos and Andy.

Amos, the elder of the pair, is a fire hero. That is, he never rescued anyone, but several years ago when Haines' office was in Summer st., Amos, cage and all, was placed on a fire escape when flames burned out a store on the ground floor. Amos sang at the top of his tiny lungs during the whole performance. Indeed, when the Boston Evening American photographer fired off his blinding flashlight in the office, Amos seemed to remember the bright flames for he burst out singing again, while Andy hopped to the floor of the cage and hid his head.

Every Sunday or holiday, Haines drives down from his home in Fairfield st., Back Bay, to see that Amos and Andy have their rations A special feed fell to their lot on Thanksgiving Day.

Haines has always been a great lover of animals. In former years he bred Boston terriers and in his office he has pictures and ribbons of his winners.

13 FORCED OUT IN HOUSE FIRE

Nine children and two women were among the 13 persons who were driven to the street by fire in the two-and-a-half story wooden dwelling at 1253 Blue Hill ave., Mattapan. The fire, which was believed to have started in the attic from an overheated furnace, rapidly destroyed the upper floor.

Henry Lawler, who, with his wife and six children, occupies the second floor of the house, discovered the fire. While assisting his family out to safety he aroused Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pearlman and their three children, occupants of the first floor.

OUSTED REVERE CHIEF FIGHTS FOR REVIEW

Counsel for Dyer Wins First Skirmish in His Reinstatement Plea

Former Police Chief John J. Dyer of Revere, ousted two years ago by Mayor John E. Walsh, began his fight for re-instatement today before Judge Maloney in Chelsea district court.

The hearing was on Dyer's petition for a review of the case and the former chief took the witness stand in his own behalf.

When Dyer was called to the stand by his counsel, Atty. Edward Vokes, a spirited legal clash followed an objection by City Solicitor Wendell P. Murray, who objected to the method of procedure.

Murray argued that the case hinged only on Dyer's petition for a review and was not a retrial, and that only evidence given at the hearing two years ago should be allowed

Judge Maloney overruled Murray's objection and cited several supreme court cases to support his ruling. It was agreed, however, that a stenographic copy of testimony given at the previous hearing should be admitted and be taken into consideration in the present case.

The first witness called today was Dr. John Oakes of Lynn, who testified that prior to Dyer's dismissal, the police chief had been suffering from nervous disorder as the result of a fractured collarbone.

The next witness called was Dyer and the objection of the city solicitor was entered before the ousted official could begin his testimony. After Judge Maloney had overruled Murray, Dyer proceeded to testify.

Former Mayor Walsh was requested by City Solicitor Murray to appear at the hearing today and testify. Walsh setn word that he would attend the hearing and he will be called to the stand immediately he appears in court.

CUTS THROAT IN COURT DOCK

Joseph Maynard Black, 60, of Clifford st., Providence, attempted suicide in the prisoners' dock in Dedham court today by slashing his throat with a penknife

Black, who had been arraigned on a charge of larceny and attempted larceny, and his case continued to Dec. 4, was waiting to be remanded to jail when the attempt at self-destruction was made.

He inflicted a cut three inches long and half an inch, deep, but jail physicians said the wound was not serious.

Court had adjourned and the attention of attaches was elsewhere when other prisoners in the dock gave the alarm.

Black, well dressed and of somewhat distinguished appearance was picked up in Dedham Thanksgiving eve on a charge of shop lifting.

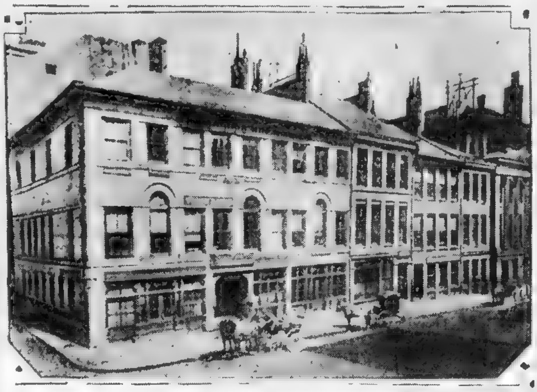
Old Boston in Pictures—No. 119



Mass. Historical Society

THIS looks like Main st. in a rural town, but it's none other than Boston's State st., in 1882. The structure in the picture is the Union Building, which was later occupied by Lee, Higginson & Co., and was demolished recently when Exchange st. was widened. The building stood on the site of the Provincial Custom House, Royal Exchange and the United States Bank.

Turkey, Duck, Stolen From Theater Lobby

For 10 days flambuoyant posters in the lobby of the Supreme Theater on Center st., Jamaica Plain, have held no interest for little boys and girls in the neighborhood. It isn't that Young America is losing interest in art. It's merely that the posters were running second place in mob interest and a poor second place at that.

A fine young turkey gobbler, gobbled ferociously in an improvised cage in the lobby with a prettily colored wild duck as a partner. What Wild West poster could compete successfully with that kind of competition in the heart of Young America?

Manager Joseph L. Linnon of Wenonah st., Roxbury, provided the gobbler and the duck and he smiled as he saw the joy of the little boys and girls and he smiled when he contemplated Thanksgiving and Mr. Gobbler and Mr Duck side by side on his table

But Joe's dream never came true When he arrived in his office he heard no welcome gobbles. Everything was silent. It was an ominous silence which Joe didn't understand until he spotted the empty cage and later on saw a lot of chisel marks on the window sill

Truly Mr. Gobbler's days were ended and also Mr Duck's. But Joe's sharp axe didn't bring about the end and that's why the headquarters teletype broadcast the request, "Wanted—thieves who broke into the Supreme Theater in Jamaica Plain and stole a live turkey and duck."

MISS HUTCHINS IS MOURNED BY BENCH AND BAR

To Attend Funeral Service of State's Best Probation Officer Tomorrow

With leaders of bench and bar attending, funeral services for Lucy C. Hutchins, for 23 years probation officer of Middlesex Court, will be held tomorrow afternoon in the Old Cambridge Baptist church

Miss Hutchins, whose home was in Waverley st., Belmont, died on Wednesday at Bournedale after a lingering illness. Judge Arthur P. Stone of Middlesex Court, paid the following tribute to her today

"Miss Hutchins died after a long illness which she bore with characteristic bravery in consideration of relatives and friends. I do not hesitate to say that no citizen in this community was doing better or nobler work for the benefit of mankind. Other lips than mine have sounded her praises in words that may well constitute a fitting tribute at this time

"The late Judge Harvey S Baker first judge and in a certain sense founder of the juvenile court of Boston, said of her: 'She is the best probation officer in Massachusetts, barring none'

"When this remark was repeated to the Hon. Herbert C. Parsons, commissioner of probation in Massachusetts, he said, 'I agree, and Judge Baker might have said in the United States.'

"We who knew her and loved her and worked with her, know that these words, extravagant as they may seem, were true.

RELIEF FROM ACID STOMACH for those who make this FREE TEST

Have you tried this simplest of all ways to aid digestion? An easy, innocent way to tranquilize a sour stomach!

A pleasant little tablet that dissolves in the mouth—or you can chew it up as you would a piece of candy.

In a few moments, that lump that you thought was "indigestion" is gone, and so is all that gas and sourness and every other sign of gastric disturbance.

Too much acid in the system will upset any stomach.

A tablet or two of Pape's Diapepsin will set things to rights in a jiffy.

The proof? It's waiting for you at the first drug store. Or a free demonstration—see coupon below. This test may be the end of all your stomach troubles. For acid is the cause of nine-tenths of all "stomach troubles."

Pape's Diapepsin is sold by all drugstores—or mail coupon for free trial.

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

IN general, it's a poor week for the batting averages of the featured film players. The stars in most of the current films had little reason to give thanks. So now with Charles "Buddy" Rogers and Jean Arthur, the "lights" of the Metropolitan's "Half Way to Heaven." Here again it is a case where the laurels go to the director, for it is George Abbott, and not the "stars," who makes this movie mare go

Al Mitchell

MR. ABBOTT rises above trite miming and trite story and skillfully creates an interest that is glad to acclaim his picture action splendid substitute for the mediocre acting. One doesn't miss dialogue when it falls by the wayside, for in its stead Mr. Abbott is achieving far better things than mere talking. So far as the story goes, it must be admitted that "Four Devils" took time by the forelock. Now comes another acrobat yarn at a season when the public has been sated with backstage and similar stuff "Half Way to Heaven" is melodrama, its life centering around a flying trapeze troupe. Paul Lukas is the villian in the piece; Miss Arthur the heroine, and Mr Rogers, always popular with the women fans, is of course the hero. Being madly infatuated with the sweet Miss Arthur, Mr. Lukas slays a competitor for her heart by deliberately falling down on his own acrobatic job.

When Mr. Rogers unwittingly becomes the third angle of the love snarl, the fair heroine is worried. But the intrepid hero foils the bold bad man's dastardly attempt on his life, and all ends happily. Mr. Rogers, ever an actor, and Miss Arthur, rarely an actress, are decorative enough, which says it with more flowers than the merit. Mr. Lukas, on the other hand, does act, and with Miss Helen Ware, and a boy, is to be given all the histrionic credit. Miss Ware, as those who remember her stage work may expect, is excellent. The boy, Nestor Aber, helps along with the fun. No others of the cast ever get out of shallow water.

MR. ABBOTT ignores his handicaps. His direction is clever. He whips the film along with much showing of speed and makes his camera eloquent in passing his aims to the beholders' imaginations. His "shots" of the trapeze feats are stellar, and they help him get the thrilling situations he attains.

ON stage, new talent adds to the usual good Metropolitan fare. Gabriel Hines appears as the newest conductor of the grand orchestra, while Al Mitchell steps in as master of ceremonies. Both are peak performers. The Publix presentation is the Charles Niggemeyer production, "Match Box Revue," colorful, tuneful and pleasing. Among the stars are the Giersdorf sisters, Edna Covey and Moriarity and Burns. Mr. Martel presides at the organ.

'THRILL' FILM AT FENWAY

SIR PHILIP GIBBS mystery story, "Darkened Rooms," is having its first showing in Boston tomorrow exclusively at the Publix Fenway. The picture is an all-dialogue melodrama, directed by Louis Gasnier, and the adaptors of the story are Patrick Kearney and Melville Baker. Evelyn Brent, long a favorite in prominent supporting roles, comes to her own in "Darkened Rooms," in which she has been raised to the heights of a star.

"Rip Van Winkle" Given by Sarg's Marionettes

Heroic Aerialist

CHARLES "BUDDY" ROGERS

ORIGINAL MUSICAL COMEDY WRITTEN FOR JOHN BOLES

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service

Los Angeles, Nov. 29.

Louella O. Parsons

THE secret of John Boles' success with the women of the country may not be due to the fact that he has "It." I cannot say as to that. What matter anyway as long as he can sing the way he does. Anyway, we are told that women love with their ears and men with their eyes. Carl Laemmle, Sr., isn't bothering about any of that, however. He knows that he has a winner in John Boles and he is going to make hay while the sun shines. He has just had an original musical comedy written for him by Houston Branch and in it John will warble and warble and warble some more. Ever since Carl Laemmle Sr., heard that boy sing in "The Desert Song," he made up his mind that John was the white-haired boy at Universal and anything he asks for is his. That is, anything within reason.

I DON'T see why George Duryea shouldn't get a job and a good one. He has looks, he has youth and he can act. Remember him in "The Godless Girl," the Cecille De Mille picture, and the film that brought him to Hollywood? Things haven't been going so very well for him lately. It happens that way in Hollywood once in a while but now he has a job. He is over at RKO playing the lead in "Strictly Business" wiht Lambert Hillyer directing. Maybe this is the beginning of new things for George. Let's hope so.

HARRY COHN says Jack Holt is not going to R. K. O. and when Harry says a thing in that determined voice you generally know he means it. "How come?" I asked. "Well, Jack Holt is starting a picture at Columbia today," said Harry. "It is to be called 'Black Sheep' and is a story of the Congo written by Ralph Graves so how can he be at R. K. O?" We give up. We know he couldn't be there unless he has an astral body and Mr Holt is much too substantial to travel with an astral body. He was supposed to have played with Lila Lee in "All the King's Men." Well, somebody slipped up somehow but we didn't.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Sir Harry Lauder visiting on the Paul Whiteman set at Universal City. Irving Berlin also glimpsed walking around the lot. Mrs. Benjamin Glazer, Seena Owen, Lilyan Tashman and other Hollywood screen folk lunching at the town house. Clara Beranger saying au revoir to Hollywood. She goes East to see her daughter, Frances, who is on the stage in New York. Sid Grauman putting one over on his Hollywood friends by making an appearance at the Ambassador Hotel, after he pretended to telephone from Chicago. Dorothy Mackaill attended by two Santa Barbara swains lunching at the Roosevelt Hotel. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

HOME TOWN TO HONOR STAR OF SCREEN

ONSET will turn out en masse next Tuesday night to do honor to its most famous and popular son, Charles Farrell, son of David Farrell, motion picture theater man of that town.

Several months ago Charles surprised his home town folk by dropping in on them without more than 24 hours' prior notice. But that was not all. Enterprising RKO General Manager Charles Winston, hearing that the Fox star would be here and that he had just completed his first all-talking, singing and talking picture, "Sunny Side Up," succeeded in making arrangements for several personal appearances.

That surprised not only Bostonians, but even Charles dad, who could not resist the temptation of continuing on to New York with his popular son to hear and see him in 'Sunny Side Up,' which was to be given its world premiere showing on Broadway. That was three months ago and 'Sunny Side Up," which is now at the New B. F. Keith's Theater, is still packing the Gaiety in Gotham.

Surrounded by a typical Broadway first-night audience, with Elinor Glyn at his left and Greta Garbo at his right, the elder Farrell sat and listened in amazement. His son could actually sing and dance and play. He had to admit to the crowds that almost smothered his son that evening that he was frankly surprised and with pardonable pride, turning aside, boasted to Police Commissioner Grover Whalen who had leaned over from a rear seat to congratulate Charley: "That's my boy!"

So David Farrell will have "who's who in Onset" his guests at the Tuesday night showing of "Sunny Side Up" in which Farrell is co-starred with Janet Gaynor. Among the De Sylva, Brown and Henderson songs sung by Miss Gaynor and Farrell are "If I Had A Talking Picture Of You," "I'm A Dreamer Aren't We All?," "Sunny Side Up," "Turn On The Heat" and several others.

In support of them appear El Brendel, who will be remembered for his funny antics in "The Cock-Eyed World," Sharon Lynn, Marjory White, Frank Richardson, Joe E. Brown and 200 "Sunkist beauties."

ROD LA ROCQUE WILL VARY ROLES

THAT the present popularity of character portrayals on the screen is due largely to the fact that fans now prefer to admire rather than idolize their actors is the opinion of Rod La Rocque, who heads the cast in George Fitzmaurice's "The Locked Door," all-talking special at Loew's State next week.

Thus Rod explains the reason for his becoming a "rotter" in a picture for the first time in his varied screen existence.

"I have sensed this change in the public's adoration of motion picture stars for some time," explained the actor, "and I think it came about because audiences tired of having screen heroes perfect specimens of manhood.

"Psychologists agree that women like a little naughtiness to relieve the monotony of goodness in their men. I think women do. The most boring creature in the world is a perfect gentleman. He is too good to be true."

Rod says that hereafter he will arrange his schedules so that he may become a true hero in one picture and a "heavy" in the next. In that way, he believes, he will retain his fans.

Once an actor establishes himself as an actor of parts, rather than a portrayer of characterless roles he runs the great risk, Rod thinks, of losing his following unless all his roles are convincing and human in their appeal.

"Woof Woof" Director in Films

GLORIFIED GAL GOT START AT MASK BALL

OLIVE SHEA will never forget a masquerade ball given by the A. M. P. A., the association of moving picture advertising men, for it marked the beginning of her Cinderella-like career. She won the prize as the most beautiful non-theatrical girl at the ball. Just seven weeks later Olive was working at Paramount's Long Island studio in the feminine role, next to Mary Eaton, in "Glorifying the American Girl," Ziegfeld production which is now playing at the Uptown and Washington Street Olympia.

Olive was engaged for work in the Paramount picture on the basis of her achievement in winning the prize at the ball. Olive added to her distinctions another honor last September when she was chosen as "Miss Radio" at the New York Radio Show.

Penn Superior in Every Department, Says Marsters

PRAISES BOTH GENTLE AND MASTERS

By AL MARSTERS

Star Dartmouth Halfback

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 29—Out-conditioned, out-run, out-charged and out-generaled, Cornell went down to its third consecutive defeat before the University of Pennsylvania before 75,000 in the Penn Stadium.

It was evident soon after the opening kick off that the superior weight of the Penn team was going to be one of the telling factors. Desirous of determining the full strength of the Cornell offense Penn was content to allow the Ithacans to hold possession of the ball during most of the first period.

The Quakers, in this way, not only were able to size up the Cornell offense, but every rush robbed the visitors of a noticeable amount of stamina.

STRAIGHT FOOTBALL

Penn played nothing but straight football during this quarter but the Ithacans opened up with about everything in the way of a running attack.

From the start, Penn cracked the Cornell ball carriers hard and was soon evident that the heavy going was wearing down the Ithacans.

Although Cornell had Penn on the run late in the first period, with a touchdown in sight, it was forced to call time out, not for any one player, but for the general condition of the team.

Cornell broke through with its first touchdown in three years on the first play of the second period and managed to hold the advantage through sheer strength of nervous energy rather than physical strength through the remainder of the first half.

No sooner had Cornell scored than Penn began to open up. The Red and Blue began to use their lateral pass and swept the length of the gridiron with little or no [illegible].

A 15-yard penalty called on Stevens for roughing Marsters added to the 20 the Penn star had already gathered put the home team in a scoring position.

An illegal lateral pass which was undetected gained 10 more yards and then a lateral from Gentle to Masters went for a touchdown, but the play was called back and Penn penalized.

From the time that Penn put its lateral passes into execution Cornell was doomed. The failure of the Cornell secondary to come up quickly and the excellent work of Penn's running guard, especially Walter Mago, in clearing the path for the ball carriers were mainly responsible for the Red and Blue victory.

SPEED GREAT ASSET.

Of course, the speed of Penn's great backs, Masters and Gentle, was a great asset to the success of the laterals. However, the Cornell secondary must assume the responsibility for the failure to stop this style of attack.

Although the Cornell line looked impressive during most of the first half, the better weight and condition of the Penn line finally came to the fore.

Most of Cornell's ground was gained by use of a deceptive cross from a lob pass. During the first dozen or more times Cornell used this play Greene, Penn's defensive fullback, was sucked out of position by the initial direction of the play.

But as soon as Greene had sized up this play, mainly through Cornell's repeated use of it, and had moved up closer to the scrimmage line, he was able to stop it every time for little or no gain.

The real value of this play lies in its deception rather than in its power, as the ball carrier has no interferers before him.

In regards to generalship, Cornell really outgeneraled itself by continually electing to kick off after having been scored upon. This is a weakness which has been noticeable in Cornell's play for years.

If ever Cornell should have chosen to receive it was after Dick Gentle had raced the entire length of the field for touchdown which resulted in the teams being placed on even terms.

This run, one of the longest of the season, was a stunning blow to Cornell. But, instead of receiving the next kick and allowing the team to recover its morale, Cornell ran true to form and kicked to Penn.

Although a holding penalty soon after the next kick off stopped Penn momentarily, the red and blue machine started to click when Milner called for punt formation on third down with ten to go and Masters, aided by a massed interference, dashed between Claggett

M'KENNEY MAY QUIT HEIGHTS

BOSTON COLLEGE and Holy Cross will meet at Fenway Park tomorrow afternoon to offer some 35,000 football followers the final thrills before the curtain crashes down on this 1929 grid season.

Holy Cross will be a top-heavy favorite—they're giving 2-to-1 odds on the Purple to win.

Holy Cross has gone through a much harder schedule than B. C. and has emerged with as much glory.

Tomorrow's tussle looks like a battle of lines. There hasn't been a classy performer in either backfield. Holy Cross' ball-carriers should get more ground but they'll be pushed right back to the starting point by the booting of long John Dixon of B. C. The beforehand stuff indicates a defensive fight. But there's no telling what will happen.

Coach Joe McKenney is putting the final touches on his charges today out in a lonely field close by Drabbington Lodge, Weston, Boston College's pre-Holy Cross abode. The Eagles are confident. They're going to fight tomorrow for Coach Joe McKenney. Joe has had a tough season. They want to win this one for him.

Rumor has it that McKenney is going to resign as coach at the Heights. He may go into law or take over the office of graduate manager. These aren't groundless reports.

The Eagles know that McKenney is faced with the task of turning out a football team without any assistance. There's good reason why he should quit. But the B. C. players want Joe to stay. One source of encouragement would be to win the Holy Cross

NAVY SQUAD IN FINAL DRILL

Annapolis, Nov. 29—The last long practice session at the naval academy for the season of 1929 was devoted largely to defence against the forward pass, a department of the game in which the navy team has been anything but strong this season.

A section of squad B was kept in harness for the purpose of delivering passes, according to the Dartmouth method, against the varsity. The defensive work of the latter was upon the whole good.

Head Coach Bill Ingram has decided to start Oscar Hagberg at tight end, it being the only change in the tentative line-up announced early in the week. Hagberg has the honor of gaining a place for the final game, after being the most shifted player on the navy squad this season. He returns to the position in which he had done most of his playing and in which he started the season.

At one period of the season the Navy tackles were not doing so well and Hagberg was shifted to that position. Later there was less need for tackles and it was decided to break Hagberg in as a back, looking to his use next year in place of Joe Clifton, who will graduate.

It is believed, however, that the idea of making a back of Hagberg has not been abandoned, but will be given a thorough test next season.

Hinkle Takes Lead in Scoring Race

New York, Nov. 29 (INS)—Clark Hinkle, Bucknell's smashing fullback, was leading Eastern individual scorer today with a total of 138. Hinkle accounted for 50 points yesterday as his team overwhelmed Dickinson, 78 to 0.

Hinkle displaces Al Marsters, Dartmouth ace, who, until the time he was injured, had accounted for 108 points.

Cadets and Battery in Scoreless Tie

The First Corps Cadets and Battery A battled to a scoreless tie in their 23rd annual clash.

Pinkham was the outstanding back on the Battery team. Marsan of the Cadets was easily the best back and his 65-yard run in the closing period was a gem.

Each line was a stone wall on the defensive and both teams played for the breaks that didn't come.

By RALPH GILROY

Former Princeton Star and All-America Halfback

THE Boston College Eagles and the Holy Cross Crusaders get together Saturday out at Fenway Park in their 26th annual football battle, and fans who journey to Mr. Quinn's ball yard should get their eyes full of some very exciting action.

The Boston College-Holy Cross rivalry is like the Harvard-Yale brand, in that a football season is considered a success if either eleven succeeds in running off with the decision.

Cleo O'Donnell's Purple eleven is being talked of as the favorite for the coming clash and it seems that if we must have pre-game favorites, principally for the boys who get more of a kick out of watching a football game with a bet down, Cleo's aggregation is deserving of this pre-game distinction.

The Crusaders have been through the fires of big game competition in more contests than the Eagles. The Purple squad has battled it out against four major opponents, Brown, Marquette, Fordham and Harvard. Cleo's men lost a tough decision to Brown, 15 to 14, took over Marquette by two touchdowns, lost a tough one to Major Cavanaugh's Rams, 7 to 0, and was taken into camp by the Crimson, 13 to 6.

In four major contests to win only one game does not indicate the Crusaders to be a mighty eleven, but the aforementioned battles were so close that one break might have thrown the game over to the Worcester aggregation.

B. C. NOT IMPRESSIVE

The Boston College record against major opponents has been less impressive than that of the Crusaders. B. C. has engaged Villanova, Fordham and Marquette as the three big opponents on her schedule.

Fordham beat Boston College by the margin of a goal after touchdown whereas Marquette handed out a two touchdown setback to the Eagles. Villanova stood off Boston College in a 7-7 tie early in the season at Fenway Park.

Getting closer to the comparison picture of these two rival, we find the Eagle and the Crusaders have engaged identical opponents in Fordham and Boston College. Fordham defeated Holy Cross by one touchdown, at the same time holding the latter scoreless.

Boston College scored a touchdown against Major Cavanaugh's eleven and was beaten by one point.

Holy Cross defeated Marquette by one touchdown, whereas Boston College was defeated by the latter by two touchdowns. The first comparison gives an edge to the Eagles and the latter to Holy Cross.

Whatever edge comes out of the season's records of these two rival elevens should go to the Worcester aggregation, but it is such a slight edge it can be almost entirely discounted. As so many who backed Yale with their money against Harvard found to their sorrow a week ago, when two ancient rivals like Boston College and Holy Cross meet on the gridiron anything but even betting is out of order.

BREAK MAY DECIDE GAME

In a hard fought contest a break of the game, a costly fumble, a misplaced punt, and intercepted pass; to wit, the Hoot Ellis interception of a Dartmouth forward late in the game which won for Yale; all these breaks tend to win or lose a game and not the early season's record and comparison.

Cleo O'Donnell is bringing down a first-class forward wall, flanked by two veteran wingmen in Kucharski and Alzerini. In this forward combination a boy by the name of Himmelberg will cause a lot of damage to the Boston College offense.

Himmelberg is one of the fleetest forwards in the East, is a good tackler, and a beautiful interferer for the Purple ball-carriers. In the backfield Cleo has one of the best defensive fullbacks in Clancy operating on any backfield. And a couple of speed merchants in Manfreda and O'Connell.

Coach Joe McKenney of the Eagles will put a strong eleven on the field with a pair of the finest wingmen in the East in Johnny Dixon and Charley Murphy. Dixon in addition to being one of the best defensive ends against enemy runs is without question the very best punter of the current season.

And we could feel perfectly safe in extending this to any other season. It will take a lot of Crusader [illegible] through [illegible] runs and passes to offset Johnny's long

LEWIS TOSSES DEVITO TWICE

[illegible] Ed Lewis defeated Joe DeVito of Providence, in two out of three falls in the main bout of the mat show at the Grand Opera House.

DeVito won the first fall in one minute with a top body hold. It was the shortest fall against him in the Strangler's mat career.

Lewis took the second fall in 28 minutes 32 seconds with a combination head and hip lock after he had applied 13 head locks, and the third fall in 7 minutes 20 seconds also with a combination head and hip lock.

Joe Malcewicz of Utica, N. Y. and Pat McGill of Wakefield wrestled 45 minutes to a draw.

Ed George of the University of Michigan defeated Nicholas Nester of Memphis, Tenn., in 31 seconds with a body lift and slam.

Salem and Malden Finish Season Without a Defeat

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

BOTH HAVE CLAIM TO TITLE

SCHOOLBOY football players now may breathe a sign of relief and get a chance to rest and polish up in their lessons with the regular football season out of the way.

The season past was good. A flock of new stars came to take the places of those gone on to college ranks. Only a few teams went through the season without a loss. Salem and Malden high, among the public school elevens, and B. C. high, in the private school ranks managed to get through their schedules without a defeat.

Post-season games between any of these teams are unlikely. B. C. high, Malden and Salem have completed tough schedules. Any post-season game would be of necessity a week from Saturday, with the accompanying probable poor playing conditions.

The late games generally do not prove anything in the way of deciding championships as the ground conditions do not allow the elevens to hit their best stride.

Malden saved its winning margin of six points over Medford only by holding tight on the goal line when the Blue and White threatened toward the end of the game. The rough play of some of the boys marred the day for fans of both cities.

Medford and Malden are old rivals, but always friendly ones. Undoubtedly there will be a conference between Malden high and Medford high officials that any recurrence of the bitter feeling shown in the Thanksgiving Day tilt may be avoided in the future.

In the game at Medford, the work of Sammy Fishman, Johnny O'Brien and Kelley in the Malden backfield stood out. Fenton, Lapidus and McCarthy did a great job on the Malden line.

Capt. Spellman was splendid for Medford. He stayed right through the entire game, though only sheer grit kept him going for the last period. Spellman's kicks were perfectly placed and his all-around play was fine. Ben De Benedictis was one of the Medford linemen whose work was notable.

Rand, Heffernan and L'Italien starred for Salem high in its wind up win of a perfect season over the Beverly eleven. Phil Heffernan raced 80 yards through the Beverly team for one of the scores. This run by the Irish member of the Four Nations backfield was a snappy piece of work.

Beverly was penalized often and the referee was rushed after the tilt by hot headed Beverly fans. The police escorted the official safely off the field, however.

Pendergast flashed for Waltham in his final game with Jack Leary's team. Though not able to score, Pendergast passed to Krol for the Waltham touchdown. Bill Gerrie booted the winning point after the touchdown for Waltham. So the Watch City team wound up its season with a record of but one game lost, that to B. C. high.

Tony Geniawicz finished his season for Lynn English in a blaze of glory when he scored four touchdowns as the English eleven beat Classical, 32 to 0. The Lynn English fullback was a frequent scorer all season and his fine windup efforts stamped him one of the best fullbacks ever to play in this State.

Charley Dickerman's Somerville high warriors have a Suburban League title. Somerville tied Rindge 6-6, but that was all the Red and Blue needed. Regan, Escort and Wells starred for Somerville. Boyle of Rindge did effective work.

Newton and Brookline tied, Lowell defeated Lawrence, Winthrop won over Taunton, Marblehead defeated Swampscott, Revere surprised by tieing Chelsea, Everett wound up its season with a win over Cambridge Latin.

Dick Gould's fine kicking gave Boston Latin its edge over English at Braves Field. The Latin win was the first over English in five years, and Coach Charley Fitzgerald's winning smile won't come off for quite a while.

Aleta and Meaney were the heroes of the Dorchester high victory over Commerce. Aleta had a great year. His play in the Turkey Day game, entitles him to be ranked with the best of the school backs of the year.

Leading Amateurs to Box at St. Joe's

All the leading amateur boxers of Massachusetts are forwarding their entries for the weekly amateur boxing show of the St. Joseph's T. A. S. to be held in Mechanics Building tomorrow night, and it is expected that there will be at least 28 bouts, and that the competition will be keen in each division.

The light heavyweight class will again be featured, and as the class is open to all comers, it is expected that at least five big boys will compete. In addition to the light heavyweight division, competition will be held in the 112, 118, 126, 135, 147 and 160-pound classes, and each division will be open to all comers.

GILROY THINKS H. C. HAS EDGE

hoists. Dixon kept Fordham deep in her own territory more than half of that game with his consistent 60-yard boots.

Charley Murphy the Eagle right wing, is the best down the field tackler under kicks we have seen this year, and Barres, Hickok, O'Connell, and Douglas of Harvard and Yale, were good. Boston College will offer the best and most experienced tackle on the field in Pete Herman.

The Boston College backfield will have one of the fastest open field runners of the season in Chessy Antos. Antos has done consistently good running for the Eagles this season and if once in the open this fine runner will give the Crusaders a flock of scares.

Since the Boston College running attack has been somewhat below normal, Joe McKenney will rely on the aerial propensities of Colbert's good right arm. Besides being a good passer Colbert is a fleet shifty runner and a good drop kicker.

Capt. Paddy Creedon's physical condition should tell a big story in this Boston College-Holy Cross battle. Paddy has the football experience which is invaluable in a major game, and seems to inspire the other Eagle players.

McKenney May Quit as B. C. Grid Coach

Up at Holy Cross, Cleo O'Donnell is also applying the finishing touches. Cleo is something cocksure of winning although he's warning his boys to beware.

Cleo knows the value of psychology in a modern grid game. He knows that his team may lose, simply because they're 2 to 1 favorites.

Boston College will arrive in the Hub shortly before game time tomorrow morning. They'll do away with a few victuals at a local hotel and then trundle out to the park for a warm-up drill.

The Eagle lineup that will face Holy Cross will have Charley Murphy and John Dixon on the ends, Pete Herman and Jack Young, tackles, Al Morelli and Bud Gorman, guards; Harry Downes, center; Capt. Paddy Creedon, quarterback; Jack Marr and Chessy Antos, halfbacks, and Joe Kelley, fullback.

Right down the list it's really a good football team. There's no reason in the world why this outfit should lose the game. Individually the team is as strong as Holy Cross.

Dixon and Murphy are All-American ends. Dixon, as sweet a punter as there is in the country, and Murphy, who has never been seen to crumple before any number of interferers.

Young and Herman, the tackles. Young has been a regular all season. He's a fighter. Strong and rugged and a boy who'll take plenty and come back. Pete Herman, an iron man, 200 pounds of brawn. Not as smart as Warren McGuirk of a year ago, but a big, bruising lad with more than average football sense.

Gorman and Morelli, the guards. Gorman, quiet, inconspicuous but resourceful. A husky kid who'll play his heart out. Morelli, the miniature Tarzan.

Downes, at center, a big strapping sophomore. Just a kid, but another Ben Ticknor. He's trying to win his spurs and will give everything. He's an All-American two years hence.

And Capt. Paddy Creedon, a gamester. His leg in plaster until three days ago, he'll start tomorrow. It's his last game. And a shame at that. If Creedon had a normal leg, he'd be one of the country's best backs. But, leg and all, he'll show plenty against the Crusaders.

Antos and Marr at halfbacks. Antos, the best football man on the team. He lives for football. Plays the game morning, noon and night. Always in superb condition. He's as fast as a whippet beyond the line of scrimmage.

TUFTS MATMEN WORK OUT

With the football season at Tufts concluded, the wrestling season is under way with daily practice under the direction of Coach Sam Ruggeri.

Earl Littleton, Wilkinson, Giles, Mill Peck, Gallivan and Moulton, of the football team have reported to give Tufts a most promising outlook for the season. All of these men are experienced wrestlers from last year's varsity and freshman teams.

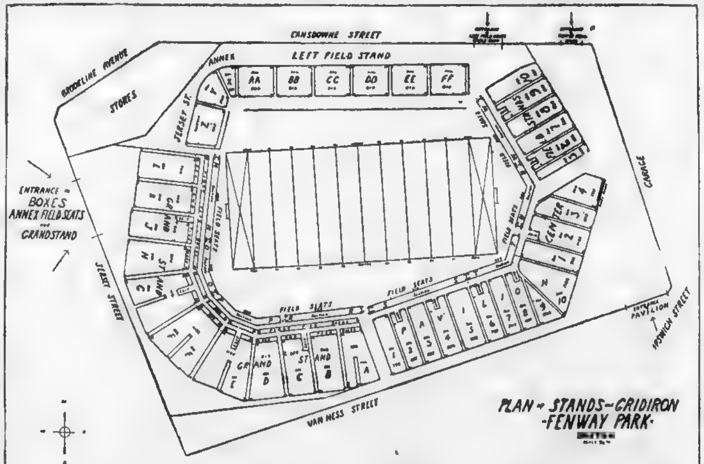
Capt. Frank Stella seems the only man sure of a permanent berth on the team, although he will be closely pressed by Cliff Hunt, Tuttle and Whippet Johnson.

Littleton seems to be a favorite in the unlimited class, his experience and weight giving him a decided advantage over Budnick and Moulton, two unlimited contenders.

Tener Elected Amherst Captain

Amherst, Nov. 28 (AP)—Hampden F. Tener of Coraopolis, Pa., has been elected captain of the Amherst College football team for next season. He started the season at end and finished at halfback, starring in both positions.

SEE WHERE YOU WILL SIT TOMORROW



Strongest H. C. Line in Years to Face B. C.

WORCESTER, Nov. 29—Holy Cross completed its preparatory drills for the Boston College game with a long workout.

Every department of the game was given some time, but it appeared that particular stress was laid upon the defense against a quick kicking, punting and forward passing game. Possibly that is the type game the Crusader coaches are expecting to have their team face, and in bringing the team to top shape, nothing was overlooked.

The Crusaders will face Boston College with one of the best forward walls that Coach Luke Kelley has developed in his career as line coach at Holy Cross, according to the opinion of O'Donnell, as the team finished its final practice of the season.

Usually reticent about his players, or reluctant to express an opinion about his prospects, Coach Kelley called his 1929 line the best balanced he has ever coached, when asked about the condition of the men for the Boston College contest at Fenway Park on Saturday.

Holy Cross will tackle its Jesuit rival without having gained a victory over the Eagles in the past four years. The Purple is rated a favorite to win on the comparative showing of the two teams against the same rivals this season and Worcester supporters are claiming a two-touchdown margin for the Crusaders.

The Purple will take a squad of 51 men to Boston, every one of whom is able to enter the game and all keenly fighting for the right to start. The battle for place, especially in the line and for the right halfback berth, is exceptionally keen.

Phil O'Connell of Brockton and Capt. Stuart Clancy are two backfield certainties. Hank Garrity of Jamaica Plain and Joe Dougherty of Pennsylvania, both veterans and both having played exceptionally well in the past few games, are waging a hard battle for the other halfback post.

The cripples from the Harvard game are fit to face B. C. while the Springfield game, an exceptionally clean one, added none to the injury list.

While the hard workout probably determined the starting lineup in all but a few places, the Purple coaches would not make their choices until after a meeting today at which the merits of the players will be discussed.

There is no workout scheduled for today. Head Coach Cleo A. O'Donnell has inaugurated the custom of rest on Friday this season and, in spite of the fact that it is the final game of the schedule and, that the Boston College-Holy Cross games are always hard fought, he decided to stick by his program and give the players a rest today.

Paulino Picked to Beat Griffith

Chicago, Nov. 29 (INS)—An apparent 7 to 5 favorite, Paulino Uzcudun, the Basque heavyweight, meets "Tuffy" Griffith tonight in one of the foremost ring encounters of the season.

Uzcudun will enter the ring with a decided weight advantage together with somewhat more experience than the Chicago heavyweight title aspirant possesses.

A victory for Griffith will place him close to the top rung in the heavyweight group of contenders.

Bruins Off to Play Pirates and Hawks

THE Bruins' squad gets away this afternoon on one of the stiffest road trips the team will be asked to make this season.

The schedule calls for the world champions to play the Pittsburgh Pirates in Pittsburgh, tomorrow night, and then jump to Chicago for a game against the greatly strengthened Blackhawks.

The games will complete the first round of American division play for the Bruins, and while Manager Ross will be satisfied to break even on the trip the players hope to turn back both teams.

Two of the five games the Bruins have played have been against American division teams. The Rossmen defeated both Detroit and Rangers, and this trip will prove to Boston fans just what opposition can be expected for the season from Pittsburgh and Chicago.

Fortunately the Bruins will have Harry Oliver back on right wing in the Carson line tomorrow night, and Eddie Shore will be ready to play, though Manager Ross is reluctant to start him in any game until he is fit again. The big star is rapidly recovering from his injuries suffered at Montreal last Saturday night, though it will be weeks before the traces of his five scars leave him.

Arena A. C. Bouts Postponed 2 Weeks

The Ricardo Bertazzolo-Big Boy Rawson boxing bout, scheduled at the Boston Arena for Monday evening, Dec. 2, has been postponed until Dec. 16.

Bertazzolo, accompanied by his manager, Phil Bucolo, visited the Arena A. C. office yesterday afternoon and requested Bob McKirdy to put the bout over until the 16th.

Bertazzolo, who recently returned from a visit to his home in Italy wants more time to train, as he wants to be in the best condition of his career. He realizes when he meets Rawson he is facing the hardest puncher in the heavyweight ranks.

GREEN READY FOR BATTLE WITH NAVY

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 29—Thanksgiving Day was duly recognized in the Dartmouth football camp, and all hands were granted a day off just before the final drill in preparation for the Navy battle tomorrow.

As guests of the University of Pennsylvania, the Green squad witnessed the Penn-Cornell game at Philadelphia and immediately after the visit to the scene of their contest with the Middies and Indians returned here by bus.

The Penn squad similarly will be the guests of Dartmouth this week end.

Tomorrow's game will be the last of the season for the Indian squad, but because it is being held away from home, the usual ceremonies of burning the dummy and so forth will be omitted.

The work today will be very light, and only of a limbering-up nature. The coaches feel that the squad has regained its fit condition after two days strenuous practice in weather much warmer than that offered at Hanover, and the final drill will cause the last kink in the team to disappear.

Very little defensive work has been accomplished to date, and it is quite likely that this phase of preparation for the Navy encounter will predominate today.

Gentle Elected Penn Grid Captain

Philadelphia, Nov. 29 — Dick Gentle of Brookline, Mass, flashy Pennsylvania halfback, was elected captain of the 1930 team after featuring his team's triumph over Cornell with a 102-yard run for a touchdown. Gentle is also a hurdler on the Quaker track team.

Gentle's run, one of the longest of the year on any gridiron, enabled Pennsylvania to tie the score in short order after the Quakers had been outplayed through the first half. Thereafter, Gentle and his versatile running mate, Walt Masters, ran Cornell ragged.

Before the close of the third period, Penn had scored another touchdown, with Gentle taking the ball over on a short buck after Masters had raced 50 yards from fake punt formation to make the job fairly easy for his running mate.

M'CORGARY AND FLYNN CLASH

By JACK CONWAY

MATCHMAKER EDDIE MACK was talking to those persons who had managed to squeeze into his private office at the Boston Garden.

"This is the greatest all-star boxing show in the history of New England," said Eddie, as he punctured the air with a perfectly good cigar.

Jack Conway

Mack was referring to his three feature bouts at the Boston Garden tonight. For once we do not hesitate in agreeing with a boxing promotor. The show at the Garden tonight is an unusually brilliant attraction.

Arthur Flynn punching away with Babe McCorgary.

A few four rounders between local boys, while the crowd is getting seated.

Mister Mack didn't exaggerate one bit when he proclaimed this as the greatest all-star boxing show in the history of New England.

THE tussle between Callahan and Zeramby is a natural. It will bring together the foremost lightweights in New England, a couple of youngsters who hope to emulate some of the ring feats of Matty Baldwin, Gilbert Gallant and Eddie Murphy.

Callahan has come roaring down the fistic trail undefeated since he crashed into the pro ranks. They call him the Lawrence Thunderbolt on account of his aggressive style of milling and ability to make the opposition sag under the power of his terrific punches.

Andy still has the flush of youth on his cheeks. He is only 19 years of age and his admirers are confident he is destined to make a name for himself in the ring.

ZERAMBY is the best of the new crop of Jewish boxers. As he banged his way out front, he defeated Eddie Anderson, Johnny Parr, Sammy Fuller and Andre Routis.

In his last start, Zeramby was outpointed by Fuller. The weight for that contest was 131 pounds. Jake was obliged to weigh in a second time after going through a workout in order to get down to the required notch.

That experience convinced Zeramby that he is a lightweight. Tonight he will scale around 135 pounds and will have all of his thunder when he breezes into action.

THE meeting between Billy Murphy and Bruce Flowers should be a slashing affair. There are folks who figured that Flowers licked Zeramby and Callahan. Bruce is an experienced battler and can punch with each hand.

and Wakeman for a 51 yard run, before he was desperately pulled down by Handleman on the 9-yard line then, after two shots at the center of the Cornell line. Gentle went over with what proved to be the winning touchdown.

Although Gentle was Penn's scoring ace Masters was the outstanding back. He is well versed in every department of the game. He is very fast, cuts with lightning speed and is most effective at reversing his field. He couples with these physical abilities an innate football sense.

He gave a heady exhibition of punting whenever called upon to kick, by not only keeping the ball away from Howie Johnson, Cornell's safety man, but by placing it in the territory of Paul Riblett, one of the greatest down the field ends I have ever seen.

It would be an oversight to close without paying tribute to Howie Johnson, Cornell's fighting little quarterback. Johnson received a leg injury early in the game, but held on by sheer grit until late in the final quarter. He was always dangerous despite his handicap and closely watched at all times by Penn.

In summing up this great game, Penn's success was due to assistance offered the ball carriers by both the line and the backfield carrying out their blocking assignments.

Penn did a fine job, looking at its play from any angle and was fully entitled to its 27th victory over Cornell.

British Finally Accept Steel Golf Clubs

St. Andrews, Scotland, Nov. 29—The British rules of golf committee announced its approval of steel-shafted clubs which now will be legal for British championships.

Controversy over the steel shaft has divided British golfers in two great camps and only this week a competitor in a national event was disqualified for using steel-shafted clubs.

England still holds out against the new standard ball which will be adopted in this country a year hence.

Crowley Resigns as Coach at Columbia

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—Charley Crowley, head coach of football at Columbia University, has resigned.

Crowley's announcement followed Columbia's 6 to 0 defeat by Syracuse, the second year in succession in which the Lions failed to score a major victory. Last year Columbia's best against major opposition was a scoreless tie with Cornell.

The resignation was announced by Columbia University officials in the following statement:

The Columbia University committee on athletics has received the following letter from Coach Charles F. Crowley:

"As you will recall in our previous conversations in connection with your football plans for 1930, I felt that my name should not be considered in those plans, and I am still of the same mind.

"I would like to repeat that statement at this time when you will quite likely wish to take definite action regarding your coaching staff for the coming year."

In view of the foregoing letter the athletic authorities will take necessary steps to select a new head coach.

Crowley, who came to Columbia in 1925, has been a frequenut target for adverse criticism from Columbia undergraduates and alumni. There have been repeated rumors over a period of a year or more that he would resign. Several reports were to the effect that he would resign unless Columbia won at least one major game this season, but the Lions lost to Dartmouth, Colgate, Penn, Cornell and Syracuse. Crowley's statement, however indicated that he had reached his decision to resign some time ago.

In connection with reports as to possible successors the name of Herb McCracken, former Pitt star who has been coaching Lafayette teams with great success in recent years. Others mentioned in the same connection include Dr. Clarence Spears, coach at Minnesota, Glenn S. Warner, Stanford coach, and Dick Hanley, Northwestern mentor.

West End House Has Three Races

E. Burnes won the senior division of the West End House cross-country run. He represented the Selwyn Club. L. Stein of the Excelsior Club was second only a foot behind Burnes. The time was 19 minutes, 37 1-5 seconds.

A. Savinsky won the intermediate race. J. Longo was second and A. Fraser was third. The time was 12 minutes, 45 seconds.

B. Wurl won the junior race. A. Rodensky was second and G. Eavman third. The time was 2 minutes, 43 seconds.

Colonial
double-quick Wintergas

Sing a song of swiftness—a motor-full of speed! Colonial Double-Quick Wintergas is here, and it's all that the name implies.

Try this uncanny fuel today. No matter what the temperature, motor responds to starter with a smile. No matter how long your car's been standing, power answers accelerator with action—smooth, silent, sure.

Hard to believe? Not when you know the Colonial Wintergas story. Two special processes are the secret. One seals in the most volatile elements. A second sifts out the heavy "keroseny borderland" parts. And a specially selected crude to begin with!

Gamble a tank-full today and check up. There's a Colonial pump near you—and Colonial attendants will serve you the way Colonial Wintergas will send you away—Double-Quick! P. S. It costs you no more.

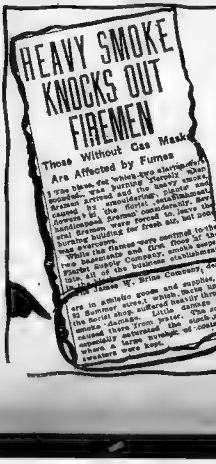
Colonial gives you greasing jobs that need no overseeing

You don't have to stand around and check up on your greasing job when it's a Colonial operator doing it. Whatever the make or year of your car, he knows it like a book. When he entered the Beacon Oil Company's employ, he spent two intensive weeks at one of the three Colonial training schools learning every operation. Moreover, he has the very latest equipment and the very finest greases to work with. And the strictly enforced Colonial policy is one of Yankee thoroughness and honesty. Give Colonial a trial.



HEAVY SMOKE KNOCKS OUT FIREMEN

Those Without Gas Masks Are Affected by Fumes

The blaze, for which two alarms were sounded, was burning fiercely when firemen arrived and the heavy smoke, caused by smouldering plants and flowers in the florist establishment, handicapped firemen considerably. Several firemen were forced to leave the burning building for fresh air, but none was overcome.

While the flames were confined to the two basements and first floor of the Florist Supply Company, smoke seeped into all of the business establishments in the building, [illegible] James W. Brine Company, dealers in athletic goods and supplies, at 92 Summer street, which backs up to the florist shop, suffered heavily through smoke damage. Little damage was caused there from water. The smoke especially saturated the stock room, where a large number of coats and sweaters were kept.

THOUSANDS IN GREETING TO SANTASON

Flashing through the sombre gray of a chill November morning like a comet, the great orange hydroplane brought shrill cheers from thousands of young folk as the arrival of Santason in Boston fulfilled the promise of Santa Claus that his own son would come to this city for the Christmas season.

Literally thousands of boys and girls with their parents thronged the Charles River Esplanade for more than an hour before Santason was due to arrive. They moved about and gazed with wide-eyed amazement at the clowns, the comic policemen and all the other characters who were later in the parade.

Rocking in the breeze, the great Bunny and the Sky Tiger did all sorts of funny tricks, while the elephant lumbered clumsily through his stunts and waived his snaky trunk in search of peanuts that no one seemed to have.

CLOSE TO SCHEDULE.

Only a few minutes late and remarkably close to schedule considering his long flight from the Northland, Santason landed on the wave-tossed surface of the Basin where his father went out and met him in one of the Metropolitan Police speedboats. Such a shout as went up when he stepped ashore at the landing!

Then along the streets of the city wound the parade. All along the route were thousands of other boys and girls, and their parents, too.

Someone said that Tony Sarg must be a grown up boy himself because his wonderful animals so much the kind of things that every youngster loves. All through the parade these great creatures bowed, swayed and made friends with those along the way. The Sky Tiger, seating himself on the pavement in front of the State House while he preened himself for whatever it is that a tiger does when he smooths down his wet fur with a huge red tongue) was worth coming miles and standing hours in the rain to see.

WELCOME AT TOYLAND.

The parade was to Jordan Marsh store, where officers of the company and many guests met Santason and made him welcome to the store's Toyland to make his headquarters with Santa Claus until Christmas.

The final episode of the day was the getting free of two of the animal balloons in front of the Jordan store. These went high into the air and sped away before the wind. Dozens of motor cars started in pursuit, as there was a reward of $100 each for their capture and return to Jordan's.

NINE SMALL N.E. WOOLEN MILLS TO BE CLOSED

Nine small New England mills, owned and operated by the American Woolen Co., will soon be shut down because they have been operated at a loss for 21 months, according to officials of the organization.

The mills that will be closed are Saranac Mills, Blackstone, Mass.; Rochdale Mills, Rochdale, Mass.; Ray Mills, Franklin, Mass.; Sebasticook Mills, Pittsfield, Me.; Newport Mills, Newport, Me.; Oakland Mills, Oakland, Me.; Waverly Mill, Pittsfield, Me.; Forest Mill, Bridgton, Me., and Lebanon Mill, Lebanon, N. H.

According to officials of the American Woolen Co. these mills have been operating to only 25 to 30 per cent of their capacity during the current year and their upkeep and operation have been a heavy drain in consequence. Sound business judgment dictates their closing because of the losses they caused.

There is no intention on the part of the officials of the company to close any large mills of the organization or to reduce wages. The contemplated curtailment will result in a net saving of more than $1,000,000 annually, it is estimated after a liberal allowance is made for the maintenance of the closed mills. In addition to the elimination of the losses from operation of these mills there will be a big reduction in inventory.

The large mills of the company will be able to take care of all business offered and will be on a more profitable basis when operating at higher capacity. None of the worsted mills which represent 75 per cent of the earning power of the company, will be closed.

Davis' Welsh Song Means Wire Tolls

Washington, Nov. 29 (AP)—Secretary Davis' Welsh singing proclivities are netting the telegraph companies considerable money. He sang in Welsh over the radio. At the White House cabinet meeting today he said apparently most of the 2,000,000 Welshmen in the United States heard him "and every mother's son of them sent me a telegram."

EYE TORN OUT BY DOORHANDLE

Suffering the loss of his right eye, a fractured jaw, a broken nose and scalp injuries, George Houghton, 31, a leather worker, residing on Franklin st., Peabody, is in a serious condition at the J. B. Thomas Hospital, Peabody, as a result of being knocked down by an automobile on the Newburyport turnpike.

Arthur Vaughan, of Rowe st., Salem, his companion, is also at the hospital suffering from a broken collar bone and internal injuries. Houghton and Vaughan were walking on the turnpike towards Peabody sq., when an automobile operated by Olaf A. Peterson of Portsmouth, N. H., struck them.

Houghton tried to get away from the path of the machine, but in doing so he came in contact with the handle of the door of the machine. His right eye was practically torn from its socket.

Today, in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

2 Injured as Auto Crashes Street Car

Two men were injured and traffic at Kenmore sq. was tied up today when an automobile operated by Noble R. Pearson of Montvale st., Roslindale, was in collision with an outbound Watertown Brighton trolley car.

Pearson was shaken up and Frank Reynolds of Paul Gore st., Jamaica Plain, riding with him, was cut by flying glass.

Pearson was crossing Kenmore sq. in the direction of East Brookline st., when the crash occurred.

Chief and Vice Raider Deny Guilt

Cleveland, Nov. 29 (AP)—Frank Cunningham, suspended chief of police at Campbell, Youngstown suburb, pleaded not guilty to conspiracy to violate national prohibition laws when arraigned in federal court today. He was released on $5000 bond.

Nick Gorcheff, chief of the Campbell vice squad, and Mike Wollos, a Campbell real estate man, also pleaded not guilty to similar charges and were held in $1000 each.

Despondent Man Kills Self in R. I.

Providence, Nov. 29—Despondent since the death of his wife 10 years ago, Richard A. Bradfield, 61, retired liquor dealer, took his life with a revolver today at his home in Smith st.

According to his daughter, Mrs. Elinor Dunphy of New York, he made an attempt at suicide a few years ago.

Central Vermont to Buy 1000 Auto Cars

Washington, Nov. 29 (AP)—Approval of the issuance of $1,841,000 of trust certificates was asked today by the Central Vermont railway of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The securities would be issued to partially finance the purchase of 1000 automobile cars.

While situations frequently occur at Contract in hich an immediate assist to a game bid is warranted, there are many, if not more, situations in which partners must carefully test out their respective strength before committing themselves to a game declaration.

The East-West players of this deal proceed upon this principle, neither partner making any unjustifiable assumption as to the strength held by the other. The defensive bidding of the North-South players is also worthy of special note.

Salient Points of Bidding

Auction: Although South holds the probability of five tricks in the Heart suit, he lacks 2 Quick Tricks, the minimum number guaranteed by any original bid, and passes.

West bids one Spade and North overcalls defensively with two Clubs, holding just about the minimum requirements for such defensive bid East clearly has more than sufficient strength to assist partner's bid and overcalls with two Spades.

While unable to bid originally, South's holding well justifies a defensive bid of three Hearts, on the assumption that his partner holds at least the minimum high card strength (1½ Quick Tricks) guaranteed by his defensive overcall of two Clubs.

West now bids three Spades having greater trick probability than that shown by his bid of one, and all pass thereafter.

Contract: South passing, West bids one Spade and North overcalls with two Clubs, as in Auction

East, however, with four of partner's suit and strong side strength jumps the bid to three Spades immediately. Some players might be tempted with East's holding to bid four-odd for game at once. Such procedure in my opinion would be unsound, as East lacks the full values for such a game bid and would therefore be acting on the unjutifiable assumption that West held more than shown by his original bid of one

If the East-West players were Vulnerable, three Spades is the absolute limit of East's bid and even if not Vulnerable, three is his preferable bid. As in Auction, South overcalls with Hearts, his bid of four a justifiable one as a defensive measure following partner's two Club bid.

Salient Points of Play

North leads initially the Heart 10, upon which South plays the Jack and West wins with the Ace. Declarer now stops to plan the play of the hand. He sees at once that he has one Heart loser, one Diamond loser and one or two Club losers (possibly but one, inasmuch as Dummy's King is back of the Club bid). Before testing the trump situation he takes the Diamond finesse which, should it lose, will throw South in the lead and obviate the possibility of an immediate lead through the King of Clubs should opponents find such lead expedient.

The second trick, therefore, is as follows.

3rd Trick: E. Spade 3; S, Heart 4; W, Spade Ace; N, Spade 6.

South, showing out of Spades, marks the North hand as having held four to the Jack originally and enables Declarer to lead through North's remaining Spades and pick up all three. The fourth, fifth and sixth tricks are therefore three rounds of Spades, West winning the sixth trick with the Queen in his own hand.

To the seventh trick, West leads the Diamond 7, North plays the King, Dummy's Ace winning. West now leads a small Diamond up to his Jack and follows with the Club 5, trusting that the Ace will lie in the North hand. As the Ace is so placed, it will be seen that Declarer makes four-odd losing in all the King of Hearts, and either two Clubs, or one Club and one Diamond.

LINER SLIGHTLY DAMAGED

New York, Nov. 29—A survey at the pier disclosed that the liner Mauretania was only slightly damaged as the result of a collision with a railway car float in the harbor near the Statue of Liberty

The giant liner, outward bound proceeded to quarantine after the accident and remained anchored until daybreak. She then steamed to her pier under her own power and a force of about 50 men was put to work immediately repairing the damage to her port bow, above the water line. The task required eight hours.

Ship's officers said the shock of the collision was not particularly severe and many of the passengers who had retired did not know of the accident until they awakened today.

ONE simple human IDEAL . . .

WHEN the earnest young James Coward first started in for himself in a tiny shop on Greenwich Street more than six decades ago, he had no noble purposes, no great ambitions to become a captain of industry.

He had only a homely ideal . . . to be the kind of shoemaker who turned out better, more comfortable shoes than could be found anywhere else, and to offer them at the fairest possible price.

In this ideal he succeeded well. He studied the principles of designing comfortable shoes for all the general types of foot structure, he sought out the finest leathers available, he made himself into an expert workman by long hours at his work bench.

Today there are three Coward Stores . . . the largest retail shoe stores in the whole world. And the men who carry forward the business of James Coward still behave as they would if James Coward himself were in charge. Methods of making shoes may have changed with the changing methods of new eras, but the standards of this business have not changed in the slightest degree.

Hundreds of Thousands of Pairs of Shoes Have Been Built Over This Coward Last!

This shoe wears a "modern costume" over a last created more than 30 years ago by James Coward. Realizing that enlargement of the big toe joint (bunion) was not only distressingly painful, but that it caused shoes to become misshapen after just a few wearings, he set out to build a shoe that would correct both annoyances. And here it is.

A new Version of an old favorite . . .

This latest version is as trim and graceful as a woman could want. Yet still hidden within it is a soft pocket adapted to the size of the bunion . . . to bring comfort . . . to lengthen the shoe's life.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Health Hint

WOMAN'S EYES SHOULD BE LOVELIEST POINT

Influence of Pretty Orbs Most Stimulating

By MARIA JERITZA

"DRINK to me only with thine eyes,

And I will pledge with mine," sang the poet, 300 years ago. And the sentiment holds even in this prohibition era.

Stimulating, if not intoxicating, is the influence of young eyes, pretty eyes, clear, sparkling eyes that send messages to someone else's eyes.

Maria Jeritza

A woman's eyes should be the loveliest, most potent factor of her beauty. But they are not always attractive, especially if they look tired, with inflamed lids and hollows or else swollen pouches underneath them. Nearly all the beauty ills of the eyes can be overcome by intelligent care.

Do not make the mistake of reading all the evening, by the illumination of the beautiful shade of your favorite lamp, which gives a mellow but entirely inadequate light. Nearly every home has such a lamp and shade. They are decorative, but disastrous to the eyes. Choose a clear, even light, which is bright but not dazzling—when you read or devote yourself to any kind of close work. Daylight is, of course, best of all, with the light coming in over your left shoulder. If you strain your eyesight working in poor or inadequate light, do not be surprised if your eyes look like holes in a blanket and your lids are red.

Lack of sleep or run-down health is usually the cause of clamshells under the eyes—those unlovely, ageing hollows. Constipation, sluggish intestines or kidney trouble may be indicated by bags under the lids.

So build up your health. Drink plenty of water—at least six glasses every day. Get exercise in the fresh air. Eat wholesome food with plenty of vegetables and fruit. Keep hopeful and happy. Avoid late parties and false stimulants. These simple health and beauty measures will do more than anything else to keep your eyes bright, clear and youthfully lovely.

Sometimes women use eye-washes or even strong drugs to make their eyes look bright. This is a dangerous mistake, for the eyes are delicate and you have but one pair. Instead of eye-washes and lotions, I would suggest this simple method.

Last thing of all at night, just before you open your window wide and switch off your lamp, lay a very warm cloth on your closed lids and let it remain on a moment while you lie in bed. This will release your eye muscles from the rigid position they are likely to be in, relax and rest them, and banish the look of strain, which otherwise even a night's rest may not entirely remove. Mornings sponge your eyelids with cold water rather than warm water.

Even at night, a very little eye makeup goes a long way. The eye-compact or powder, matching the color of your eyes, should be applied to the upper lid only and very lightly.

Healthy eyes, expressing the beauty of intelligence and alert interest and sympathy, do not need artificial aids in order to be irresistably lovely.

Chafing Dish Suppers

WHETHER we have an electric chafing dish or not, there are times when we want to "make the party on the table," and when we do so it is sure to be an informal frolic which everyone wants to share, and at which everyone has such a good time they want to come again.

Martha Lee

The secret, of course, of making these parties successful is not to have too much for those who want to help to do, and to have everything ready so that the hostess herself will not seem hurried or the least bit flustered. To have this kind of a party run smoothly everything must be ready to put together, and taken from the ice box at the last minute.

If you are serving from a card table, have whatever linen, dishes and silver you are using ready to put on instantly so that there will be no confusion finding anything and no asking guests to do things which are really hard for them to do. The easier a chafing dish party is made for everyone, the more fun it will be.

I am suggesting two dishes delicious for chafing dish suppers:

CREAMED CHICKEN WITH TINY PEAS

Make a white sauce of 4 tbsps. butter, 4 tbsps. flour, 2 cups rich milk and liquor from a No. 1 can tiny peas. Add 1 tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper and 1½ cups of cut-up chicken. Add 1 tsp. lemon juice and cook until all is smooth. Serve on nicely browned pieces of toast or split baking powder biscuits. Serves 8.

MUSHROOMS AND EGGS A LA KING

Cook 1 can of mushroom caps in 1½ cups thin cream in top of double boiler for 5 minutes. Add 1½ tbsps. flour smoothed in a little cold milk, salt and pepper to taste, a few grains of nutmeg and cook until slightly thickened, stirring constantly. Add 6 hard-cooked sliced eggs and just before serving add 2 tbsps. lemon juice. If wished, sour cream may be used instead of sweet, and the lemon juice omitted. Serve in toast cases and garnish plates with parsley. Serves 8.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

Etiquette at Weddings

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

I have been a reader of your column for the past seven years and have found it so helpful that I am writing to you now in the hope that you may be able to help me with my problem.

I am engaged and expect to be married shortly. While discussing the marriage plans with both families, I mentioned the bridesmaids and ushers—and there the difficulty lies. My fiance has one sister and a brother younger than himself, and one brother who is older. I have a younger brother and two very young sisters. My fiance's sister insists that she should be maid of honor, since I have no sister old enough to fill that place, while I would rather have my girl friend as my chief attendant, with my fiance's older brother as best man. My future sister-in-law says it is proper for her to be coupled with her brother while I say it is not. She also says she does not think it necessary for her oldest brother to be best man, while I feel that that much courtesy and respect are due him. Although he will not voice his opinion, if asked to be just an usher, I know he will feel slighted. Haven't I the right to choose my girl friend instead of my future sister-in-law? Isn't it my duty to make my fiance's oldest brother the best man?

BRIDE-TO-BE.

I HOPE that some day the millenium will come when the families and friends of a bride allow her to make her own decisions for her wedding. The wedding day should be the bride's day and everybody should co-operate most agreeably and pleasantly and completely to help her carry out all the little plans and dreams that she has always had of what she wants for her wedding. And I wish that you and I could persuade your future sister-in-law to realize this. Don't you suppose we can? She has no right in the world to make any suggestion as to whom you should choose for your chief attendant. That is one of your sacred privileges, and nobody should make any suggestions concerning it.

You may, if you wish, have your two young sisters as maids of honor. I think this is a very charming plan, even if they are quite young. I wish you had told me just how old they are. But if you think they are too young, then, by all means, invite your girl friend to be your chief attendant. Explain to your sister-in-law that this is your choice, and that you are very anxious to carry out this plan. Be as pleasant mannered as possible. If you are to have bridesmaids, it would, of course, be correct for you to invite your bridegroom's sister to be one of the bridesmaids but even this is not absolutely necessary even though customary.

Just as your sister-in-law-to-be should not have anything to say about your choice of your chief attendant, so you do not make the choice of the best man. The best man is chosen by the bridegroom and is invited by him. It is according to custom for the bridegroom to invite his brother to be his best man, and it would seem strange if your bridegroom did not do this.

court over there in that lump of trees.

A little alarmed now, she began to call very loudly. Another nurse helped.

Finally Sophie became angry. "Billy," she called hotly, "come now! Your mother will get mad! It's late! Billy—Billy—"

The whole park now rang with the frightened calls. But no child answered.

The two women turned to each other with white faces and panic filled eyes. They wasted precious moments creeping under bushes, running again and again over the same ground, shouting the same distracted "Billy—Billy—"

It was five-fifteen and the sun was setting. Almost immediately the light began to fade.

"Oh," said Sophie, clinging to the other nurse's hand, "where can he be!"

They went back and forth to the end of the grassy square—out to the street. Their shouting was now a clamor.

"Are you looking for a little boy in a white suit?" a woman came up and asked.

"Yes!"

"I saw him. About an hour ago. He was walking with a man in a brown suit. They got into a gray sedan."

"Did the boy have light hair?"

"Yes. Golden hair, and he wore no hat."

Sophie clapped her hands over her face. Finally, and almost fainting she asked: "Was it a big gray car?"

"I don't think so—not so very big."

"But you're not sure—it might have been a big gray limousine?" She almost implored the woman to say that it was a big car.

For this might be the answer. Barbara Bryce might have come in her great silver limousine. Perhaps she had become indignant finding the child playing alone, and she had sent the chauffeur to get her son. She was taking this cruel way of teaching the nurse a lesson.

Scarcely able to form a syllable Sophie reached William Bryce's home. There in front of the door was the big silver limousine. She pressed her finger on the bell—rang frantically. She could not steady her hand to use her key.

Barbara Bryce and her father, sitting in the living room, heard a sudden sobbing clamor in the hall. They came hurrying out. . .

"Billy — Billy — he's here — you came and got him?" Sophie gasped.

Seeing their wild looks, she dropped swooning to the floor. The terrible news was in their ears. Some one had come to the park and lured their child, their little golden-haired Billy away.

At about the same hour Pat waited at Mills' Field. It was cold now and she climbed into the cabin of Guy's proud, shiny, new plane. Any moment he would be along.

She felt happy. She recalled the sparkling words of yesterday—"Pat, dear—next week, perhaps, we'll take to the air for the long, long flight. On $500 a month we can do it—not, so sweet?"

She was glad for this resilience of his. Let Bryce do his darndest—he'd never down that tall, shining spirit of her brown and happy lover's.

She wondered dreamily what had happened at the plant this Monday. Bryce had, of course, paid up the week's wages. Perhaps it was all blown over now.

And in any case, there was that other beautiful chance with the Botfield Co.

She sank down deep and happy in her pleasant speculations. How sweet this dream of hers. Little more than a year ago it had seemed so far, far beyond her wildest hopes. That day when Guy came down like a God from the very skies to her.

How miraculously happy she was that evening with Dickie saved and she walking at the side of the tall and sparkling young man to whom she was now promised and whom she loved with all her heart.

Pat smiled—dreaming on—her eyes half closed.

Suddenly the motor was started—men were tuning up the plane. She poked her head from the cabin. The mechanic recognized her and said: "Mr. Elliott had orders telephoned from the plant. He ordered the motor tuned up. He'll be here any moment now."

Pat nodded. She listened to the roar and throttle.

Now the sun had set . . . now the light was fading. Only a short flight tonight. . . .

Now it was almost dark . . . and then, abruptly, without a word to her, the plane went taxi-ing down the field.

He was in the cockpit. She made out his shoulders. She climbed up and touched him.

Pat stood frozen, teetering with the quick takeoff. It wasn't Guy at the wheel.

Correcting Your Child's Bad Habits

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

IT ONLY takes two or three times doing a thing and, lo and behold, your child seems to have securely tied into his behavior pattern a habit which must be broken.

Constance Cameron

It is easy to say, "Don't let a child form bad habits," but I know as well as any one that it isn't an easy axiom to carry out. For little habits seem to crop up over night. Then all we can do is to patiently and diligently try to substitute a GOOD habit, a happy habit, for the bad one.

Many babies take to thumb sucking and I know of no substitute which I would feel right in suggesting for the thumb-sucking habit. That is just one of the things which must be patiently worked at until Baby has forgotten it. It takes time and watchful care, but is a habit which must be broken.

My own baby suddenly formed a habit which bothered me considerably. Upon sight of a certain relative baby would hold her breath until she was blue. It developed that the relative in playing with her had held her breath, puffed out her cheeks, and "a good time was had by all."

Presently, however, it became serious and something had to be done. So the relative upon a visit brought two squawkers of bright red. Putting one to her lips, she blew OUT. My two-year-old grasped hers and did likewise. They had a good laugh, and the breath-holding was forgotten.

The woman then suggested something different and funny, and though the baby did not alway blow OUT on sight of the woman, she never again held her breath. That habit was gone.

Habits of personal cleanliness can be taught at a much earlier age than most people suppose. Carefully watching for Baby's awakening and immediately taking him up, with smiles and praise, and sentiments of "Such a nice BIG boy to wait for mother," or "Such a good CLEAN boy," will be comprehended—possibly more through your tone than the actual words—by even a very young baby.

It never works to harp on a bad habit, either with young or older people. The more you concentrate on something you wish to stop doing, the more you long to do it. Put SOMETHING ELSE in your mind or your child's mind to take the place of the habit you are trying to abandon.

Bad eating habits can be slipped into readily with young children and it is especially hard to correct them. One hates to say "No" when a little fellow is hungry. But it is better for small stomachs to be filled at regular time. A friend of mine has a four-year-old daughter who was eating on schedule until a few weeks ago, when at 4 o'clock she begged for her dinner.

Now her bedtime was at six, and the mother knew that a feeding at four would result in an abnormally early awakening due to hunger, and she was determined to keep the child on her regular routine. So at first she refused food at four, but offered orange juice. Then in three days she gave the child a big glass of water and suggested that they play together on the floor with the blocks. The child loved to have mother play with her, and this thought chased away hunger thoughts. It only took a week of substituting a very happy and desired play period to dispel all thoughts of too early a dinner.

BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

MRS. JAKE ELLIOTT has just had to take her sixteen-year-old boy Eddie out of Hi. She was in to see me yesterday and told me about it . . . sobbing in that helpless way of hers.

Elsie Robinson

"I'm just about heartbroken," she cried. "He's the brightest of my five. I thought it was awful when Jake wouldn't let Nelly and Jim go through but they weren't really what you'd call scholars. They didn't seem to mind going to work so much. But Eddie's just about crazy. He'd set his heart on being a lawyer and you know a boy just has to have an education for that. N' how much education can he get, leaving school like this to work in a garage?

"It isn't as if 'twas really necessary either. We have money enough by managing, to put him through. But you know Jake . . . I've talked and talked to him but it doesn't do a bit of good. He's a self-made man and he's got no use for school education, he says. He says if a boy's worth his salt he'll get out and work when he's sixteen. And, of course, there's nothing for me to do . . . a wife's got to stick by her husband. But it's always hard on a good mother to see her boy's life spoiled like that."

That's Mrs. Elliott's story. It's a sincere story. She really believes that she's a good mother and that she can't do any more than she has to help her boy. She is doing exactly what she saw good mothers do when she was a girl . . . what she was taught good wives and mothers should do.

"KNUCKLING DOWN" . . . . TAKING WHATEVER SORT OF A DEAL WAS HANDED THEM AND THEIR CHILDREN . . . . MEEKNESS, PATIENCE, SUBMISSION TO ALL MALE DOMINANCE . . . such were the wifely and motherly virtues when Mrs. Elliott was young. She thinks they're virtues yet. THEY'RE NOT!

Poor little Mrs. Elliott with her helpless sobbing might have passed as a good mother in 1829, but she rates as a bad and cowardly mother in 1929.

Good motherhood doesn't mean "knuckling down" any more. It means standing on your hind legs and acting human. It means knowing your job and putting it across with a bang. It means putting up an awful scrap to defend your children if necessary.

It isn't often necessary any more, thank goodness. The average American father is as generous as he possibly can be with his child and is ambitious for him. But there are thousands of fathers who still have not caught the American idea . . . and thousands of spineless mothers who feel that what "papa says" is law.

But society doesn't applaud such means any more. Meekness, that subjected her children to abuse, might have entitled a mother to crowns in heaven once, but it only entitles her to a snappy bawling-out in juvenile court now.

THE GOOD MOTHER OF 1929 IS SUPPOSED TO FIGHT FOR HER CHILDREN'S GOOD NO MATTER WHAT PAPA SAYS. And she has plenty of ammunition wherewith to fight. She has laws and officials behind her, jobs and courts at her command. If Jake Elliott won't help mama keep Eddie in school, the authorities will help her—

AND SHE'S A MIGHTY BAD MOTHER IF SHE TWO-TIMES EDDIE BECAUSE SHE'S AFRAID OF HIS DAD.

The Truth

By ELINOR GLYNN,
ABOUT "COPPER TOPS"

THIS letter is to be red-haired!

As you probably know, girls, my hair is red, so that I am sympathetic with the "Copper Tops" and their difficulties!

Elinor Glyn

Whatever it is that produces red hair, also produces that delicate white tone of skin, hardly ever pink white, but generally blue white with a tendency to turquoise in the shadows.

This lovely skin often draws freckles, too, which are very disfiguring, but fortunately can be eliminated these days.

There are, of course, those with brownish toned skins and red hair, but they are very rare. The majority of red tops have almost snowy white skin of very fine texture. So that sunburn or any tone of brown superimposed upon such complexions in combination with their hair, makes one of the ugliest combinations possible.

Now that the arbitrary fashion of tan has passed, the ruddy locked girls can enjoy their individuality and the whiter their skins are, the lovelier they will look.

If they have strong personalities and almond shaped eyes with dark lashes and unplucked eyebrows (another silly fashion which happily has passed away!) they look better with no pinks in the cheeks, but with red lips and pink ears.

But if their eyes are blue and unshadowed, soft pink cheeks—the pink on the rose side, not the orange—they look best in black, unrelieved except perhaps a flower or other ornament the color of their eyes.

Gift Hints for Christmas

By LUCY LOWELL

A FEW more weeks and the air will be a-tingle with the thrill of expectancy—mystery—good will. The world will trim itself with green and red and silver and forget that it is old and full of care, and all day long and half the night ears will listen to the rustle of Holiday Lists.

Lucy Lowell

Whether those lists are to be jumbled together hit and miss depends upon what the giver of gifts—the one who will write the lists—is thinking now.

It is not too early to make out your Christmas program. Of course you may have to make revisions, but in the main it will go unchanged since some gifts for those whom you wish particularly to remember should be decided upon now, before the rush and general excitement may obscure calm, leisurely thought.

And why stop with merely making out the list? Why not do all the shopping you possibly can right now before crowds begin to swarm and salespeople are worn to a frazzle and everybody's nerves are on edge?

There are two things to remember in connection with your holiday planning. First, that "the gift without the giver is bare"; second, that the gift should please the recipient.

Easy enough to put something of yourself into the gift; some loving thoughtfulness to far outweigh the actual monetary value of the article and make it a treasured thing. The gift selected carelessly—the coldly impersonal gift, the hopelessly conventional gift—these might better not be offered at all; a greeting card bearing sincere expressions of good will would mean more.

Nearly all givers suppose they are planning to please those to whom they give; yet all too many fail in this—without ever suspecting failure—because they choose gifts which they, themselves would like. Or they choose what they think the recipient ought to have rather than what would be acceptable.

A little sincere thought is the remedy for unsuccessful Christmas giving as well as for an efficacious Christmas shopping.

And the time to think is NOW.

Psychograph of the Mind

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M. D., Ph. D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

WITHOUT stretching one's imagination too much one may conceive of the human mind as an uncharted continent with many unknown and unexplored regions.

Dr. L. E. Bisch

The objection to comparing the mind to a continent is that it implies the brain to be something flat. In point of fact, the brain is globular and possesses considerable depth.

Despite the awkwardness of the simile, it might be best to say the brain is like an onion—made up of layers. That, at least, is nearer the truth for there are layers and levels to the brain, each one composed of nerve cells different from the other.

At any rate, the mind—which is the collective term used to describe the thought processes manufactured by the nerve cells of the brain—possesses many uncharted places.

That is, the owner of the brain does not really know what's in his brain.

A psychograph reveals what is in the mind!

Now, it would be impossible to enumerate all the various mental processes in any mind, even if the intelligence were as low as idiocy.

A psychograph does chart, however, the main faculties which, taken all together, comprise the intelligence.

Mr. A, for example, has a poor memory, a fair ability to concentrate, an excellent imagination, excellent reasoning powers, a good sense of proportion, fair powers of inference, poor judgment, etc., etc.

That would be a psychograph of Mr. A.

Now take your own case.

Write down, in a column, the following traits and mark after each one whether the trait as you find it in your own mind is poor, fair good or excellent.

Ability to learn, curiosity, constructive imagination, day dreaming, suggestibility, memory, forgetfulness, attention, concentration, system, planfulness, reasoning, logic, judgment, observation, sense of proportion and fitness, powers of inference, profiting by mistakes, mechanical bent, self-confidence, egotism, despair, anxiety, self-depreciation, feeling of guilt, elation, depression, love of power, desire for sympathy, laziness, indifference, desire for action, sensitiveness, pride, jealousy, friendliness, frankness, hatred, love, faith, generosity, parsimoniousness, suspiciousness, sarcasm, trust, coldness, tenderness, hard-heartedness, forgiveness, appreciation, respect, desire to ridicule, loyalty, decision, promptness, imitation, rashness, resourcefulness, persistence, wandering tendencies, optimism, pessimism, eagerness, contentment, bashfulness, combativeness, self-indulgence, gossip, taciturnity, extravagance, economy, tact, politeness, sense of justice, sociability, co-operativeness, honesty, domesticity, patience, truthfulness, chastity, prudishness, religiousness.

In this way you will be enabled to get a prospective of yourself. You will gain knowledge about yourself.

Knowledge of yourself gives power over yourself.

Power over yourself yields power over others.

How Can She Tell Love?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

How can you tell whether or not you are in love? This has been bothering me for some time, and one of my friends told me to ask you to help me.

TILLIE.

YOU can't always tell whether you are in love, Tillie—at least, not at first. You know you are attracted but whether that attraction is infatuation, or a deep affection founded on suitability and congenial tastes and natures, only time will tell.

When you are fascinated, it is best to wait a while and decide whether you are in love. For love includes respect and trust founded on trustworthiness, as well as attractive appeal.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Last year I met a sailor boy, and for quite a while we chummed around totgether, then he left me brokenhearted. When he came back this summer he would scarcely pay any attention to me. Yesterday, however, I received a letter from him, asking forgiveness, and he wants me to chum with him again. I love him. Please help me with this problem.

SAILOR'S SWEETHEART.

YOUR letter is a little vague, my dear. But I judge from it that your friend has not proved very dependable or reliable. If I were you I would not take him too seriously, or he may disappoint you again. Choose friends who prove that they are worthy of your trust and friendship.

Four of This Season's Buds Being Honored at Series of Parties

Miss Mary F. Potter and Miss Rachel Warner Feted at Dance Tonight

PARTIES ARE BEING GIVEN today in honor of four of this season's buds. The first of these affairs was a luncheon at the Country Club for Miss Helena Hyde, whose aunt, Mrs. E. Russell Norton of Powell st., Brookline, was the hostess. About sixty debutantes were in attendance. Miss Hyde is a freshman at Vassar college but she came home the day before Thanksgiving to stay for a short time with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Stanley Hyde of Sylvan ave., West Newton, who are to entertain for her December 28 when she will be formally presented at a tea. Shortly after the luncheon the guests went on to the tea given by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Nichols of Joy st. for their daughter, Miss Madeline P. Nichols.

TONIGHT MR. AND MRS. JOHN BRIGGS POTTER of Pinckney st. and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Warner of Chestnut st. are having a dance at the Ritz-Carlton for their daughters, the Misses Mary F. Potter and Rachel Warner, respectively. The d[illegible] preceding the dance is to take place at the Chilton Club. The usher squad is in charge of Roger Warner, Jr., and includes: Ralph Williams, Robert Walker, John Caner, Carol Perry, John Perkins, Potter Palmer, 3d, Chicago, John C. Phillips, Jr., Robert Whittemore, John Lewis, Reginald Johnson, George Huntington, George Homans, John Hunnewell, George Gibson, David Crocker and David Cheever, Jr.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM A. RUSSELL (Elizabeth Wyatt) are arriving in New York today from Germany, where they have been living since they were married last April. Their original plan was to remain there somewhat longer. They are to be in New York for awhile but will shortly come on here, where they are to make their home in or about Boston.

MR. AND MRS. DANIEL SIMONDS 2d (Elizabeth Sprague) and their baby daughter are staying at the home of Mrs. Simonds' mother, Mrs. Phinias Sprague, while awaiting the completion of the extensive alterations being made to the house they bought, which is next door to the Spragues.

MR. AND MRS. HENRY G. LAPHAM are taking a trip to California this coming month and they are contemplating a trip to England in May to see their daughter, Mrs. Philip Saltonstall, who with her husband and children are making their home in Beaconsfield, England.

MRS. SARAH W. HALLOWELL'S name is among those who are working for the success of the Wendell Phillips Memorial meeting which is to be held in Faneuil Hall, November 29, at 8 45 p. m., by Charles Edward Russell, prominent statesman, orator and scholar of Washington, D. C., under the auspices of the Boston branch of the National Society for the Advancement of Colored People. Butler R. Wilson is president of the organization. Others on the committee are Joseph P. Loud, Robert H. Hallowell, Ingersoll Bowditch, George G. Bradford and Edgar E. Benjamin. The honored guests include all living members of the Phillips family, among whom are Mrs. Francis Williams, nee Anna D. Phillips, and Mrs. Andrew J. Peters nee Martha R. Phillips.

A FANCY DRESS PARTY IS to be held at the Myopia Hunt Club, Hamilton, December 31.

MR. AND MRS. WINSTON CHURCHILL of Windsor, Vt., are the guests of Mrs. Matfield Parish in one of her cottages at Sea Island Beach, Georgia. Mr. [illegible] nd Mrs. Roswell Parish, [illegible] has been spending the ho[illegible] at The Carolina at Pi[illegible]. Mr. and Mrs. George Warren visited friends in Providence over Thanksgiving.

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR LITTLE of Maple st., Brookline, and Mrs. Daniel Snow are back in Boston again after spending a few days at the Hotel Roosevelt in New York. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Peabody are staying at the Longwood Towers at present. Mrs. Peabody, who is a daughter of Bishop Lawrence, is a fine sculptress. Mrs. George H. Swift of the Ritz-Carlton, Boston, is in New York, where she is stopping for a few days at the St Regis Hotel. Mrs. Huntington R. Hardwick, of Buckminster rd., Brookline, is also in Gotham, where she is registered at the Westbury Hotel.

THE AMATEURS WHO HAVE been playing with various casts for 23 years and who are a well known group of Brookline people have chosen as their next play "The Royal Family." It is to be presented December 11, 12 and 13 in Whitney Hall, Coolidge Corner, Brookline, at 8 15. It is a comedy in three acts by George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber. In the cast will be: Miss Margaret Taylor, Mr Donald E. Wilbur, Mr. C. B. Tucker, Jr.; Mr. E. Irving Locke, Mrs. Arthur H. Sawyer, Miss Louise Gillis, Mr. James Jennison, Mrs. Walter S. Railsback, Mr. Derby Brown, Mrs. Edwin M. Prellwitz, Mr. Shirley K. Race, Mr. Arthur H. Sawyer, Miss Helena Burnham.

Senator Walsh at Clinton Home

Clinton, Nov. 29—United States Senator David I. Walsh had a real holiday. He was free from conferences, had no speeches to make and enjoyed the respite from the official duties of his office immensely. The day was spent at his Water st. home after a chilly hour or more as spectator of the Clinton high school and Revere Immaculate Conception high school football game on Fuller Field.

WARD BAKING CO.

SOPRANO HAS BIG AUDIENCE

By MOSES SMITH

FLORA WOODMAN, an English soprano who has gained considerable vogue in her own country, sang to an audience of good size at her debut in Jordan Hall.

Miss Woodman's program, after the opening "Una Voce Poco Fa," from "The Barber of Seville," was a clever grouping of extremely simple songs. There were four German numbers, of folk-song simplicity; five French songs about "Nell," "Mignonette," a "Blond" and the like, finally, five English pieces, tending toward evening and the cradle for subject-matter.

The peculiar charm of many of these pieces was well-suited to Miss Woodman's temperament. She sang expressively and musically, though there was not much on the program demanding profound talents. Her enunciation was not quite clear; it was probably best in French.

Above all, the soprano is gifted with a voice of beautiful quality, capable of tones that were thrilling. This voice is lyric, with dramatic notes in it; but it cannot be a beautiful instrument of any kind, indeed, so long as Miss Woodman abuses it as she obviously does now. It does not take a specialist in vocal technic to discern that her methods of tone production are fundamentally unsound.

Here is another illustration of the anomaly of a singer who possesses everything except the ability to sing well, an anomaly quite as curious—and as common sad to say—as the singer who has everything except a beautiful voice.

BAY STATE CLUBS RALLY TO FOUNDATION DRIVE

MUCH interest throughout the state is being shown in the Foundation Fund of $2,000,000 which the General Federation of Women's Clubs has decided to raise.

Massachusetts, always a leader in club work, will not be behind her sister states in answering the call of the national organization. Although this project may seem a sudden one to those who have not followed closely General Federation matters, it is now five years since the call for endowment was first felt to be necessary, and over a year ago, the Massachusetts State Federation voted at its annual meeting to do its part.

The income from this fund, one-half of which is left with the states collecting the money, will enable the General Federation and the state federations to do much valuable work which lack of funds now handicaps or prevents altogether. An example of this is the campaign against illiteracy which the federal Government has asked the General Federation to undertake, and which it will carry on, although it has not sufficient money to do it in the most efficient manner. This great body of 2,000,000 members, the greatest organization of women in the world, with many clubs in foreign lands as well as in the United States, will finances itself by 10 cent per capita dues, although the 10 cent era in other lines has long since gone.

THREE-YEAR CAMPAIGN

The plan is to raise this fund in three years, completing it in 1932, and the entire quota for each clubwoman in Massachusetts on this basis will be only $2.50, or 83 1-3 cents per year. The money so raised will be almost immediately available for use, for as soon as $1000 is collected, $500 will be forwarded to the General Federation, and $500 will remain in the state treasury.

Although the club year is only well under way and the fund has not yet been presented to many of the clubs, twenty-nine clubs representing two-thirds of the districts, have already promised to pay their quota. Four of these have made the payment for the first year. To the Ashland Home Study Club belongs the distinction of being the first club to promise its quota, and the Southampton Women's Club has the honor of being the first to pay its quota for this year.

The greatest distinction, however, belongs to the Women's Educational Club of West Newton which last week at the twelfth district conference for which it was hostess handed its check for the entire three years' quota to Mrs Azel A. Packard, state president.

CLUBS ENLISTED

Following is the list of clubs which have voted to pay the quota: Ashland Home Study Club.

Boston Ex Club, Women's Club of Park St. Church, Women's Auxiliary of the Angell Memorial Hospital, Braintree Point Women's Club, Colrain Women's Club, Holyoke Women's Club, Hampden County Women's Club, Hyannis Women's Club, Bilerica Nineteen Hundred Club, Falmouth Outlook Club, North Attleboro Kalmia Club, Lawrence Fortnightly Club, Methuen Women's Club.

Onset Women's Club, Stockbridge Tuesday Club, Spencer Fortnightly Club, Springfield Early Morning and Every Other Week Club, Pepperell Women's Club, Vineyard Haven Acanthus Club, Westford Tadmuck Club, Weymouth Monday Club, Whitinsville Women's Club, Worcester Fireside Club.

Clubs which have paid their quota include West Newton Educational Club, for three years; Boston Massachusetts Daughters, for one year; Southampton Women's Club, for one year; Southboro Women's Club, for one year.

STATE FEDERATION

Mrs. Nathaniel E. Smith, district director, will preside at the seventh district legislative conference, to be held with the Friday Club of Everett, in Kiwanis Hall, National Bank Building, Everett sq., Friday afternoon, Dec. 6, at 2 o'clock. Greetings will be given by Mayor James Roche for the city of Everett, Mrs. Carl L. Schrader, first vice-president of the State Federation, for the Federation, and Mrs. Everett H. Rice, acting president of the Friday Club during the absence of the president, Miss Sara F. Hall, for the hostess club.

During the afternoon, songs will be given by Mrs. Willis W. Stover, second vice-president of the Friday Club. The program, in charge of Mrs. Fred L. Pigeon, state chairman of legislation will be the presentation of legislative measures recommended by the State Federation of Women's Clubs for study and consideration. At the close of the program, the hospitality committee, Mrs. Harriet Curtis, chairman, will serve tea.

CLUB INSTITUTES

At the Club Institute to be held from 10 o'clock until noon at the Hotel Vendome, Boston, Thursday, December 5, the subject for consideration will be Club Courtesies. As an object lesson along this line, the Heptorean Club of Somerville will stage a mock club meeting, illustrating their mode of procedure on an occasion such as Presidents' Day.

Those taking part will be Mrs. Leon M. Conwell, president of the club, and her executive board Mesdames Leon M. Conwell, Charles A. Kendall, Percy C. Bond, Walter A. Stone, L. Wallace Hall, William H. Haskell, Charles E. Brainard, Frank S. Schofield, John E. Buck, Robert B Loring, A. C. Torup, Guy H Proctor, A Edward Garland, Lillian S Palmer, Charlotte R Miller, Harry H Clark, Stephen C Lang, Frank R Nickerson, Charles A. Stackpole, William Sidebottom and Dr. Edith L. Hurd.

LEGISLATIVE CONFERENCE

Mrs. Horace B. Gale, district director, will preside at the legislative conference of the 12th district which is to be held at Dennison Memorial Hall, Concord st., Framingham, with the Framingham Women's Club as hostess, Tuesday, December 3, at 3 o'clock. The state chairman of legislation, Mrs Fred L. Pigeon, will present the proposed measures on the revision of the book law, the abolishment of capital punishment, and health.

The present status of the recess committee on the educational bill for raising the school age, and of the committee appointed to study the laws relating to children, will also be given. Good speakers on these measures, pro and con, will be announced later. Mrs R A Berry, hostess president, will welcome the club women. There will be music during the afternoon and tea will be served at the close of the program. Middlesex and Boston buses run every half hour from the Newtons and Wellesley.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

An event of importance to clubwomen throughout New England is the three-day school of foreign affairs conducted under the auspices of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters on January 21, 22 and 23 at the Hotel Commander, Garden st., Cambridge.

This annual event is closely related to the work of the committees on international co-operation which the more enterprising women's clubs have come to emphasize more and more as an important factor in their development.

This year the program will provide for several new features which will be of interest to many club women who have attended previous sessions. The courses will lay particular emphasis upon naval disarmament so as to connect the work of the school with the progress of the naval disarmament conference, which will be taking place in London in January.

Reports of the recent Pacific conference at Tokio will also be considered, and the trend of international co-operation will be discussed in the light of these conferences.

An interesting feature of this year's school is that a syllabus of each course will be mailed to the registered students in advance so that the subject matter will be familiar, and discussion facilitated.

Another innovation will be a dramatic presentation of the work of the League of Nations, which will be produced as the school's part in commemorating the 10th anniversary of the league's formation.

Among the distinguished speakers already engaged are: Dr C. C. Wu, the ambassador from China; the Hon. Rennie Smith of the British Parliament; Miss Kathleen Courtney, also of England and Rear-Admiral Charles Hussey. Members of the faculties of Williams, Vassar and Harvard will also address the school.

BOSTON HADDASSAH

Plans are under way for a Chanukah tea to be held under the auspices of the Boston Chapter, Hadassah, at the Hotel Statler December 17. Tickets may be secured from Mrs Joseph Abrams.

Mme Shomer Rothenberg known as the Jewish Yvette Guilbert, will entertain with a program of Yiddish and Hebrew folk songs. She will be accompanied by Mrs Max Mydans of Brookline. There will also be a series of tableaux entitled "Gifts" with a cast of about 17 members, who will be coached by Mrs Julian Ansell, chairman of the dramatic committee.

The Sunday Afternoon Affair Demands a Special Costume

THESE intriguing Sunday engagements that fill your calendar as the winter months come on! Nonchalant though the invitations may be, you just can't arrive in any old dress. This season, formality is the keynote of what to wear, whether it be a Sunday afternoon, tea, a symphony concert, a reading club, or a piano recital. Or if it's Sunday night supper at a friend's country house (especially where you know you'll see a certain fascinating someone), all the more reason for you to want to look your best.

What words yours to conquer in a dress of trailing lines and a fitted feminine silhouette. The recent Paris openings showed net dresses. There is a bewitching loveliness in lace or net, and the formal afternoon dresses in these fabrics, fashioned in the sculptured silhouette, are certainly flattering. Sketched here is a net afternoon dress showing the type of frock most suitable for either of these materials. It's graceful lines and flowing sleeve detail interpret the mode in an interesting manner.

THE sleeveless frock of chiffon with separate matching jacket [illegible] these Sunday affairs with an air all its own. Shirring and draping add sophistication and a decided effect of femininity. Especially if the frock boasts a small cape, bertha, or [illegible] covering the top of one's arm.

[illegible] and [illegible] distinguish the formal afternoon frock of flat crepe, illustrated here. This dress sponsors [illegible], and the dipping hemline. You can choose it in black, and the rich fall colors—dahlia, brown or green—and feel assured of being correctly gowned for whatever occasion Sunday brings.

ONE of Boston's leading department stores is sponsoring high colors, especially in frocks of flat crepe. They undoubtedly reflect the sparkle and dash of this festive season, and worn with an all-black coat the contrast is undeniably smart, attractive and wearable.

Lame, so rich in color and design, is extremely smart and effective, especially so if beautifully tailored and made on simple lines. The fabric itself is in keeping with the new fashion for luxury, in a season that endorses elegance.

MODERN WAY TO relieve COLDS!

GRANDMOTHER'S remedies were good in grandmother's day—when folks had lots of time for "dosing," head steaming, chest rubbing, etc.

But here is a modern, scientific time-saving treatment for colds. It is OZO MIST—a vaporizing liquid that is dropped on your handkerchief or your pillow at night. You inhale a pure, clean, pine-woodsy vapor that circulates thru nose, throat and deep down into the lung-cells depositing five healing medicaments. Your nose is cleared. You breathe easier. Throat irritation ceases. You feel relief with each breath.

For quick relief use OZO MIST. When those around you have colds—breathe OZO MIST regularly to prevent the germs from attacking you.

Ask your neighborhood druggist today for a bottle of OZO MIST. Fifty treatments cost but fifty cents.

Gleaming hair!

The way modern hair dressers accentuate your hair by lovely lines and contours makes it important to keep the hair in perfect condition.

Now, millions know the quickest way to give the hair new life and lustre; to bring out its natural color is with Danderine. It is so easy to use, too; simply moisten your brush with it each time you arrange your hair.

Danderine dissolves the crust of dandruff; stops falling hair; puts the scalp in the pink of condition. It helps the hair grow long, silky, abundant; gives it more lustre than brilliantine. It makes the hair easy to arrange; holds it in place. Waves look nicer; stay in longer when "set" with Danderine.

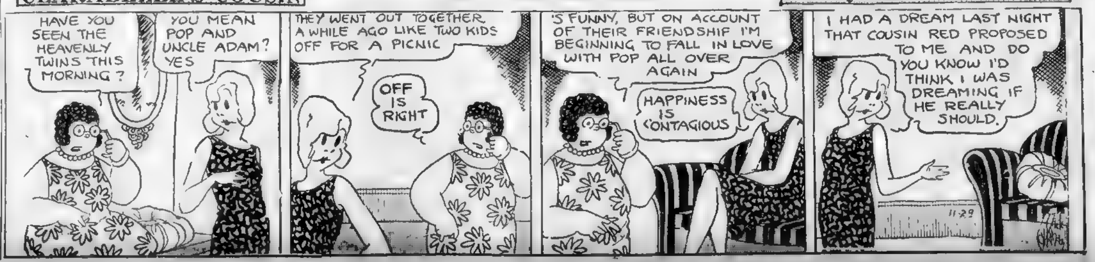
CLARABELLE'S COUSIN

It Has the Women Folks Guessing

By Jack Callahan



HAVE YOU SEEN THE HEAVENLY TWINS THIS MORNING ?
YOU MEAN POP AND UNCLE ADAM? YES
OFF IS RIGHT
HAPPINESS IS CONTAGIOUS
I HAD A DREAM LAST NIGHT THAT COUSIN RED PROPOSED TO ME AND DO YOU KNOW I'D THINK I WAS DREAMING IF HE REALLY SHOULD.

RADIO NOTES -:- TODAY'S PROGRAMS -:- PERSONALITIES ON THE AIR

AT THE DIAL

By THE RADIO EDITOR

TED HUSING found the cold weather at Philadelphia "priceless," and the conditions of the field "priceless" just before the Penn-Cornell game. No other adjective could describe everything. This, after a solid hour of priceless descriptions of local bargains in depilatories and second-hand society ladies' gowns, or society ladies' second-hand gowns, all nicely cleaned before being sold, etc., etc.

ON SATURDAY, Graham McNamee describes the Army-Notre Dame game from the Yankee Stadium, New York. The broadcast will begin at 1:00 p. m. with the parade of the cadets from West Point. The game will be heard over WEEI.

THE Dartmouth-Navy game at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, Saturday afternoon, will be described by Bill Munday in his own manner. This game will go on the air over WBZ and NBC stations at 1:45 p. m.

ALSO on Saturday afternoon at 1:45 WNAC will give the Holy Cross-Boston College game, a play by play broadcast.

RAYMOND KNIGHT is the author of tonight's "triadrama," "Venus Shows Good Form," which will be heard during the broadcasting of the Triadors' program through the NBC System at 8 o'clock. Joe Rines, director of the orchestra, sings a comedy selection, "What Is Thanksgiving?", and Chester Gaylord, whispering serenader, offers two love ballads in the program.

GEORGIE PRICE, comedian, Waller and Razof, writers of "Hot Chocolates"; Margaret Speaks and Helen House, song team; Buster Brown and Tige, and William Wirges and his orchestra will entertain on tonight's program of Brownbilt Footlites. It will go on the air at 8 o'clock over Station WNAC and other Columbia stations.

CHINESE scales and rhythms are employed for atmosphere in Emerson Whithorne's "Pell Street," which will be heard in the Cities Service concert, broadcast through WEEI and the NBC Coast-to-Coast System, at 8 o'clock. The Cavaliers' quartet and xylophone solos will contribute to the program which is directed by Rosario Bourdon.

THE STORY of Nell Gwynn will be dramatized in the Famous Loves program to be broadcast through WBZ and the NBC System at 8:45 p. m. Nell Gwynn was born in the slums of London. Her mother was a fishmonger. She sang in the cheaper London taverns. An actor recognized her ability and, at the age of 15, she appeared at the Drury Lane Theater. Shortly afterwards, King Charles II attended the theater and became infatuated. Then began a rivalry between Nell and the Duchess of Portsmouth, which lasted years and became one of England's chief topics of conversation.

THE FIRST ACT of "Naughty Marietta," comic opera in two acts by Victor Herbert, with book and lyrics by Rida Johnson Young, will be presented by Jessica Dragonette, soprano; Colin O'More, tenor, and a supporting cast in Philco's Theater Memories, broadcast through WBZ and the NBC Coast-to-Coast System this evening at 9:30 Harold Sanford will direct. The scenes of the play are laid in New Orleans in 1750, when Louisiana was still a colony of France.

EDWARD GERMAN'S "Torch Dance" and an instrumental quartet's version of "The Blue Room," from the musical comedy "The Girl Friend" by Rodgers and Hart, will be heard in the Armstrong Quakers' broadcast through WBZ and the NBC coast-to-coast system at 10 o'clock. Lois Bennett soprano; Mary Hopple, contralto; a male quartet under the direction of William Stickles and an orchestra conducted by Victor Arden present the following program:

Fioretta, from "Fioretta"; Now Sleeps the Crimson Petal, Quilter, soprano solo, Lois Bennett; La Golondrina, orchestra; Love's Old Sweet Song, male quartet; Cuban Dance No. 4, Cervantes, orchestra; Torch Dance, German, male quartet; Oh, Dry Those Tears, del Riego, soprano and contralto duet Lois Bennett and Mary Hopple; The Blue Room, from "The Girl Friend," Rodgers, instrumental quartet; Baby's Awake Now, from "Spring Is Here," Rodgers, ensemble.

BILL MURRAY, tenor-comedian, will be the guest soloist in the Armour program broadcast from Chicago over WBZ and a coast-to-coast network at 10:30. Josef Koestner's 30-piece orchestra, a male chorus and a vocal trio, Tom, Dick and Harry, assist in the program

Dolores Casinelli

Dorothy Speare

Beatrice Belkin

Brief Opera Is Favored by Papi

In the opinion of Gennaro Papi, famous operatic conductor, the one-hour radio productions of the Puccini operas mark the evolution of a new idea in operatic presentation.

"The recent radio performance of 'Mme. Butterfly' proved," Mr. Papi said, "that radio could be a boon to opera no less than that opera could be a boon to radio. The proof will be even more emphatic when we go on the air with 'La Tosca' on December 21."

Many persons feared that the condensation would affect the true beauty of the opera.

"I believe it enhanced the beauty," said Papi. "Nothing essential to the composer's music was lost. All the true beauty remained in the radio presentation. What was especially important was that the presentation was highly intelligent; the narration carried to every listener a lucid story of the action and a clear interpretation of the melody. What is more, the explanation was in the language of the listeners and, therefore, intelligible to all."

WSSH to Have New Power of 500 Watts

The Federal Radio Commission has decided to allow an increase in power to Station WSSH, the Tremont Temple Baptist Church, and will soon issue a license granting authority to broadcast on a frequency of 1360 kilocycles with 500 watts power. Under this new arrangement WSSH will be on the air from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. and from 6:30 p. m. to 9 p. m. on Sundays and from 7:30 p. m. to 9 p. m. on Fridays.

This decision of the radio commission will bring much needed relief to the station as well as please listeners who have been unable to hear the programs from WSSH with any degree of satisfaction. It is claimed that the low power of 100 watts, under which this station has been operating, is the chief cause for the poor reception. With the new increase in power to 500 watts the station officials expect broadcasts to be in all parts of New England, as was originally intended.

CURTIS HOUR HAS THREE SOLOISTS

Judith Poska, violinist, Conrad Thibault, baritone, and Tatiana Sanzewitch, pianist, will be heard in the fourth concert from the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia beginning at 10:30 tonight over WNAC and stations of the Columbia System.

Miss Poska is a native of Seattle, where her father is a prominent physician. She has appeared frequently in concerts and was heard over the Columbia network last season on the Curtis hour.

Conrad Thibault, baritone, who will be heard on the same program, is an accomplished singer and a member of the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company. He made his operatic debut a year ago in Puccini's "Manon." Young Thibault is completing his vocal training with Emilio de Gogorza at the Curtis Institute.

Miss Tatiana Sanzewitch is a piano student of Josef Hofmann, director of the Curtis Institute.

The program follows:

Grand Adagio from Ballet "Raymonda," .... Glazounoff
La Capricciosa .... Ries
Judith Poska, violinist.
The Happy Lover .... Old English
Avant de quitter ces lieux .... Gounod
My Lovely Celia .... George Monro
Conrad Thibault, baritone
Fugue and Toccata, D Major .... Bach
Seguidilla .... Albeniz
Etude, Op. 10, No. 12 .... Chopin
Tatiana Sanzewitch, pianist.

Elks' Memorial Goes on Air Sunday

The annual memorial exercises of the Boston Lodge of Elks, B. P. O. E., to be held Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, will be broadcast through station WNAC.

The memorial address will be delivered by the Rev. Michael J. Ahern, S. J., who is well known to radio audiences due to the part which he plays in weekly Catholic Truth broadcast under the direction of the Catholic radio committee from station WNAC each Sunday.

The exercises will be conducted by the Boston lodge officers assisted by the Glee Club of the Boston Lodge of Elks. Elva Boyden, operatic soprano, will be the vocalist, and Louis Tesserer, violin virtuoso will also render selections.

HARRY LAUDER ON AIR TWICE SUNDAY

Sir Harry Lauder, Scotch comedian, has announced five of the seven vocal selections in his double radio program through a coast-to-coast network Sunday night.

Due to a flood of requests for practically every song in his repertoire, the program was exceptionally hard to build, Sir Harry said.

Letters, telegrams and telephone calls from all sections of the country, requesting various Lauder numbers, began pouring in as soon as the announcement was made by the National Broadcasting Co. that the comedian would be heard from coast-to-coast for the second time in recent weeks.

So evenly divided were these requests that an actual tabulation was necessary before the songs for the air could be selected. This tabulation continued until today, when the final announcement was made.

Sir Harry will be heard in two programs through the NBC System, Sunday night, singing before a microphone in the studios of KFI, Los Angeles. He will be heard first during the coast-to-coast broadcast of Enna Jettick Melodies, from 8 to 8:15 p. m. (Eastern Standard Time). His second appearance will come 28 minutes later, when he is heard for 12 minutes during Collier's Radio Hour.

The first program of the evening will include the songs, "Roamin' in the Gloamin," "Wee Hoose 'Mang the Heather," "End of the Road," and a fourth number yet to be selected.

During his broadcast on Collier's Hour, Sir Harry will sing "When I Get Back to Bonnie Scotland," "I Love a Lassie," and another number not yet selected.

Chains Plan More Foreign Broadcasts

Encouragement to plans for rebroadcasting an increasing number of foreign radio programs has been given by the success of the recent rebroadcast from Holland. Music which had come across the Atlantic was rebroadcast over WJZ's coast-to-coast network for nearly an hour without appreciable interference. The responses of radio listeners have showed the program was received everywhere with enthusiasm. It was the first presentation from abroad scheduled in advance by an American network.

U. S. Shipping Blossoms Into New Prosperity

By B. C. Forbes

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—Industries, like mortals—and stock markets—have their ups and downs. One important industry, long down, which is now on the up-an-up, is shipping. Its prospects have undergone transformation.

* * *

One simple rule which long has guided experienced investors familiar with economic history, is to accumulate common shares of leading companies in basic industries which are temporarily flat on their back. No basic industry remains forever in the doldrums, because if it does not yield living profits month after month and year after year, the weaker concerns engaged in it are driven to the wall, new capital and new competition are not attracted, and, in time, the survivors find themselves able to enjoy a rational measure of prosperity.

B. C. Forbes

That old-as-the-hills law applies to basic, permanent industries which may spring suddenly into vogue, and, after perhaps a brief, background.

Consider the history of our more notable fundamental industries.

The cotton textile industry assuredly has had its ups and downs. Since rayon became fashionable, the majority of cotton manufacturers have fared poorly, partly because they failed promptly and aggressively to adapt themselves to the change in customers' taste and buying power.

It was Andrew Carnegie who coined the phrase "The steel industry is either prince or pauper," meaning that it was either enjoying extreme prosperity or extreme adversity. Another old industry, oil, has been notorious for its ups and downs. It has been afflicted by disastrous overproduction during recent years, but, like the cotton industry, is at last hopeful of bringing about better conditions. Time was when our woolen manufacturing industry made fortunes for many families; it long has been unprofitable. The vast shoe industry has been no exception to the rule.

The rubber industry has alternately been either prince or pauper. For a generation or more coal mine owners waxed rich; in more recent times the coal industry has had less happy days. The far-flung building industry—among the most important and many-sided of all—has had its lean years and its fat years. So with the copper industry, the lumber industry, the cement industry, the packing industry, railroading, the packing industry, the canning industry, the sugar industry.

Most of our newer industries have experienced drastic changes of fortunes within short spaces of time. Consider the triumphs and the turmoil of motion picture industry, of the automobile industry, of the radio industry, and of the infant aircraft industry—downs and ups, up and downs, tragic failures and shining successes.

The shipping industry enjoyed a phenomenal boom during the World War. Fantastic prices and rates, combined with the abnormal requirements of war, fostered production of tonnage on a scale beyond all previous imagining. The signing of peace signed the doom of the shipping boom. Since then few industries have suffered so acutely.

Now a new chapter is opening. The mortality among ships hastily built during the years 1914-1918 is necessarily very heavy now and will continue rapid until the last of the tonnage of the war era has passed from the sea.

Therefore, the world's supply of shipping must be replaced.

Comes the news from Washington that the Government is ready to invite bids for 13 ocean mail routes involving the construction, within ten years, of 40 new ships costing $250,000,000. It is stipulated that 17 keels must be laid within six months.

Mail carriers on these routes will receive $10,000,000 a year, it is announced, contrasted with $5,000,000 heretofore.

Said Postmaster General Brown: "American mails must go on the fastest vessels afloat, and this means that we cannot give our Atlantic mails to American vessels simply because they are American vessels, but we must require that they be able to compete with the fastest vessels in service in the North Atlantic. That means when the Leviathan has become unable to meet the increasing competition in ocean speed, that the United States must require other vessels for the route which will be as fast as any vessel on the run."

Under the Jones-White act three-quarters of the cost of new vessels for service on prescribed routes is supplied out of the governmental revolving fund.

America is generating a new determination to hold its own against all comers in the fast trans-Atlantic service and elsewhere. Ship-owners have revived their courage, thanks to practical governmental co-operation.

Everything indicates that America's shipping industry is taking on new vigor and that our merchant marine, after sinking to a low ebb, will regain something of its former glory and prosperity.

Resources Mobilized to Meet Wall Street Strain

By W. S. COUSINS

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—Mobilization of the country's abundant resources to withstand the effects of the severest blow ever administered to the American security markets has been completed under the guidance of the President of the United States.

The financial and industrial giant, no longer cringing under the hammer blows of a veritable maelstrom in the speculative markets, has regained the confidence of the American people and given a pledge of his ability to build more strongly the wall of national prosperity.

An $8,000,000,000 expansion, construction and industrial improvement program has been directly fostered by the President's conferences on business stabilization growing out of the stock market crash. Leaders of the railroad, utility and manufacturing enterprises have joined with federal, state and municipal officials in putting into immediate execution the constructive plans which might have been postponed to an indefinite future date in the absence of concerted action such as has been brought into being by the meeting of master minds at Washington.

Briefly, the contemplated program, funds for which are definitely in sight, covers the following ground:

1—An aggressive expenditure of $1,100,0000,000 by the American railroads for needed equipment, duplicating, if not surpassing, the largest annual outlay for this purpose in the whole history of American transportation.

Prominent contributors to this expansion program are the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad with an outlay of $70,000,000 for new engines, cars, truck, etc.; Southern Pacific with $50,000,000, New York Central with $60,000,000, Pennsylvania Railroad with $60,000,000, Rock Island, $59,000,000; Atchison with an estimated expenditure of $20,000,000, Great Northern and Northern Pacific, $50,00,000 each.

2—Special residential construction and improvement, involving a total expenditure of $2,000,000,000 from funds made available in large measure by the release of $350,000,000,000 from the call loan market. This by no means covers the whole field of construction which, in 1930, will reach a total of $6,000,000,000, if it does nothing more than equal the record of the last two years.

3—Pledged expenditure of $1,000,000,000 for state highway construction and an equal amount for country roads and city streets, New York City will be represents to the extent of $200,000,000, Chicago is drafting plans for a $100,000,000 municipal improvement project, and a score or more of prominent American commonwealths will make their contribution to the aggregate.

* * *

4—Specific expenditure of $850,000,000, some of it long deferred, for the expansion of American utility concerns supplying light, heat, power and other essentials services to the people of this country. Pacific Gas and Electric Company is ready to appropriate $65,000,000 for work of this kind, Standard Gas and Electric Company, $63,000,000, Utilities Power and Light Company $60,000,000 and New York Telephone Company well in excess of $150,000,000, Commonwealth and Southern $80,000,000.

5—A $1,250,000,000 outlay for the enlargement of producing and manufacturing facilities of the giant American corporations between now and the end of 1930. The American Tel. and Tel. Company sets the pace with a budgeted outlay of $700,000,000. The steel industry as a whole will spend $300,000,000. The Duponts enterprises $25,000,000.

6—A federal ship-building program of close to $250,000,000 over a ten-year period, with annual appropriations in addition for specific government service, including the transportation of the mails, of $25,000,000. A federal road-aid fund of $125,000,000 to be appropriated among the various state road-building bureaus.

* * *

The projects listed above take no account of the thousands of large and small enterprises conducted with more or less promptness by individuals and corporations throughout the country. They have been specifically unearthed and fostered at the inspiring conferences of industrial and financial leaders summoned by President Hoover in response to the general feeling that special efforts were necessary to combat the paralyzing effects of a fearful cataclysm in the stock market. Skillful execution of the plans will provide employment to thousands of workmen, and energize the industrial fabric of the whole country. The industrial outlook is brighter than it was a month ago.

MERGER MADE FOR BUSH

New York, Nov. 29 (AP)—The Bush Terminal Company has arranged with Lassen & Co., a Swiss holding concern controlling 50 European distributing agencies, for a merger of interests.

The Carnegie Steel Company's plans for improvements in the Youngstown district call for the expenditure of several million dollars. A new 10-inch bar mill is to be built at the McDonald plant.

F. E. Myers Bros. & Co. has called $500,000 in 6 per cent preferred stock for redemption January 15 at $105 a share.

The Fox Film Company has acquired through purchase or lease a dozen theaters, mostly in Ohio and Michigan, from Keith-Albee interests. The consideration was 72,760 Class A common shares and $4,365,500 in Fox Ohio Theaters 6 per cent notes.

Wheat Is Higher in Chicago Market

Chicago, Nov. 29—Wheat scored sharp early upturns in price here today, helped by a brisk advance at Liverpool and by liberal export demand for North American shipments. Houses with foreign connections were buyers of Chicago future deliveries, and for the first time May went to a premium over July. Opening 1⅛ to 2⅛ higher, Chicago wheat afterward continued to show strength. Corn and oats were also firmer, corn selling unchanged to ½ cent higher and subsequently advancing. Provisions were easy.

Million Is Loaned to Wheat Growers

Washington, Nov. 29 (AP)—A commodity loan of $1,000,000 was granted the South Dakto Wheat Growers' Association of Aberdeen, S. D., today by the Federal Farm Board.

The $1,000,000 will be used to supplement loans obtained by the South Dakota Association from the federal intermediate credit bank at Omhaha, Neb. It will enable the association to make advances to its grower members in line with the wheat loan policy announced by the farm board last month.

Must Sue for Loan

Sandisfield, Nov. 29 — Frederick P. Whitney, ex-town treasurer, is faced with the necessity of suing the town of Sandisfield to recover $1100 which he advanced from his personal funds while town treasurer to meet town expenses.

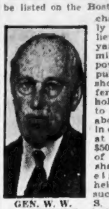
BUYING POWER OF THE PUBLIC IS GOOD

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor

Directors of the Pennsylvania railroad, first "outside" carrier to be listed on the Boston Stock Exchange, evidently do not believe the wild yarns about diminished buying power of the public. This is shown by the offering to stockholders of rights to subscribe for about $72,000,000 in common stock at par value of $50 in the ratio of one new share for each eight shares held. Coming success of the U. S. Treasury offering will also demonstrate considerable buying power remaining, despite the foolish stories in circulation.



GEN. W. W. ATTERBURY

The Pennsylvania, of which Gen. W. W. Atterbury is president, is the largest individual stockholder of the New Haven. The New Haven increases the buying power of its holders by increasing its annual dividend rate to $6. The road is one of many to order higher payments, "extras" or initial dividends in the last fortnight. Directors of corporations know what fundamental conditions are. They do not order disbursements unless they have faith in future business.

Buying by small investors is indicated by company reports. President Simmons of Simmons, for example, states that in 30 days the number of stockholders has increased 40 per cent.

The stock market can be said to have behaved well during the three-day week. Pessimism flattened out to a lower ebb. Customers' rooms in brokerage houses were by no means deserted. Slow deliveries, due to much pressure in transfer and registry offices, continue to chill enthusiasm in some quarters.

Washington authorities are evidently proud of the record of 7800 miles of federal-aid road built in 1928. They, as well as some others, are doubtless also relieved by the Supreme Court decision that the gasoline tax is not a road toll but an excise tax. If it had been found the gasoline tax was a road toll, as many contend it is, federal aid would have been made illegal. Motorists paid in the first six months of the year $175,000,000 in gasoline taxes, which is only one of the several levies made upon them.

Motorists are beginning to pay more attention to possible limitation of the special taxes they are compelled to pay, and concerted action is foreseen by many leaders in fields of business and finance, who are watching the situation closely. Taxation is an ever-present problem with "big business." Overdone, it has even been known to put industries out of business. Witness the constant battles for tax relief in the textile industry. Note the enthusiasm over tax relief promised at Washington.

Electric street railway men at their recent convention stressed the necessity of higher speeds for electric street cars if they are to meet the competition of private automobiles. Lighter cars fitted with more powerful motors have been developed which make it possible to accelerate from a dead stop at the rate of five miles per hour per second. This enables cars when stopped by traffic lights or when stopping to take on or discharge passengers to get quickly under way at speeds equal to or better than the majority of automobiles. This prevents automobiles from cutting in ahead and blocking the car track so that not only is the car delayed but all traffic behind it is likewise delayed.

Improved braking facilities, consisting of pneumatic and mechanical brakes of the internal expanding type as well as dynamic braking on motors and emergency electromagnetic braking, make it possible to decelerate these cars at the rate of five miles per hour per second or higher.

Our estimate that 85 per cent of the people were not directly affected by the stock market crash has received a number of favorable comments, all agreeing it is conservative. Of course the percentage whose buying power was seriously impaired is probably much smaller.

According to the statistical department of the National Electric Light Association, 67 per cent of all homes in the United States were supplied with electric service on July 31, 1929. It is estimated that there are 28,808,000 homes in the United States, of which 19,485,000 had electric service on the above date. Of the New England States, the percentages are as follows: Massachusetts, 93 per cent; Rhode Island, 91 per cent; Connecticut, 88 per cent; New Hampshire, 85 per cent; Maine 78 per cent, and Vermont 77 per cent.

The same source states that during the period from Jan. 1, 1920, to Dec. 31, 1928, no less than 9,647,000 American homes were electrified for the first time.

The average annual use of power by the domestic customer is steadily increasing. At the end of December, 1928, the average use was at the rate of 459 KWH per year. By the end of June, 1929, this average had risen to 478 KWH. At the same time, this increase in use was accompanied by a decrease in price to consumers amounting to 2½ per cent, leaving the annual revenue per customer to the electric light and power companies substantially unchanged. This steady increase in rate of use, accompanied by a decrease in the price, has been a continuous process during the past eight years.

New York and Boston Stock exchanges are closed today and tomorrow. Regular sessions will again be in order Monday.

Boston Bankers Are in $15,000,000 Deal

Berlin, Nov. 29—The Berlin municipality has accepted the $15,000,000 loan of Dillon, Read & Co., New York and Boston bankers, subject to approval by the Federal Loan Commission. The loan is made for one year at 7½ per cent.

The loan, which will serve as consolidation for short term debts, will probably be liquidated from the proceeds of a larger loan proposed for next year.

Baldwin Is Placed on Dividend Basis

New York, Nov. 29 (AP)—Directors of Baldwin Locomotive Works today declared an initial dividend of 87½ cents on the new common stock, equivalent to the usual semi-annual rate of $3.50 on the old common stock before it was split up on a 4 for 1 basis earlier in the year. The regular semi-annual dividend of $3.50 also was declared on the preferred.

Hoover Dislikes Booms as Well as Depressions

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—In attempting to modify the business cycle, President Hoover has set out upon a bold economic experiment.

Now that the conferences are over, it is well to visualise clearly the possible boundary lines of accomplishment. Unless this is done, the public is likely to generate extravagant hopes which are incapable of fulfillment. If the President accomplishes what he has set out to do it will be a noteworthy achievement. It would be unfair to expect what he himself clearly recognizes is impossible.

On the negative side, the President is unconcerned with bolstering up the late lamented bull market. On the business side, the Chief Executive has no intention of trying artificially to perpetuate boom conditions. As a matter of fact he is opposed to booms as well as to depressions. He is in favor of rational economic balance, which assures the multitudes of working people stable opportunities for uninterrupted employment.

As an engineer Mr. Hoover envisages construction activities, public and private, as an instrument for quickening business at a time when ordinary consumption is likely to slump. In the conferences with leading trades, Mr. Hoover has stressed the desirability of speeding up construction programs in the transitional period that lies immediately ahead. He has received pledges of co-operation. Fulfillment of such pledges will tend to offset the depressing influences which were set loose by the terrific decline in stock values.

Mr. Hoover contends that the customary depression which usually follows speculative cataclysms need not come this time, because the economic setting is unique. The main safety valve lies in the superabundance of credit which is available for the financing of all prudent projects. Moreover, the inventories in the hands of distributors and manufacturers are neither unwieldly in size nor inflated in price.

Accordingly, the President believes that the human will, intelligently directed can modify the business cycle, and to some degree mitigate the consequences which will follow the recent speculative debacle. Mr. Hoover hopes also that out of the emergency meetings will emerge a permanent economic council which can act as a liaison officer between government and business and in the future meet situations while they are in the making instead of waiting for them to become accomplished facts.

Thus far Mr. Hoover has succeeded in setting new economic fashions which he hopes will catch on. He has tried to make it unfashionable to cut wages, lay off men, strike for higher wages, to hold off and wait for the other fellow, and has made it fashionable for public and private institutions to initiate permanent improvements.

In the past, when anarchy rather than organized co-operation existed in business, periods of watchful waiting followed great market breaks, and in human terms hesitation meant widespread unemployment and a reduction in purchasing power. Under the blind working out of economic forces, the prosperious hoped that by waiting they might be able to buy more advantageously, but socially the waiting program resulted in the loss of labor, a most perishable thing.

Doubtless bankers used the revival of optimism, which followed the Washington conferences, as an occasion to lighten up somewhat on their holdings of support stock acquired during the sessions of hysterical liquidation.

* * *

Well informed investment trusts expecting a further decline in interest rates, have been increasing rather than curtailing their commitments in bonds.

COMMODITY PRICES UP

Washington, Nov. 29—Following eight successive weeks of decline, commodity prices advanced two-tenths of one per cent during the week ended November 23, according to the wholesale price index of the National Fertilizer Association.

During the week four groups advanced and only three declined. Of the 473 items included in the index, 27 advanced and an equal number declined. The advances were due largely to grains, feeds, butter, lard, cotton and cottonseed meal.

Based on 1926-1928 as 100, and 473 quotations, the index for the week ended November 23 stood at 95.1; for that ended November 16, 94.9; for November 9, 95.4; and for November 2, 95.7.

New York Cotton Market Is Steady

New York, Nov. 29 — Cotton opened steady today at unchanged prices to an advance of 5 points. There was some buying on the relatively steady showing of Liverpool over the local holiday but the demand was by no means active and was supplied by further liquidation or Southern selling. Trading remained quiet after the opening and prices showed little further change. December sold later around 17.10 and March 17.55, or about net unchanged to 6 points lower. A private crop report estimating the yield at 14,830,000 bales seemed to have little if any immediate effect on the market.

TARIFF "BLOC" FORMED BY REGULARS

Washington, Nov. 29—Senate insurgents are prepared to continue their drive against the industrial rates of the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill when the measure is again taken up, some time next week.

Since the Senate adjourned last Friday, Republican regulars, who are determined to continue their efforts to keep the rates from being cut materially, have made further informal overtures to the insurgents, but without success.

The formation of some of the Senate's Republican old guards and new converts into a recognized Senate bloc has failed to dismay the party irregulars or insurgents. The irregulars say they are entirely secure, and are positive in predicting success for the program they mapped out before the extra session was begun last April.

CLAIM CONTROL

The insurgents are counting Senate noses to see if the situation has changed to any extent. They claim that they were able to demonstrate on paper that they could still command the situation. They could, they maintained, still control the Senate through the Democratic-Progressive Republican coalition, and were sufficiently large enough in number to make an important wedge in their own party.

Observers say that the Republican party in the Senate was being "factionalized" through putting all those legally registered as Republicans into their proper group. So far it was pointed out, there were four Republican "columns." First, there are the so-called old guardsmen. Second, there are the Progressives or insurgents. Then come the "freshmen," who, with some temporarily shifting old guard members, call themselves the "new guard."

"ONE MAN BLOC"

"In their own ranks, the young guardsmen are counting, for the time being, Senators Cutting of New Mexico and Capper of Kansas, who have been voting with them, the observer stated Senators Couzens of Michigan and Johnson of California, each of whom calls himself 'a one man bloc, are being numbered with the young guard. Couzens seems to be somewhat sympathetic with the 'new guard' but he has not been with them all the time.

"In the Old Guard are listed Senator Baird, the successor of Senator Edge of New Jersey, and also included is Senator Waterman of Colorado who has voted more than once with the coalition. Senator Thomas of Idaho, listed as a member of the Middlesex, has shown progressive or independent tendencies at times, but at others he has been with the conservative element. Senator Pine of Oklahoma has been with the Young Guard some time."

Rubber Export Gains

Washington, Nov. 29 — United States exports of rubber footwear to the trade routes of the Mediterranean are showing remarkable advances from 150,251 pairs in 1926 to 351,117 pairs in 1928, an increase of more than 125 per cent, according to the Commerce Department's rubber division. The year, 1929, will exceed all previous records.

AIR REPORTERS DINE AT CAPE COD SCHOOL

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

And it was goose instead of turkey after all.

But the goose was so good that the shift in menu wasn't commented upon by the gang of air news writers, who were flown down to Skyways permanent camp at Marston's Mills in a big tri-motored Ford plane, chartered for the occasion from Colonial by Johnny Haughey, vice-president of Skyways.

With 12 air writers and photographers, Haughey and Lisa Lorraine Defren aboard, Dick Mackie, division superintendent for Colonial, hauled the big ship into the air, with Eric Sexton sitting beside him as co-pilot.

A short run of 35 minutes and the Cape Cod airport showed itself through the mists. Mackie gave the gang their first thrill by cutting the three motors, and showing everybody how stable the ship was in stalling position. Then a hair-raising dive of the field, downwind, and a verticle bank in for a landing.

Shortly after we taxied up to the line, Crocker Snow, flying Skyways' Bellanca, and carrying three students and Clem MacIsaacs, hove into view, and put on a short show for the folks.

A period of news gathering followed, after everyone had been shown around the camp, and then the feed.

Haughey stated that Olcott Payson is in charge of the flying camp, and is also chief pilot down there. There are eight students using the field at present, with new ones signing up every day. Originally started as a summer camp, the school was such a success that the company decided to keep it open all winter, and has built class rooms, dormitories, mess hall and hangars.

FEEL AT HOME

A student, from the first time he arrives at the field, is made to feel at home, but is also told that the school rules must be lived up to, and that no monkeyshines will be tolerated.

Three kinds of flying courses are offered by the school, and each includes an extensive ground school course, under the direction of Capt. Carlson of B. U.

All three courses start out with approximately 40 lessons of dual instruction, and by the time the student goes solo, he is well versed in every side of the flying game, as far as he has gone. Before the student is allowed to solo, he is given tail spins from every concievable angle, with recovery from same. This is to preclude the possibility of the student getting into trouble when some unforeseen exigency arises.

The first two or three lessons are 20 minutes long, in order to keep the student from becoming tired. When he begins to get the "feel" of the ship, the lessons are lengthened to 30 minutes, and after he soloes, he may keep the ship in the air for 45 minutes.

Primary instruction is done in D. H. Moth planes. These ships are equipped with Handley-Page wing slots, which give the pilot a little more leeway before the ship will tail-spin. The student uses the Moths until he has secured his private license, coming after 10 hours of solo.

The next step is to check out on a Whirlwind-engined Stearman open cockpit biplane, and this ship is used up to the limited commercial license, which is obtained after 50 hours of solo. If the student is signed up for a transport license, he is next turned loose in the Bellanca cabin monoplanes, and sent out on cross-country flights all over New England, and to various points in New York. The first such flight is made under the supervision of his instructor, but after he masters the art of aerial navigation, he is allowed to barge off alone.

ALL SOLO NOW

The eight students quartered at the school are all solo so Payson hasn't much to do. A check flight is given each of the embryo pilots every five hours. This check flight consists of having Payson go up with the student, and having the latter put the ship through its paces. Landings takeoffs, turns, figure eights, and spins with recovery, are the general rule. These tests are given to be sure that the student hasn't formed any foolish or dangerous practices while flying solo.

Flying for the day starts at eight a. m., and generally stops at noon. The afternoon is partly spent in ground school, and then the students are free to enjoy themselves or study until dinner is served. After eating, the students may go out for the evening, but must always be in bed at eleven o'clock.

Next year Skyways plans to enlarge the group of buildings, and make room for more than the present quarters for 22 students. Applications are being received at a fast rate for an early spring start, and Haughey expects that the school will need three instructors to carry on the work when the warm breezes begin to blow again.

Needless to say, all the students attended the luncheon, and immediately afterward followed the example of their instructor, Payson, by leaving for their homes for Thanksgiving.

The airport, known officially as the Cape Cod Airport, was the summer home for the 101st Observation Squadron, M. N. G., during the two weeks' summer camp of that outfit. The officers of the guard stated that they will return to the pleasant Cape field next year. This is as high a recommendation that could be given a field for the training of students.

Just south of the field is a large lake, on which primary training in the handling of seaplanes, or hydroplanes, is given. A Moth was equipped with pontoons during the past summer and all the students were given a chance at flying the ship.

Church Bells to Open Xmas Seal Drive

Thousands of church bells, school bells and fire bells were scheduled to ring in cities and towns throughout the country today to signalize the opening of the national Christmas seal sale.

From Maine to California the seal, depicting a medieval bell ringer, was to come to life in concerted bell ringing by persons garbed to represent the figure on the Christmas seal.

In New York City the celebration was to be led by Mayor James J. Walker, who is to ring the bell in the old City Hall. At this signal more than a thousand chimes were to peal out the Christmas seal message to New Yorkers.

Elsewhere, Governors of states, Mayors of cities and other important personages were to participate in the celebration.

In Old North Church, Boston, where Paul Revere's lights were hung in 1775, the bells will "ring the knell of tuberculosis." The people of Plymouth were to hear the clangor of the church bell on the spot where the Pilgrims built their first house of worship.

The campaign waged in this, the 22d annual Christmas seal sale, is to be conducted by 1400 state and local tuberculosis associations, and in addition 15,000 special committees covering every cross roads and hamlet with an army of workers estimated to be more than 500,000. The sale is sponsored throughout the country by the National Tuberculosis Association.

Private Dirigible Built in England

Howden, England, Nov. 29—Great Britain's privately-built dirigible, the R-100, has been completed and inspected by the press in her hangar here.

The dirigible cost £450,000 (about $2,250,000) while the estimates on her government-built sister, the R-101, were for £474,000 (about $2,370,000, with an additional £53,000 for engines.

One of the chief differences between the two ships is that the R-101 is petrol driven and the R-100 oil driven.

Come, Mr. Fuller!

Folks in the Rear of the Hall Are Becoming Uneasy

THE Haverhill Gazette, Rep., asks why former Governor Fuller withholds a formal statement concerning his disposition toward the Gillett place in the Senate at Washington and replies to its own inquiry as follows:

"The only answer we can find is that he takes pleasure in tormenting the leaders who have no use for him and in keeping the political pot thoroughly stirred.

"Thus he makes an interesting political show and keeps himself before the people upon whom he must depend directly for support.

"Nevertheless, we doubt the wisdom and good taste of Fuller's procedure. He can overdo the act. In fact, as far as we are concerned, he has overdone it now. He is an able man, probably would make a good Senator and has now a good chance to be elected. But his refusal to declare himself definitely, his continued mischievous toying with the situation, is likely to bring the people who are for him to the conclusion that they want a candidate who knows what he wants, says so frankly, and goes after it, even though his chances of success seem less promising than Fuller's.

"Fuller, if he hopes for political success, must have popular support. He will begin to lose such support the moment his show begins to be irksome. And it's beginning to get irksome."

A few more blasts like this from the party press and the former Governor MAY feel that the time has come when he must fish or cut bait.

But prognosticating as to Alvan T. is as risky as trying to read the road map of a Barred Rock, 200 feet ahead of you on the Turnpike. Just when you think she is, she isn't.

The fact of the matter is that on this day in November the Master of Runnymede Farm has the other leaders scared stiff.

And, from this part of the forum, that observation applies to the leaders of BOTH parties.

Will no one cross swords with him?

Broken Homes

Whose the Blame?

IN seven cases out of ten, it is the husband, not the wife, who slams the door, walks out, never comes back, and so breaks up the home.

This was the recent testimony of the Rev. George P. O'Conor, well-known Boston clergyman, before the National Conference of Catholic Charities, at New Orleans.

But who is to blame? WHY does the man leave home?

1—Poor cooking.

"Heavy biscuit and scorched steaks have driven more men from home than ever have been enticed away by so-called 'vamps.' No man can go on, day in and day out, with poorly cooked food and retain any interest in his home. Chronic indigestion affects one's whole viewpoint."

2—Nagging.

"No man can go on loving a woman who nags him, and until women learn that they must not nag there will be desertions."

Fr. O'Conor, director of Boston's Catholic Charitable Bureau, urged the development by social agencies of a "kind of consultation service," for the purpose of giving skilled and understanding attention to families which appear to be "nearing shoal waters."

The BASIC reason for inharmonious homes, he believes, is "lack of preparation on the part of the boy and girl BEFORE marriage."

It is his opinion that the young person of today rushes into marriage without giving thought to the seriousness of the step, and "then is not big enough to adjust himself or herself to conditions."

But until these things can be worked out, he holds, referring to a proposed solution of the problem by proper training in childhood, the breaking up of homes "may be materially lessened if husbands and wives will develop a more tolerant attitude toward each other, and at the same time realize that BEING married is a job all in itself."

Which reminds us of the suggestion of a country minister of old, that in order to make a success of "this marriage business" the newlyweds should first provide themselves with TWO BEARS—bear and forbear.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

"THE light is out; the hand of Death
Has snuffed the flame," the mourner saith.
"They mock who say a vital spark
Will glow again; a deathless soul
Will wake to win a greater goal.

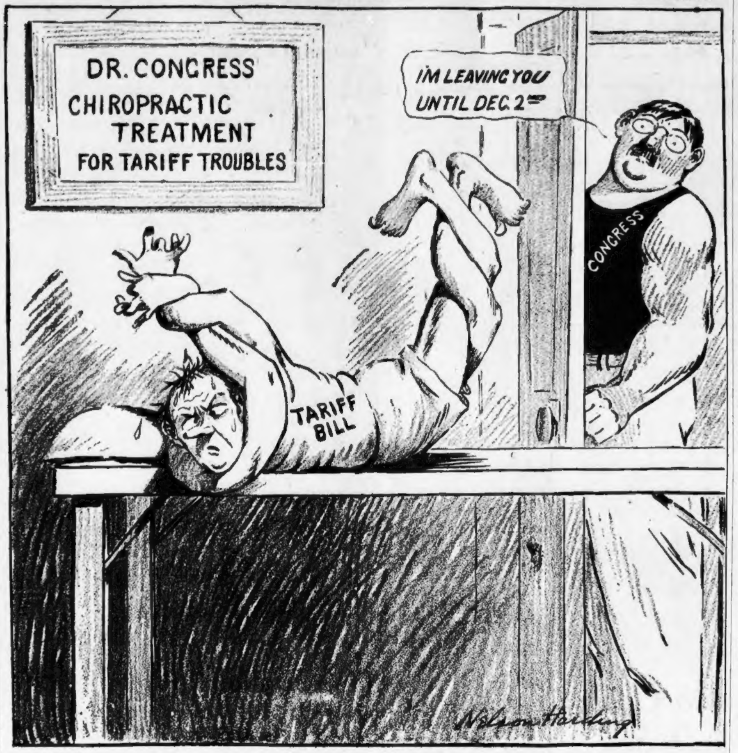
"The house is dark where late the light
Of loving eyes shone clear and bright
As some fixed star that sends its rays
Across unmeasured realms of space.
With deathless glimmerings to trace
A road on ocean's trackless ways.

"Dark? Yes, but down my garden path
Where winter spent his cruel wrath
Nor left one rose or tulip gay,
Where summer's every lovely bloom
Fell, dust within a dusty tomb
Spring woke the violets today!"

But Look at the Patient, Doc!

By NELSON HARDING



All in, and much in need of rest,
The Tariff Specialist adjourns.
He's done his best or done his worst
Until, days later, he returns.

Meanwhile, the luckless patient may
Not feel that he's been helped a lot,
For that's the patient who appears
To us to be a hopeless knot.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

OUR Wall Street man announces that everything is as quiet as the clock tower of the deserted village.

The tournament of financial hysteria has breezed over and the ostrich is all set to grow a new bouquet of feathers.

He has crocheted this list of questions and answers for future orders in the street:

Q.—What is Wall Street.

A.—A stampede up a blind alley.

Q.—What is a broker?

Q.—Does a joint account mean credit in a speakeasy?

A.—O, but it's all the same in the morning.

Q.—I have saved up another hundred dollars. What do you advise?

A.—Silence.

Q.—What do you mean by a bear?

A.—After a bear gets through faith, hope and charity are paupers picking each other's pockets.

Q.—What do they mean by buying on margin?

A.—That's the same thing as buying a coyote on the run. He's yours if you catch him.

Q.—After I buy on margin, who takes the next step?

A.—Your widow.

Q.—What is selling short?

A.—A broker, who hasn't got the stock, sells it to a customer who doesn't want it.

Q.—What supports the market?

A.—The public.

Q.—What supports the public?

A.—Crutches.

Q.—What is a paper profit?

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

ONE can proceed similarly with the sense of touch and get a different distribution; and finally the pain-sense is not restricted to areas but is present everywhere, so here again the sense-organs must be distinct.

H. G. Wells

It will probably appear to the reader that the list of sensations just given is too short. We have spoken for example of a single pain-sense, but there are several different qualities of pain. As a matter of fact, the rich variety of feelings that we get from our skin is due to the fact that a stimulus often affects more than one kind of sense-organ.

Our muscles, tendons and joints are richly provided with sense-organs, chiefly sensitive to pressure, which supply the central nervous system with information about the position and movements of the limbs. These sense-organs also play an important part in feeling the shapes and textures of objects.

In structure the organs responsible for sensation in the skin and muscles are comparatively simple.

We may, however, take note of a kind of sense-organ that is even more elementary in design than the touch-organs in the hair follicles. Everywhere in the skin there is a network made by the branching ends of nerve-fibres, running among the cells without any evident order and without any specialized accessory structures.

When these fibres are stimulated they give rise to sensations of pain. The pain sense is of more importance to the organism than any other of the skin sensations, for while a message about the temperature of the air or about the hardness and shape of a neighboring object may or may not be interesting to the central nervous system, a stab of pain always means immediate danger. Pain is an alarm signal, and its biological importance is reflected in the anatomical fact that whereas warmth and cold and touch are senses confined to particular patches of skin, the pain network is unrestricted and pervades the whole surface of the body.

INTERNAL SENSATION

While we are on the subject of these scattered and rather mysterious sense organs we may note the feelings that arise from time to time in our thoracic and abdominal viscera. Normally we are unaware of these independently working parts. There is a close correspondence between the parts of the body over which the sway of the central nervous system extends and the parts from which it receives precise information.

The mouth, for example, is controlled by the central government—chewing and swallowing are the results of impulses from the brain—but the oesophagus is an independent structure, driving mouthfuls down to the stomach by means of its automatic movements. Corresponding with this we find that the mouth is very sensitive to the temperature, texture and chemical composition of our food, but that as soon as a mouthful is swallowed it ceases to stimulate sense organs; it is handed over to the autonomous factories and passes at the same time out of our control and out of our ken.

Generally speaking, whenever an abdominal organ sends a vivid sensory message to the brain it means that something is seriously wrong and that the government is expected to do something about it.

The whole subject of sensation in the viscera is still obscure. We know very little of the elements into which visceral sensations can be analyzed or of the sense organs that are responsible for them. It is clear that the arrangements are very different from those in the skin, and the difference seems to depend on the relative independence of the viscera to which we have just alluded.

There is, however, a possibility that the sense-impulses received from the viscera include messages other than these cries of distress. We saw that motor impulses to the voluntary muscles are not confined to the moments when contraction is desired; they include continual encouragements, an unceasing influence that keeps the muscle fit and ready.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

HUSBANDS are divided into four classes, these days—potential, current, deleted and departed.

After a few months of placid married life a man can kiss his wife with his eyes wide open, and miss nothing that is going on around him.

The first hint a bride has that her husband's rapture is beginning to cool is when he calls her by her given name, instead of by one of the patronizing little pet-names he has invented for her.

The latest method of spiting your last husband appears to be to go back and marry the first one.

After a few trips to Reno a woman gets such a marrying complex that she can hear the strains of the Mendelsohn wedding march without automatically reaching for a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

It is not the kisses of a man's lips which a woman remembers longest and most poignantly, but the caress in his eyes.

The great prize among husbands is that happy medium between the man who never notices your hats and the kind who insists on picking them out for you.

The one thing that it seems impossible for a woman to make any man understand is that she may have an old-fashioned red-flannel conscience underneath a pink georgette personality and a cast-iron code of honor underneath a cloth-of-silver manner.

Love is not actually dead until a man stops making daily excuses for calling you up, and begins making bi-weekly excuses for NOT calling you up.

A woman can smile, kiss and sigh in any language—and these constitute the Esperanto of love.

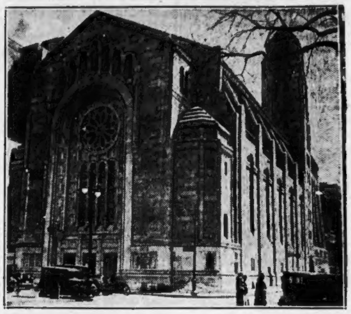
And One of the World's Wealthiest Congregations

(Copyright, 1929)



TEMPLE EMANU-EL, ON FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

THIS new and magnificent Jewish Synagogue on Fifth avenue, built opposite Central Park, in New York, is the largest synagogue ever built in the history of the world.

The Jewish population of New York City is the greatest that ever existed in history, far greater than the population of ancient Jerusalem and its surroundings multiplied many times. Ancient Jerusalem could be located in one small corner of New York's Central Park.

That population alone could hold in check race and religious prejudice, for its votes might easily control an election in New York State and thus control a Presidential election.

Not only is this the biggest synagogue in the world, it is also the largest place of worship in New York City, excepting only St. Patrick's Cathedral and the Protestant Episcopal Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

The congregation of Temple Emanu-El is probably much richer than the congregation of either of the great New York cathedrals.

Wherever just laws enable people to compete on an equal footing, the people of Jewish blood make their way to the top.

And in one way, please observe, the Jewish people show especial intelligence.

They combine their charities in one organization for greater efficiency. The charities are most generous and show a lower percentage of cost of management than any other.

Instead of keeping children cooped up in orphan asylums, dwarfing their minds and depriving them of a chance in life, Jewish charities send their children to live scattered in families, and rather than take the children of a dead man from their mother, they give her money enough to keep herself and her children.

Also in Jewish institutions the little boys are sent out to the PUBLIC SCHOOLS every day. They mix on terms of equality with OTHER American children and when the time comes they are able to take their place in life's struggle.

This magnificent Jewish synagogue has been erected on New York's finest street, because those that worship there are good and intelligent citizens.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—Charles Hanson Towne or some equally gifted poet should take a night off and write a threnody to New York's tired eyes. You see them everywhere—in the frenzied Wall Street, along gay Broadway, sedate Park avenue and in the squalor of East Side slums.

They give to the city its mask of indifference, it brooding nonchalance. This lack of lustre is especially stressed among luxurious ladies lolling in limousines, debutantes supposed to be thrilling to youth and among notables gazing at life through club windows.

Newspaper reporters are unconsciously touched by what a visiting Viennese journalist called "Manhattan's sombre stare," for in describing some outland visitor they invariably refer to their bright, flashing eyes. It strikes them as something salient! Different!

In restaurants, theaters and at the opera there are always eyes in the languorous half closed manner so peculiarly New Yorkish. One frequently longs for the robin bright pertness so noticeable among so-called Babbitts at Rotarian affairs out yonder.

But it is in stuffy night clubs with their dim lights and haze of tobacco smoke that eyes acquire the glazed emptiness of the dead fish. Against such a background the expressionless smile takes on a sardonic quality suggesting the grin of a corpse.

In the early morning thousands from the suburbs trudging to work after a night of fair sleep offer this same distinguishing mark. So pronounced has it become that a famous psychologist can instantly spot a person who has lived in New York more than five years.

The newcomer is ever conscious of this ineffable and melancholy tinge and regards it as a fusion of sullenness and bad humor. The truth is that in New York the merriest people often have the saddest eyes. It is, in the Manhattan manner, "one of those things."

My choice for the brightest orbs in New York are those of Eddie Cantor, the actor. And the gayest of twinkling eyes are those of Mary McKinnon, the artist. Cantor's eyes suggest two shiny black shoe buttons on a white sheet and Miss McKinnon's have the glitter of rain-washed berries.

The Rialto is said to have only 15 theatrical producers who have an artistic and financial standing. The rest belong to a fly-by-night fraternity, but are always able somehow to rib up a sucker who will "angel" a show. They make even a flop profitable to themselves by exacting a tax from everybody connected with a production, including at times the players. The great harm is such plays discourage theatrical attendance as worth while endeavors.

A theatrical "turkey" this summer was sponsored by Broadway bootleggers, of which there are reported to be several. It was an amateurish exhibition of inane drivel but such is the power of the bootlegger in "urging" his satellites to attend the show it ran for several months.

The bootleggers' methods are abrupt. I saw one letter that bespoke their power. It read: "Enclosed find six tickets to the Thursday night performance. Send check at once and be there." The recipient had—and who can blame him?—no "sales resistance" whatever. He was there with his hair in a braid.

And I could mention quite a number of others who, under the circumstances, wouldn't think of missing such hospitality. No, sir!

What, asks a financial writer, does the average layman know about accounting terms?
